JUNE ROBLES IS FOUND ALIVE IN CAGE

Girl, 6, Held For 19 Days By Chain in Desert Hole

6-Year-Old Mind Reported Unhurt

Ransom Not Paid; Note Tells Where Girl Was Hidden.

Tucson, Ariz., May 14 (U. P.).—June Robles, 6-year-old Tucson heiress, kidnaped 19 days ago, was found alive late today chained to an iron cage in a hole dug in the desert nine miles east of here.

The girl apparently had been placed there by her abductors soon after they abducted her at Tucson.

She was emaciated and covered with dirt, but mentally sound. She was returned immediately to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Robles, and placed under care of physicians.

Letter Described Hideout.

A letter mailed from Chicago several days ago to Gov. B. B. Moeur in Phoenix paved the day for June's return. It described where she was held captive. The letter was delivered to Huston by a State motorcycle patrolman.

Huston drove to the designated spot, a deserted area surrounded by cactus plants. Beneath one cactus he discovered a hole about a foot wide. Looking inside he saw the girl.

A chain around her body was padlocked to one of the bars of the cage. Beside her was a quantity of food and a 15-gallon can of water.

She was able to speak only a few words, and obviously was terror-stricken, officers reported.

June was returned without payment of the $15,000 ransom demand-

Engineer Held In Death Case

Girl Found Slain in San Francisco Park; Lover Is Accused.

San Francisco, May 14 (AP).—Held on a murder charge, Millard Hickman, 40-year-old steamship company engineer who was sued for divorce because he "had too many women," today denied he had slain Miss Louise Jeppesen, 23, of Ogden, Utah, whose beaten body was found in Golden Gate Park yesterday. Police said she had been attacked, then strangled.

Captain of Inspectors Charles Dullea quoted Hickman as admitting he and the girl quarreled after a drinking party in his apartment, a short time before her body was found.

Lingerie, which police said belonged to the dead girl, was found in Hickman's automobile. A bruise on Hickman's leg, and a deep scratch on his hand, was attributed by him to a scuffle with Miss Jeppesen in his apartment.

Municipal Judge Frank Dunn denied bail and ordered Hickman held for a preliminary hearing May 22.

Police said Hickman's automobile was covered with a red dust similar to that in the park where the body was found.

Insull Kidnap Plea Waits U. S. Witnesses

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green announced today that the hearing on Samuel Insull's plea that he was "shanghaied" out of Istanbul, set for tomorrow before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan, will be postponed for a week.

The Government will require additional time to bring evidence and witnesses from the State Department in Washington, Green said.

Flyers Over Ocean On Dash for Rome

George R. Pond (right) and Caesare Sabelli were believed to be well out over the Atlantic last night in an effort to complete the first New York-to-Rome flight in their monoplane Leonardo da Vinci. The take-off was from Floyd Bennett Field.

New York, May 14 (AP).—Bound on a nonstop flight to Rome, Cesare Sabelli and Capt. George R. Pond roared aloft from Floyd Bennett Field early today, sped up the Atlantic Coast and tonight, apparently, were piercing low-hanging fog off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland to reach fair weather over the open ocean.

The hazardous objective on this inaugural flight of the 1934 transoceanic season never before has been attained. Six lives have been lost in the trying.

But Sabelli, who made one of the these attempts in 1928 with Roger Williams, and Capt. Pond, a former Navy pilot who is no novice to long-distance flying, were confident.

As they lifted their 300-horsepower, orange-and-maroon mono-

France May Ask New U.S. Debt Parley

Roosevelt's Attitude on Default Waited Also by Britain.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

Paris, May 14 (U.P.).—The French government is willing to send representatives to Washington to reopen the war debts issue with President Roosevelt, it was learned tonight.

France would be willing to follow the lead of Great Britain either in meeting a Roosevelt debts mission to Europe or sending individual missions to Washington in an effort to gain "a new deal" on this delicate issue.

Presumably, however, according to the United Press informant, the government would prefer awaiting indication of some such action by Britain.

Once London made the proposal for some such method of reopening the debts questions, Paris would be ready to fall in line, resulting in an entirely new series of debts conferences designated to wipe the issue from the slate of international problems.

The French and British shortly will sound out their respective positions. Observers considered it likely if Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald proceeds to Geneva for the disarmament conference the end of the month he will have "momentous discussions" with Foreign Minister Louis Barthou on debts.

Both France and Britain meanwhile eagerly await Mr. Roosevelt's message to Congress on war debts, which they expect to afford an avenue for reopening the question.

Paris and London prefer a general international debts conference, but it is realized that President Roose-

Slavery Laid To Mountain Liquor Gang

3 Men Held in Arkansas After Youth Tells of Kidnaping.

Greasy Cove, Ark., May 14 (U.P.).—Three men were arrested here today on charges of kidnaping two Arkansas farm youths and keeping them in slavery for months at a mountain distillery.

Out of the Ouachita hills country, where creeks form headwaters of the Little Missouri River, came a strange story of human slavery, religious terrorism and possible murder by mountaineer bootleg gangs.

Elmer Fox returned from the hills and told District Attorney Houston Emory a story of spending several weeks in the hands of the gang. Jabo Fox, Elmer's brother, is missing.

The men jailed were Homer Markham, 26; his brother, Albert, 19, and Ruben Von Marsh, 28. Mace Markham, 50, the father, and Dallas Perkins are sought as leaders of the mountaineer moonshine gang.

The kidnaping occurred "several months" ago, according to the victim's story to Houston. They were beaten senseless with rifle butts and carried far into the hill country, where they were held in slavedom, Elmer said.

The section was described by the Wickersham Commission as "among the obdurate bootlegging holdouts of the Nation."

"They made us wash their clothes, work their fields and help them make whisky," said the youth, who escaped from the band.

"We escaped one time," he told the district attorney. "They came after us and dragged us from a church. They ran their car up the church steps and shot up the church during a religious service.

Galilee Inundates Town Where Christ Walked, Drowning 20

Jerusalem, May 14 (AP).—A great rain came down over the sea of Galilee today "and the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew."

And the streets of Tiberias, where Christ once walked, were swept by a great wall of water which carried before it all that lay therein.

Of the inhabitants of Tiberias, at least 20 persons were slain and much of the ancient city was laid waste.

It was near to Tiberias, so says the sixth chapter of the Book of St. John, that Jesus Christ in his life once walked upon the waters when the sea arose.

There, it is written, the disciples "entered into a ship and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus was not come to them.

"And the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew.

"So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they did see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing nigh unto the ship: and they were afraid.

"But he saith unto them, it is I: Be not afraid.

"Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went."

Then Testament relates how Christ there awaited the coming of the people that he might talk to them and says:

"Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks."

And tonight comfort and succor were given to the people of stricken Tiberias by 1,000 soldiers and police.

They came into the city over the main route between Jerusalem and Damascus to where the ancient buildings lie near to that plain where the Sultan Saladin, eight centuries ago, massacred the Knights Templar and Knights Hospitaller during the crusades.

One Escapes As Sheriff's Men Arrive

Had Been Celebrating Completion of New Swimming Pool.

Los Angeles, May 14 (AP).—Howard Brooks, chief criminal deputy of the sheriff's office, announced tonight William F. Gettle, kidnaped Beverly Hills millionaire, was safe and would be in the sheriff's homicide office within a few minutes. He said no ransom was paid.

Two of the kidnapers were captured and one escaped when sheriff's officers raided a house in the 4000 block Rosemont avenue, La Crescenta, in the footbills area north of Glendale, the officers said.

Gettle was kidnaped shortly before midnight last Wednesday from his secluded country estate in Arcadia, about 25 miles east of Los Angeles. He had been entertaining four friends in celebration of the completion of the new swimming pool on the 5-acre estate.

Extortion Threat Is Sent Dr. Howe

Note to Retired Physician Demands $10,000.

An agent of the Department of Justice has been sent to Berlin, Md., to investigate an extortion threat in which Dr. Orwin E. Howe, 80, retired Washington physician, was asked for $10,000, it was learned last night.

Dr. Howe, who maintains a home at the Eastern Shore town, received the following note last week:

"Leave $10,000 in your mail box Saturday night, May 12, or else you will lose your home, and your girl and your life."

The note, written with pencil on coarse paper, was signed "The Enemy." Authorities watched the Howe mailbox Saturday night, but no one appeared.

Sunday night an automobile sped by Dr. Howe's home and a shot was fired from it. Mrs. Minta Howe, his wife, was awakened by the shot, but reached the front of the house too late to get the license number of the car.

Jockey Is Found Dead Near Bowie

Body of T. Brooke, 28, Shows No Violence.

The body of T. Brooke, 28-year-old jockey, of Jamaica, N. Y., was found in woods near Bowie Md.) Race Track yesterday by a tenant farmer. He was recalled as having been last seen at the close of the race meeting there April 14.

Lying with an arm under his head as though he had curled up for a short nap, Brooke showed no signs of having suffered physical violence. Certificate of death from unknown cause was issued by Judge Roland Taylor, of Upper Marlboro, Md., acting coroner.

Discovery was made by Basil Queen while inspecting tobacco beds on the tenant farm of Stephen Queen. He reported it to Constable William C. Kreitzer.

Identification was made from an all but obliterated card in Brooke's trouser pocket.

Burial will be today where the body was found.

Authorities said he was formerly in the employ of Joseph W. Burns, Toronto hotel proprietor and turfman.

Court Bars Shank Poison Death Plea

Akron Attorney Has Two Weeks for New Motion.

Little Rock, Ark., May 14 (AP).—The Arkansas Supreme Court today declined to save the life of Mark H. Shank, Akron, Ohio, attorney convicted of the picnic poison deaths of four members of the same family.

The court held there was sufficient evidence presented at Shank's trial for the slaying of Alvin Cooley, also of Akron, alone to prove that he also poisoned Cooley's wife and two children.

Shank, sentenced to die last February 3, was given a lease on life by his appeal and he now has two weeks in which to file a motion for a new hearing, and if that is denied the Governor will fix a new date for his electrocution.

Roosevelt Rushes Aid In Drought

U. S. Agencies to Send Funds, Relief to Stricken Area.

President Roosevelt yesterday moved swiftly to create immediate relief for sun-parched States in the grip of the worst drought in years.

Under his direction, an emergency committee outlined a seven-point Federal-aid program for the stricken areas. The committee proposed:

To give direct relief to needy farmers and their families.

To purchase cattle where pasturage is ruined to be processed for relief distribution.

To provide stock feed.

To provide seed for emergency forage crops.

To have the Federal Emergency Relief Administration supply funds to deepen and sink wells for increased water supply.

To have the AAA relax restrictions on contracts to allow production of summer forage crops.

To have railroads reduce freight rates to permit moving cattle out of drought sections and ship feed in.

Confer With President.

Conferring with the President on the situation, described as "serious," were Chester Davis, AAA administrator; Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, and his aid, Lawrence Westbrook, and William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. On the basis of reports from the suffering areas, the President was assured there is no danger of a food shortage because of the dry spell.

The President moved with such rapidity to start aid for the dry regions that he outstripped Congress, where a committee was being named to "cooperate" with him in anything he might undertake.

A White House statement said that "the President indicated that in his judgment it will not be necessary to ask Congress for additional powers or grants to cope with the emergency agencies to cope with the situation."

Meanwhile, weather reports from the Midwest were far from encouraging. While many sections received rain over the week-end, the Weather Bureau reported, the Dakotas, Minnesota and western Kansas, in the heart of the drought area, received none.

Rains Insufficient.

Musician's Wedding Plea Gets Him Off In Auto Crash Case

The next time you get arrested in your car, arrange to be on the way to your own wedding. It will get you off quicker.

Leo Arnaud, who blows a horn with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, and Miss Blance Bowe, an actress, left New York at midnight Sunday in an elopment to Rockville, Md. Yesterday morning they had reached Massachusetts avenue and R street northwest, when Arnaud, blissfully ignoring a stop sign, crashed into a taxi driven by George Bonifore, 28, of the 1700 block of D street northwest.

In the taxi was Mrs. Thomas D. McKeown, wife of the Representative from Oklahoma, who had been visiting a sick friend at Naval Hospital. She was hustled back there immediately to have her cuts and bruises dressed.

Arnaud and Bonifore were held for reckless driving. The love-smitten musician revealed that he was about to be married and caused good will to filter throughout the Police Department. He was let off and advised by the authorities as to where he could get a marriage license.

Less than an hour later the couple stood before Judge Robert Mattingly.

"I pronounce you man and wife," said the beaming man of law.

$530,000,000 Industry Loan Wins in Senate

House Expected to Act This Week on Proposal to Aid Economic Recovery by Supplying Working Capital.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

After resisting a series of efforts to throw open the Treasury for various projects, the Senate yesterday passed the Glass loans-for-industry bill which would make available through the Federal Reserve banks and the RFC $530,000,000 for business in need of working capital.

The bill, designed to stimulate economic recovery through increasing employment, was approved by the Senate without a record vote, but only after a rider was attached to it making unlawful the exertion of political influence in obtaining an RFC loan for industry.

Efforts to amend the RFC act to make possible increased loans to closed banks, loans to municipal utilities and loans to municipalities on tax anticipation warrants were rejected.

The House Banking and Currency Committee is expected to report favorably a similar bill today, with House action expected before the week ends. The House bill differs in some particulars from the Senate measure, notably making available a total of $440,000,000. It is expected to be amended, however, to conform in general, with the Senate bill.

As soon as the Glass bill was passed Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson called up the Dill bill which provides for the creation of a Federal communications commission and codification, with some changes, of existing law relating to radio broadcasting and the operation of telephone, telegraph and wireless companies.

The Senate recessed immediately thereafter, but due to lengthy debate on the Glass bill, Robinson insisted on the Senate meeting at 11 a. m.

White House Party Scared By Lightning

Bolt Hits Tree as Storm Causes Lawn Crowd to Seek Shelter.

While more than 1,000 guests were attending a reception at the White House late yesterday, a lightning bolt struck a tree near the mansion and sent vivid flashes into the White House proper and the executive offices where President Roosevelt sat at his desk.

The bolt "cracked down" out of a black, low-hanging cloud shortly before 5 o'clock, stripping bark from a tall, black oak tree, one of the many majestice shade sentinels in the grounds.

The report was terrific, causing windows to rattle in all parts of the house and shaking the chandeliers over the many beautifully gowned guests. Many of the guests appeared frightened. They were quickly assured that the mansion had not been struck.

The brilliant assemblage, many of whom were from out of town, were at the White House for the first of the numerous lawn parties to be given by Washington society this spring. Showers preceding the electrical storm had driven the guests indoors.

Beautiful women in huge, floppy hats and the fluffiest of summer frocks were chatting in the East Room with men in white flannels or white uniforms of the Army and Navy when the storm broke.

Unperturbed by the lightning flashes, Mrs. Roosevelt received in the Blue Room.

White House police immediately investigated and found that the bolt had struck the top of the tree and ploughed a path a foot wide through the bark to the ground.

Although no one was hurt, Policeman C. S. Kalin of the Metropolitan Department, reported he had a narrow escape. He explained that he had stepped under a tree at the northwest entrance when the blinding flash was followed by a shower of flying splinters and small bits of bark from the nearby oak.

Signing of the accord was announced by an official communique.

First Lady's Air Fee $500 Per Minute

Mrs. Roosevelt's fee for boosting the wares of commercial organizations over the radio is $500 a minute.

She made this known yesterday to newsmen at the White House, following her 6-minute Mother's Day skit sponsored by a commercial house.

The First Lady made it plain that her radio fees would be used strictly for charitable purposes. She explained she had turned her check for $3,000 for Saturday night's performance over to the Society of Friends service committee, with headquarters in Philadelphia.

At the same time, Mrs. Roosevelt turned thumbs down on making school commencement addresses this year.

She said she would be doing nothing else all May and June if she accepted all invitations, and thought it best to accept none. She also said she had been offered two or three honorary degrees, but declined them.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who previously had said she would not devote her time to commercial broadcasting, told reporters yesterday that she had changed her mind. The funds will be used to finance health, handicraft and educational work in West Virginia and other States.

She said she has stipulated that she will not talk about the product advertised in the programs, that she will be allowed to talk about anything she desires, and that each time it must be announced that the proceeds are paid to the Friends service committee.

The President's wife will see the beginnings of the work to be done when she visits Reedsville, W. Va., on June 7.

Mrs. Roosevelt said the school there would be a community center, and that in addition to teaching regular grade school subjects, it would include practical farming and home economics.

Deems Taylor's Wife Wins Divorce Decree

Reno, Nev., May 14 (AP).—Testifying at a private trial before District Judge Benjamin F. Curler, Mrs. Mary K. Taylor won a divorce from Joseph Deems Taylor, Nationally known composer and writer, on the ground of extreme cruelty, here today.

The court approved a property settlement agreement, which also provided for the custody of their 7-year-old daughter, Joan. They married at Newark, N. J., July 11, 1921.

Germany's Largest Balloon Is Missing With Two Aboard

Berlin, May 14 (U.P.).—Germany's largest balloon, the Bartsch von Sigsfeld, was missing tonight with two scientists aboard. They had not been heard from since they ascended at 8 a. m. Sunday from Bitterfeld, south of Berlin.

The scientists aboard the missing balloon are Dr. Schrenck, of Berlin, and Meteorologist Masuch.

Terrific wind velocities prevail at heights to which they planned to ascend and experts thought it possible they had been driven down in Russian forests, Swiss mountains or even at sea.

The huge balloon had a gas capacity of 9,500 cubic meters, and the scientists hoped to rise some 30,000 feet or more, to study the effect of cosmic rays on the properties of air and gases.

Five similar balloon ascensions in the past two years were made without mishap.

Billions Aid For Homes Is Requested By President

Message Outlines Plan to Revive Building Industry.

Bills Are Offered In Senate, House

Loans to Small Owners, Investors Urged in This Session.

Financially distressed home owners will benefit under a Government-backed program for release of credit amounting to several billions of dollars, set in motion yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The plan will make available vast sums for new home building, modernization and repair of dwellings and refinancing of mortgages. One of the primary goals will be to promote reemployment by reviving the mighty construction industry, gasping under depression's body blows.

Officials pictured the project as one of the most far-reaching moves by the Administration to directly aid private citizens. The proposal was designed to release into circulation again the vast river of credit retarded through lack of confidence by banks, industry and investors.

Aims Told by President.

In a message to Congress asking legislation, President Roosevelt described the purpose of the undertaking as twofold:

"First, to return many of the unemployed to useful and gainful occupation; second, to produce tangible, useful wealth in a form for which there is a great social and economic need."

Companion bills to start the wheels turning were introduced in the Senate by Chairman Fletcher and in the House by Chairman Steagall, of the Banking Committee.

John Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, challenged private enterprise to aid the Government in speeding recovery.

"American banks," he commented, "have the greatest cash reserves in history. There is money enough in this country if we can just get it into action."

Charge Manchukuan Sailor Slain by Rifles at Russian Front.

Tokyo, May 14 (AP).—The slaying of a Manchukuan sailor and the wounding of another on the Amur River Saturday was laid by Japanese army reports today to a burst of rifle fire from military positions on the Russian bank of the river.

An investigation was started by the newly formed State of Manchukuo.

Japanese army reports said the sailors were felled while aboard a steamer.

Comment was declined by the war office, but a spokesman said that officials of Manchukuo, Japanese-dominated state which recently enthroned Henry Pu-Yi as emperor, were seeking to get to the bottom of the affair.

Moscow, May 14 (AP).—The Soviet foreign office tonight said it had received no information concerning a Japanese report that a Manchukuan sailor had been killed Saturday by rifle fire from Russian territory on the Amur River.

Dirigible Successful In Releasing Glider

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 14 (AP).—A motorless glider was released from the Graf Zeppelin today at a height of 2,000 feet, marking the first time, German aviation authorities said, that a glider had been successfully released from a dirigible in motion.

If successful, gliders may be used to land mail or passengers from an airship, making it unnecessary for the latter to land.

Hull Studies Arms Embargo Plan of League

Chaco Warfare Cited as Example; Senate Bill Bans All at War.

By Kendall Foss.

The State Department reserved judgment yesterday on the appeal of the League of Nations urging the powers to embargo the shipment of arms to the belligerents in the Chaco War.

Secretary Hull made it plain, however, that the Administration is prepared to do everything feasible which might help bring the long drawn-out jungle struggle to an end. He declined to say more, pending an opportunity to study the full text of the League report, released Saturday in Geneva.

Hitherto, the department, while anxious to help, has felt the countries surrounding the battle area were the logical ones to thwart the shipments of new arms to the combatants. According to the League's report, the fighting is being carried on with modern superdeadly equipment, evidently new. The supply, too, seems inexhautible, the report intimated.

The League's findings brought the touchy problem of arms embargoes surging to the fore again.

Four Leaders Must Act.

Argentine, Brazil, Chile and Peru, the so-called ABCP group, leaders in South American affairs, surround the war zone. So long as these four do not collectively prohibit the shipment of arms across their territories, there is little sense in any other nation embargoing the export of armaments, officials here believe. Such a move would only throw the business elsewhere without hampering the conduct of the war at all, it is felt.

In point of fact, however, it is difficult for the ABCP powers to clamp down. Treaties guarantee both Paraguay and Bolivia the right to use the rivers connecting them with the sea without interference. Legally, there is no justification for holding boatloads of arms en route to the war zone.

In any event, this country can do little in the way of forbidding the export of arms to warring nations pending the passage of the arms embargo bill now before Congress.

Passed by the House and amended by the Senate to require embargoing shipments to all belligerents if it is decided to embargo shipments at all, the measure rests. As originally conceived, the bill was to authorize the President to forbid the export of arms to a warring nation.

Senator Hiram Johnson amended the measure to an all or none basis. Neither the White House nor the State Department want the bill in this form. They hold it would be inconsistent with Norman Davis' declaration in Geneva last May 22 in which he promised the United States, if satisfied with the league's definition of the aggressor in any given conflict, would do nothing to hinder the application of sanctions.

War Cause Foreseen.

Clearly, the department says, a law compelling complete embargo or none might hinder the other powers in isolating the aggressor. Probably in practice the Chief Executive would not apply a selective embargo once out of ten times, it is admitted, but the right to do so ought to be there.

If, for instance, strongly armed power A wanted to go after poorly armed power B, the knowledge that B could not get arms from the United States because A (as the aggressor) could not might even precipitate a war, it is felt.

The Senate, however, in accepting the Johnson amendment, made it plain that it feels this country got into the last war by getting too much money on one horse and it does not want the performance repeated.

Behind the Senate attitude lurks an unspoken distrust of the Executive's ability to act wisely, some observers feel. They are at a loss to understand the implied assumption that it is necessary to tie executive hands before it is known what sort of circumstance will require handling.

Senate Approves Industry Loans of $530,000,000

today to speed up its work so that the "must" calendar can be completed by the first week in June. Several amendments relating to radio broadcasting that have been offered to the Dill bill are expected to cause a sharp controversy.

The Glass bill as approved by the Senate authorizes the RFC until January 1, next, to lend an aggregate of $250,000,000 to established industrial or business enterprises "for the purpose of maintaining and increasing the employment of labor when credit is not otherwise available." The aggregate loans to any one borrower would be limited to $1,000,000, must be adequately secured and for a maturity not in excess of five years.

Reserve Bank Advances.

The bill also authorizes the Federal Reserve banks "in exceptional circumstances"—a phrase not in the House measure—to make direct financial advances for a maturity not exceeding five years to an established industry or business unable to get accommodation for working capital from the usual sources.

The Reserve banks also would be authorized under the bill to discount for or purchase from any bank, trust or mortgage company or similar financial institution obligations having maturity of less than five years, entered into to supply working capital for any established business or industry, provided the financial institution underwrites 20 per cent of any loss that might result.

The bill appropriates $139,299,557 out of the so-called "gold profit" in the Treasury to the Reserve banks subject to certain technical conditions. The aggregate sum which the Reserve banks may have outstanding at any time under the provisions of the bill is about $280,000,000.

The sharpest fight of the day took place over an amendment by Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), of Alabama, to divorce granting of RFC industry loans from politics. Although it was sharply fought by several Democratic leaders, it was adopted without a record vote. Subsequently the Senate refused by a vote of 21 to 38 to reconsider that action.

Split on Amendment.

This latter roll call vote will make it more difficult to throw the amendment overboard in conference, which has been the fate of similar "no politics" provision voted by the Senate. On the roll call 20 Democrats, including Leader Robinson, voted with 17 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite to support the Black amendment, opposed by 16 Democrats and 5 Republicans.

The Black "no politics" amendment provided that "it shall be unlawful for any Federal, State, county or municipal official, any member of any National, State or county committee of any political party or any other person except bona-fide and regularly employed officer, agent or employe of the person or corporation seeking a loan under the provisions of this section to seek to influence in any way any agent, officer or employe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in connection with a loan or any application therefor, under the provisions of this section, and if upon the request of the person or corporation seeking a loan such unlawful influence is used, the person or corporation seeking such loan shall be disqualified."

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, severely assailed the proposal, contending it would prevent him from calling an RFC director to make an engagement for a constituent seeking an industry loan. He said the proposal was obviously designed to protect the virtue of members of Congress, but that he did not need such protection. He argued the bill would force every applicant for a loan to hire a lawyer.

Black Sees Damage.

Black contended that loans for industries through the RFC was the "most dangerous step undertaken by this Administration" and that he wished to keep politics out of the undertaking. He said it was time to take members of Congress out of the class of "glorified messenger boys for constituents in order to win votes back home."

Senator Henry Ashurst (Democrat), of Colorado, said that "lobbyists, like obscene harpies, hover over every branch of the Government." He said he favored the Black proposal because it was not designed "to buttress our virtue, but to give assurance to the public this money will be disbursed without regard to political favor."

The proposal to lend RFC funds to municipal and public utilities, sponsored by Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, was defeated by a tie vote of 37 to 37. Later after a motion to reconsider prevailed, it was defeated, 30 to 34. Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, sponsored the plan for RFC loans up to 100 per cent of the appraised value of assets of closed banks. It was defeated, 34 to 36. The amendment providing for loans to municipalities on tax anticipation warrants was beaten, 16 to 42.

Such Is Law

U. S. Attorney General Admitted to Practice.

Homer S. Cummings, well known attorney, of Connecticut, was permitted to practice before the District Supreme Court yesterday. His admission was moved by the bar association and was concurred in by Chief Justice A. A. Wheat and his associates on the D. C. Supreme Court bench.

To the uninitiated, Mr. Cummings, it might be explained, is none other than the man who is charged with defending the Government in all its legal maneuvers. He happens to be the Attorney General of the United States. Of course, his right to defend the Government could not be challenged even though he was not a member of the local bar, but his admission entitles him to the standing of a local attorney.

At the same time Carl L. Ristine, another of the Government's legal luminaries, was admitted to practice in the local courts.

World Bank Head Sees Gold's Return

Basle, Switzerland, May 14 (U.P.). A general return to international gold standard was predicted today by Leon Fraser, president of the bank for international settlements, in his annual report.

The standard should work more successfully than in the past, Fraser said, urging the members to create a simple organization for international consultation and cooperation on currency matters.

Shots Wound Strike Guards In Alabama

(Associated Press.)

New violence in Alabama's coal fields yesterday was marked up on the strike-studded map of industry with the wounding of three guards in St. Clair County.

The men were ambushed and shot on their way to investigate a dynamite blast at the Acmar mine, according to word received at Birmingham.

The meat industry was affected by two new strikes. At Des Moines, Iowa, 700 employes of the Iowa Packing Co. walked out when their demands for a 10 per cent wage increase were refused. Employes of two other packing plans did not walk out.

Twenty-five hundred workers walked out of St. Louis, Mo., meat packing plants, demanding a 32-hour week and higher wages.

A victory was claimed by striking longshoremen at New York when railroads declared an embargo on all freight consigned to the Clye Mallory Steamship Lines.

Labor disputes continued to harass the automobile industry. Strikers tightened their picket lines at the Fisher Body Corporation No. 1 at Flint, Mich., but 12,000 men were reported at work at the Buick Motor Co. plant, which gets its bodies from the Fisher company.

A committee from Detroit was scheduled to leave today for Washington to protest against an alleged "lockout" of several hundred members of the Mechanics Educational Society of America by the Ford Motor Co.

Robles Kidnapers Still Mute on Plea

Father of Girl Receives No Reply to Offer of Tucson, Ariz., May 14 (A.P.).—The nineteenth day since 6-year-old June Robles was kidnaped passed today with no indication the kidnapers had sent the family any message in answer to last week's plea of Fernando Robles, June's father, that $10,000 be accepted as representing all the money he possibly could raise. A ransom of $15,000 was demanded.

The silence led to speculation regarding the child's fate. Belief the child may be dead again cropped up.

The truce under which authorities are pursuing a "hands off" policy to allow the girl's father a clear field for negotiation with the kidnapers continued today.

Britain Awaits U. S. Stand Before Offer

London, May 14 (A.P.).—Great Britain's attitude on war debts remained uncertain tonight, but in some quarters there is a growing disposition, it was said in official circles, to accept what they described "America's challenge" to default.

In all quarters there was positive assurance, however, that the nation has not yet made up its mind what to do about a debt instalment due in June. Whether to make a token payment was the vexing question.

Before deciding on a definite course Britain will play a waiting game, keeping a wary eye on Washington, it was indicated in the House of Commons today by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

British statesmen, a Downing street informant told the Associated Press, are eagerly awaiting President Roosevelt's war-debt message to Congress. The President, it was said, has intimated to Great Britain and other debtors that he wants an expression of their views before completing the message. But Great Britain was represented as wanting to know first what the next American move will be.

The waiting policy now apparently decided upon may delay the British decision until about June 1.

In the Commons conservatives and the opposition demanded a definite statement on war-debt policies. They did not get it from Simon. He said that circumstances of the moment will be a controlling influence.

U. S. Is Interested In Plan of France

Word that France is considering sending a debt mission to Washington to discuss the matter of defaulted war debts evoked interest in official circles here last night.

While no official news of the reported French plan had been received, the Administration still stands ready to talk with any debtor at any time, it was said. President Roosevelt repeated this only last week while expressing his continuing opposition to anything savoring of a group conference.

France, it appeared from reports, would prefer to come to Washington in company with other debtors, but is prepared to consider a solo trip is multilateral talks are taboo. Nothing, however, in Paris reports indicated an intention to make a very substantial offer; the idea appears to be to talk and explain rather than to suggest new (and at the same time substantial) figures.

Uncertain just how far advanced the reported French plan is, close followers here decided to withhold comment pending definite news France really intends to make an effort to meet the President's position.

Token payment is not enough; payment in full is the only sure way to avoid incurring the stigma of default; the offer must be pretty substantial before he would care to provoke a Congressional storm of revision.

U. S. Will Buy Pacific Aerial Defense Data

Congress has given the President money to snap up a $10,000 bargain in information about flying conditions in the North Pacific.

Tucked away in the War Department appropriation bill which just became law is a provision authorizing the President to spend up to $10,000 for information "from an authoritative source" as to "geographic, meteorologic and weather conditions in northern latitudes."

The information to be purchased already has been gathered by a noted explorer.

So that Asiatic powers would not take offense, the stipulation was added that information should concern both "civil and military aviation."

Military experts believe the data will add immeasurably to America's defenses against an aerial attack from the Pacific. It will bring to the United States long-sought, and in these days necessary information about flying conditions in the small islands strung out between the Alaskan Peninsula and the Orient.

Military authorities say that for an airplane to go directly from Tokyo to San Francisco it would have to fly over 4,000 miles without a stop.

But at the proper season, the plane could go northeast over the Japanese Kurile islands, which have landing fields; cross a comparatively small stretch of open sea, and then follow the United States' Aleutian Islands to the Alaskan mainland.

Other nations, including Japan, know much more about the North Pacific than does the United States, experts say. They add that other powers have guarded that information closely.

In 1931, for example, Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, jr., were on their world flight. They went over the Kurile Islands—which form the Asiatic-Alaskan chain. They made the mistake of having a camera aboard. They finally escaped with fines of $1,025 each.

The Lindberghs also had to land in the Kuriles the same year and were officially directed to keep away from landing fields and fortifications.

Missouri Voters Indifferent.

St. Louis, May 14 (A.P.).—A generally indifferent attitude was manifested tonight by the Missouri electorate toward the balloting tomorrow on the $10,000,000 State-wide bond issue to finance improvements on penal and elemosynary institutions.

Still Fighting

Jackson, Miss., May 14 (A.P.).—The "classical battle" between Gov. Sennett Connor and Lieut. Gov. Dennis Murphree was resumed today when the latter admitted that "Gov. Connor may be right about that Shakespeare business; with his Yale education, he certainly should know more concerning the classics."

Murphree is not a college man.

The latest row between the executives started when Murphree contended the Governor had "violently attacked" him in several statements, and quoted: "Lay on MacDuff, and damned be he who first cries, hold! Enough!"

The Governor answered with a statement pointing out that right after MacBeth issued his famous challenge, MacDuff cut off his head and exhibited it on the end of a spear to the shouting populace.

Home Owners' Help Is Rushed By President

Seeks to Aid Building by Releasing River of Credit.

the President for guarantee of deposits in building and loan associations and similar institutions up to $2,500 may cause delay in adjournment of Congress.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said it would be three weeks before the measure could be taken up on the floor. He predicted the bill would pump several billions of dollars into the construction industry, including expenditure of at least $1,000,000,000 on modernization of homes.

The bill would set up three new Federal agencies. The Home Credit Insurance Corporation would be allocated $200,000,000 as capital stock, to be used in insuring financial institutions against losses resulting from extension of credit for the home modernization campaign. The corporation also would insure amortized mortgages on owner-occupied homes and low cost housing projects.

A Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, contemplated by the bill, would have capital tock of $100,000,000, paid in Home Owners Loan Corporation bonds.

All Under U. S. Supervision.

The measure would permit Federal incorporation of mortgage associations empowered to deal in real estate mortgages. The associations, with a minimum capital of $5,000,000 each, would operate under supervision of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Mr. Roosevelt informed Congress there is need of legislation which "should end to improve conditions for those who live in houses, those who repair and construct houses, and those who invest in houses."

"Many of our homes," the message added, "are in decadent condition and not fit for human habitation. Many new homes are needed to replace those not worth repairing. * * * The protection of the health and safety of the people demands that this renovizing and building be done immediately."

In urging incorporation of Federal mortgage associations, the President moved to carry out his theories on social engineering. The organizations would be set up by committees of local business men.

Walker Also Stresses Need.

Frank C. Walker, executive director of the National Emergency Council, emphasized the need of the housing program. He declared the measure would stimulate the construction industry, which "has shown the least response during the last year to the general economic recovery."

He disclosed annual construction expenditures had dropped from $11,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000. He said normally about 3,500,000 persons are employed directly in the construction industry, but most of them now are out of jobs.

"From the point of view of unemployment," Walker said, "this enormous decline in the volume of construction is accountable for our largest single emergency-relief problem.

"Besides being accountable at the present time for our largest industrial problem and our largest unemployment relief problem, the construction industry also is accountable for our largest remaining financial problem. The real estate mortgage debt in the country as a whole is $43,000,000,000. This is the largest single class of outstanding long-term indebtedness in the capital market. It is nearly as large as the combined totals of National, State, county and municipal debt.

Half of Total on Homes.

"Of this mortgage indebtedness, $21,000,000,000, or approximately half the total, is represented by individual mortgages on homes."

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, reported the guarantee of bank deposits up to $3,500 had resulted in big withdrawals from many building and loan and homestead associations and similar institutions. He said all institutions concerned would be examined for eligibility and the guarantee would not be extended indiscriminately.

In pracical applicaion, Barkley explained, a man in need of a loan to build would apply to a building and loan association, his bank or any other agency willing to participate, just as he would normally.

Loan on Long Term.

Appraisers would investigate and his plea, if accepted, would result in a loan based on a mortgage, as is the case at present.

The Senator pointed out the obligation would be of long-term duration; there would be no second-mortgage financing at high costs and interest rates probably would be at a lower rate than is generally the case with existing mortgages.

Fahey stressed plans of the Administration to have the Government, through the new agencies, guarantee private institutions against loss of 20 per cent of the money they loaned for repairs and new construction. He said that figure represented a safe margin for banks and building and loan associations. The home owner, he added, would pay interest of not more than 5 per cent and loan insurance of 1 per cent.

In the case of repairs, he said, the home owner would merely sign a note and the loan would not be regarded as a lien on his property. No indorsements would be required. The repair loans would be payable in five years and the new construction loans in 20 years. Payment would be on installments.

He said his organization had received countless requests for such loans. Associations of banks, building and loan groups and similar interests, he added, have agreed to cooperate with the Government in popularizing the program.

President's Housing Message

Immediate Action Urged Upon Congress on Proposed Federal Program for Aiding Home Improvement and Construction.

The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on a huge Federal housing program follows:

To the Congress:

May I draw your attention to some important suggestions for legislation which should tend to improve conditions for those who live in houses, those who repair and construct houses and those who invest in houses?

Many of our homes are in decadent condition and not fit for human habitation. They need repairing and modernizing to bring them up to the standard of the times. Many new homes now are needed to replace those not worth repairing.

The protection of the health and safety of the people demands that this renovizing and building be done speedily. The Federal Government should take the initiative immediately to cooperate with private capital and industry in this real-property conservation. We must lay the groundwork for this effort before Congress adjourns its present session.

The purpose of the program is twofold: First, to return many of the unemployed to useful and gainful occupation; second, to produce tangible, useful wealth in a form for which there is great social and economic need.

Program Outlined.

The program consists of four major, interrelated divisions:

1. Modernization, repair and new construction.
2. Mortgage insurance.
3. Mortgage associations.
4. Building and loan insurance.

The modernization phase of the program will furnish National guidance and support for locally managed renovizing campaigns throughout the country and protection for home owners against unwarranted cost advances. For these purposes and to assure adequate financing at low cost and on moderate terms of repayment, a new Government agency is required.

Modernization of commercial and industrial structures is envisioned, as well as residential, but the new features providing governmental assistance are confined largely to home improvements.

Loans to individuals will be made by private agencies which will be insured by a governmental agency against loss up to a certain percentage of their advances. This issurance against loss on the rehabilitation loans will be met by the Government and will be confined to advances of credit that meet standards and conditions designed to protect both the home owners and the cooperating agencies.

To make funds available for new home construction and to improve the mortgage market, the second phase of the program is long-term mortgage financing. It provides mutual mortgage insurance under governmental direction to enable private agencies to make first-mortgage loans on newly constructed houres up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property, and to make new mortgages on existing homes up to 60 per cent of the appraised value of the property.

5 Per Cent Interest.

The loans will usually carry not more than 5 per cent interest and will be amortized by periodic payments over 20 years. Similar insurance arrangements are provided to help finance low-cost residential projects of the slum-replacement type.

The third phase provides for the incorporation of mortgage associations under strict Federal supervision to increase the amount of mortgage funds available in regions where interest rates are unduly high because sufficient local funds are lacking. The activities of these associations will be limited almost entirely to insured residential mortgages.

Insurance for share and certificate holders in building and loan associations, similar to the insurance provided for bank depositors, is the fourth phase of the program. These institutions are custodians of the funds of small savers, and it is essential that they should be given every reasonable protection. Insurance of this type is necessary in order to arrest any further drain on these institutions and to put them in a position to resume their normal useful functions.

I believe that the initiation of this broad and sound program will do much to alleviate distress and to raise perceptibly the standards of good living for many of our families throughout the land.

Roosevelt Rushes Drought Area Aid

rains ranging from showers to downpours fell, but were insufficient effectually to break the spell.

At his press conference, Relief Administrator Hopkins said that the drought situation was "serious."

"It has been going on in some places for three years, and farmers there are in a bad plight," he declared.

The White House statement indicated the Relief Administration will play a large part in aid plans. Hopkins told the President the FERA would purchase a "substantial" number of cattle in the areas, paying the farmers cash. The cattle will be butchered and canned and used for relief distribution.

It was recalled that the AAA was provided with a $50,000,000 fund with which to purchase cattle, and indications pointed to the use of this money for drought-aid cattle buying.

FERA to Aid.

The FERA probably will make available some of its funds in the program and will be called upon to increase its relief help to the stricken farm families.

In Congress, Representative Theodore Christianson (Republican), Minnesota, declared the drought was a "National calamity" and immediate and adequate succor must be provided for farmers and their stock. He asserted the crisis might necessitate a "recasting" of the whole Federal relief program.

Meeting as a caucus, House members chose a steering committee of nine to cooperate with Federal agencies in aid plans. Members were chosen from the hardest hit States and included: Sinclair and Jenckes (Democrats), Indiana; Gillette (Democrat), Iowa; Hoidale (Democrat), Minnesota; Hildebrandt (Democrat), South Dakota; Boileau (Republican), Wisconsin; Carpenter (Democrat), Nebraska; Wecks (Democrat), Illinois, and Ayers (Democrat), Montana.

Sinclair announced the committee would meet "within 24 hours" for action, but meanwhile President Roosevelt had heard his own committee's outline of action with approval indicated.

Lottery Winners May Be Published

Bill Favoring Churches Passed in House.

The House yesterday gave its sanction to a measure to permit newspapers to announce winners prizes in lotteries held by churches and like organizations, according to the Associated Press.

The proposal is designed to exempt such announcements from statutes forbidding that type of information from being carried in the mails.

Cotton Added To Commodity Exchange Bill

House Committee Decides to Place Southern Staple on List.

(Associated Press.)

The House Agriculture Committee yesterday decided to include cotton exchanges with grain markets in the Administration's commodities exchange control bill, a move which would lead to the imposition of Governmental regulation on virtually all of the Nation's trading marts.

Legislation to regulate stocks and securities markets already has been passed by both Senate and House and was sent to conference today for the settling of differences.

The companion measure to govern trading on grain markets was approved by the House Agriculture Committee last week, and subsequently added by President Roosevelt to legislation he wants passed before adjournment.

Cotton Originally Voted Out.

Originally cotton was in the commodity measure, but was voted out before the Agriculture Committee sent the bill to the Rules Committee. Chairman Jones (Democrat), Texas, of the former committee, plans to ask the Rules Committee today for legislative right-of-way to expedite the legislation.

The placing of the commodity bill by the President on his "must" list of legislative proposals has assured House passage. However, some trouble is looked for in the Senate if cotton is included.

Feared Speculators.

In approving the measure, the House Agriculture Committee said that with the regulation of trading in stocks and securities, it feared professional speculators would transfer their operations to grain exchanges.

A board composed of the Secretaries of Agriculture and Commerce and the Attorney General would make regulations for the commodity markets, including limits on the amount of future holdings individuals might deal in at any one time. It would outlaw "wash sales," "bucket shops," indemnity trading and other practices, and require the licensing of floor brokers.

House Bill Gives Mrs. Coolidge Frank

Measure Makes All Mail Pass Free.

The House decided yesterday that Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, widow of the former rPesident, should be able to send her letters without paying postage, the Associated Press reported.

It passed and sent to the Senate the Granfield bill which would give her the same privilege as that extended to all other rPesident's widows.

ed by her kidnapers, who apparently were frightened by the exhaustive search launched by the county, State and Federal officers throughout southern Arizona and the Mexican state of Sonora.

It was reported Federal authorities, dissatisfied with the way the case was handled, planned to impanel a Federal grand jury to investigate the case.

Hope Was Abandoned.

The return was effected while family and authorities alike despaired over ever finding her alive.

Last Thursday her father appealed to the kidnapers to accept $10,000 ransom, claiming it was all his family could raise "by mortgaging all earthly possessions."

June was target of the plot because of widespread belief her elderly grandfather, Bernabe Robles, had obtained great wealth from sale of his cattle ranch near here. It was discovered later, however, that most of his holdings were in property of which little cash could be realized.

City Promotion Group Starts FundCampaign

40 Prominent Business Men at Luncheon of Committee.

Forty prominent Washington business men attended the luncheon at the Washington Hotel yesterday opening the campaign for the Greater National Capital Committee fund, Lloyd B. Wilson, general chairman, presided.

Mr. Wilson told the meeting that the committee, now entering its fourth year of activity, has made for itself a place that is vital to the business interests of the city. He said he did not believe any business man would fail to see the need of keeping the city promotion work going.

Mr. Wilson set the minimum amount to be raised at $50,000. This money is to cover the budget of the Greater National Capital Committee during the coming fiscal year. He emphasized the fact that $50,000 is the minimum and believes that the amount raised will be considerably larger.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank and president of the Board of Trade, said that without doubt the work of the Greater National Capital Committee should be continued. He declared it is vital to the business interests of the city.

Others who spoke were George Keneipp, Claude W. Owen, former president of the Board of Trade; A. C. Case, one of the founders of the Greater National Capital Committee, and George Vass, vice president and cashier of the Riggs National Bank, who is canvassing the financial interests of the city in the drive.

Mr. Case stressed the importance of visitors as a source of permanent population. He pointed out that if the permanent population of Washington was increased by 100,000, it would mean an increase of $80,000,000 each year in the amount of money in circulation. He said that following the economic depression, important cities of the country are now awakening to the need of organized promotion.

Arthur J. Harnett, president of the Hotel Association, said that his group was in a fine position to see the excellent work being done by the Greater National Capital Committee.

Fugitive Murder Suspect Captured

Chief of Police Harry Reynolds, of Streator, sighted Okaren as he emerged from a farm house basement. He was badly scratched by barbed wire and undergrowth through which he plunged in his flight.

Ohio Smithies Plan Own Code; Survey Started

Hope National Group Will Grow and Bring Order to Trade.

Columbus, Ohio (U.P.).—Leave off reading of the threatening situations in Europe and the Orient and think back to the time when Main street was a double line of crude telephone poles, a ribbon of dusty street and the stamping ground for one-horse rigs, betasseled carriages and rumbling spring wagons.

Those were good days for the gentlemen of the forge. Sparks flew and iron shoes singed their way into the uplifted feet of horses.

The changing world took much from them. The recovery brought most business the NRA. But the shoers and smiths haven't even a code.

A National smiths' convention was held to formulate a code—for there is chiseling even in their work. But so few smiths had survived in a motorized world that not enough representatives attended to form a code.

Ohio smithies, however, have not given up hope. They met in Zanesville, coming from 20 counties, formed an organization, named a committee and ordered a survey.

They intended to come under the Ohio Recovery Act, the State's unit under NRA. They believe their example will be followed in other States and a National codified group will grow.

The depression hurt smithing because price cutting, special inducements to horse owners, careless credit, the addition of new mechanical services have been extended to the public cut-throat competition.

Later a permanent organization will be effected and officers chosen. Efforts are being made to extend the Scout movement throughout the Eastern Shore and to increase the number of troops in each county district.

Virginia Licenses Maimed Drivers If They Prove Fit

Richmond, May 14 (AP).—The loss of an arm or a leg does not necessarily prevent the legal operation of an automobile in Virginia.

The motor vehicle division disclosed today that one-armed motorists are being granted permits if they obtain a signalling device for use when they turn corners or stop.

Motorists with only one leg are required to use a device which enables them to operate clutch or brake pedal.

In all cases, however, the applicant is required to demonstrate that he can operate his car safely.

Lane Ponders On Entering Senate Race

Maryland's Attorney General May Engage in Democratic Primary.

Baltimore, May 14 (Spl.).—Returning today from a week-end tour of Western Maryland, Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of this city, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, reported that he was highly pleased by receptions accorded him during his trip.

Simultaneously, it was reported among political circles here that Attorney General William Preston Lane, jr., of Hagerstown, was considering entering the race for Democratic nomination for Senator.

Mayor Jackson began immediately to prepar his full ticket deciding who will join with him in waging political war on the fifth-term aspirations of Gov. Ritchie. As yet, the mayor has given no indication as to whom he favors for posts. His tour last week included a stop at Frederick, a visit to Hagerstown, where he spoke at the Mother's Day ceremonies of the Hagerstown Elks, and a halt at the convention of the League of American Pen Women's meeting in the Congressional Club in Montgomery County.

Saturday night, Mr. Lane announced that he would not be a candidate for reelection as attorney general, pleading that his private law practice in Hagerstown made it imperative that he leave the political arena.

Salisbury, Md., May 14 (Spl.). Wicomico County aided Washington County in preventing Maryland from having at least one month's clean bill of health in the hog world.

Pair Thought Over Sea on Way to Rome

Expect to Make Flight Across Atlantic in 40 Hours.

plane, Leonardo Da Vinci, from the Brooklyn airport in a perfect take-off at 6:25 a. m., Pond cried out to a handful of friends bidding them farewell.

Their monoplane—named after the great Italian artist-engineer who centuries ago tried to conquer the air with machines—carried 680 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for 45 hours.

The distance to Rome is 4,500 miles. The fliers expected to make it in 39 or 40 hours.

In Italy, the air ministry prepared two airports for the fliers: one, the Civilian Airport at Littorio; the other, the military base at Ciampino.

Due at 9 o'Clock Tonight.

If successful, the fliers were calculated to reach their destination around 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Theirs is the great circle route over the North Atlantic—the skyway emblazoned by Byrd, Acosta, Lindbergh, Earhart, Chamberlain, the Mollisons.

They were fully aware of the foggy weather between New York and the open ocean. But after waiting for 24 hours at the airport, Sabelli—an Italian-born, naturalized American—and Pond decided to take advantage of the tail winds and bright skies prevailing far out at sea.

Only once up the New England coast were they reported. Life-saving lookouts at Fletchers Neck, near Biddeford on the Maine coast, heard the roar of motors at mid-morning.

Reported Over Nova Scotia.

Later, a large monoplane, believed to be the Leonardo Da Vinci, was sighted high over Louisburg, Nova Scotia, at 3:40 p. m., Eastern standard time. Its color and markings could not be distinguished.

The Leonardo Da Vinci carries no sending wireless equipment, but has a receiving set. The fliers planned to listen in hourly for weather trends.

A dozen times in the last year, Pond—who started the ship-to-shore plane service from ocean liners several years ago with a trip from the Leviathan far below New York bay—and Sabelli prepared for their take-off.

But each time, adverse weather held them aground.

Today, it seemed as if their jinx was left behind. The skies were bright, in the rising sun, when Pond used only 3,000 feet of a 4,200-foot runway for a perfect take-off.

Despite the heavy load, the giant monoplane lifted easily, hovered low over Jamaica Bay, skimmed Rockaway Point and darted northeast toward the New England coast.

The plane's number, 13137, meant nothing ominous to Sabelli and Pond.

The Italian-American—who wore three religious medals pinned to a jacket autographed by Ethel Barrymore, Frank Hawks and Jimmy Doolittle—pointed to the license just before the take-off and said:

"See, 17 is always my lucky number. I was the thirteenth child in my family."

Miller Estate Hearing Is Set

Shenandoah Park Land Judgment Involved in Motion.

Front Royal, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of Leesburg, presiding in the Circuit Court of Rappahannock County, today fixed May 24, at 10 a. m., for the hearing of a motion to set aside the condemnation judgment of the Miller estate lands in Rappahannock County in the Shenandoah National Park proceedings pending in that county.

Counsel for W. H. Grannis charges that the three circuit court judges, appointed by former Gov. Pollard, who arbitrated the value of the timber on the Miller lands, claimed by Grannis, were affected or influenced by partiality or mistake of law or fact in making their findings, and that they heard testimony in his absence, disregarded his evidence altogether, denied him his right of cross-examination of witnesses and failed to give any consideration to his claim.

The three circuit court judges appointed as arbitrators at the request of the parties are Judges Philip Williams, Winchester; J. R. H. Alexander, Leesburg, and H. W. Bertram, Harrisonburg. Judge Alexander announced today that he will not preside at the hearing and will ask Gov. Peery to appoint some other judge to preside, and an order was entered to that effect.

Attorneys for the State Commission on Conservation and Development said today that there is not the slightest foundation of fact for the charges against the arbitrators, and that they would move for their dismissal at once. The arbitrators awarded approximately $22,000 to the Miller heirs for their lands in Rappahannock County.

Genial Critics Defend Choice Of the Judges

By Nelson B. Bell.

The Broadway pundits are still discussing the 1934 Pulitzer Prize awards with some asperity.

Among the more profound thinkers of the newspaper craft the consensus seems to be that Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland" should have received the badge of greatness just as the ostensible play judges, Austin Strong, Clayton Hamilton and Walter Prichard Eaton unanimously decided.

All concede its full meed of merit to Sidney Kingsley's "Men in White," upon which the invisible board of trustees of the Columbia University's School of Journalism finally bestowed the accolade, but with reservations.

Says Mr. Percy Hammond, the perceptive chronicler of the New York Herald-Tribune: "Both of them are good, as is proved by their prosperity. Although there is only a hint of mortgage in "Men in White," it contains a seduction and a conflict between the forces of near-right and near-wrong. Medicine ponders its problems in the play, debating in combined terms of science and the stage the puzzles that complicate the existence of the serious men in white. Had I been on the Pulitzer bench, I would have adjusted my wig gravely and pronounced an opinion in favor of 'Mary of Scotland.' But 'Men in White' is okay with me. It is first-class in its idea, slightly routine in the expression of its technical and esthetic emotions and a very superior mediocrity."

And the erudite and vocal Mr. Brooks Atkinson, of the New York Times, has this to say: "In the circumstances this column has a very sincere respect for 'Men in White.' But if the advisory board asks nothing more of a play than decent principles and practicable technique it is only a pat on the back for good conduct. For 'Men in White' is only journeyman theater at its best. When you begin to try it by what the Pulitzer standards ought to be you can scarcely ignore the meretriciousness of the story device, the character hokum of the seduction scene and the long arm of Pinero coincidence that brings the heroine and the fallen virgin together for the big scene in the operating room. This is not Pulitzer drama but the hocus-pocus of the stage, and if the Pulitzer advisory board were sincerely interested in the art of the drama they would know it."

The argument that Mr. Anderson was handicapped by the fact that he had won the coveted award last year with "Both Your Houses" is effectually nullified by an exhumation of the Pulitzer records which reveal that Eugene O'Neill won the prize two years in succession with "Beyond the Horizon" and "Anna Christie" early in his emergence as America's first playwright.

It is still this department's thought, as expressed a week ago yesterday, that all this spirited discussion occasioned by the sudden rebellion of the Pulitzer trustees is as fine a spring tonic as the theater could have found.

Having observed orthodox practice for as long as his intensely revolutionary nature can stand, Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's Theater, announces that "Stingaree" the first joint starring vehicle for Irene Dunne and Richard Dix since their memorable appearance together in Edna Ferber's "Cimarron," will be presented for the first time on any screen in the Fifteenth street house on Wednesday of this week.

"Stingaree" is reputed to be executed on as sweeping a scale as its predecessor with the same stars. The scene is Australia and the leading character a sort of Antipodean Robin Hood, who steals from the rich to aid the poor. The period of the story is the picturesque 70s; its author E. W. Hornung, creator of the famous "Raffles" stories that were dramatized to such good effect as a starring vehicle for the late Kyrle Bellew years ago.

The Imperishable Hit.

Speaking of Pulitzer Prize plays, in late September "The Green Pastures," that ebony entertainment that has banged away at theatrical records for the past five years, will commence its third and final tour of the United States and Canada.

At the conclusion of the coming pilgrimage—and that will not be until March 1935—the world-famous fable that Marc Connelly fashioned from Roark Bradford's book of sketches, "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun," will return to Broadway for a second extended engagement.

When first presented in New York, the play ran for 640 performances, the longest Broadway engagement of any play ever awarded the Pulitzer Prize. Except for "Street Scene," the Elmer Rice prize winner of several seasons ago, no other winner of the award ever has even crossed the 500-times mark.

Second Broadway Run.

The return engagement of "The Green Pastures" in New York, it is confidently expected by its sponsors, will last for at least a full year. At the end of this run a world tour is planned for this hardy old perennial.

Except for the three deaths that have vacated two characters in the play—two Gabriels and a Noah—the cast of "The Green Pastures" this coming season will be the same as has enacted the Connelly play continuously since its first performance in New York on February 28, 1930.

In all this time, Richard B. Harrison, the 70-year-old portrayer of the Deity, has never missed a single performance of the more than 1,500 given in New York and on the road.

Representatives Sol Bloom, William I. Sirovich and Isaac Bachrach will entertain theater parties at the National tonight for the first performance by the National Theater Players of "Welcome Stranger," the Aaron Hoffman comedy-drama, originally produced by George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris as a starring vehicle for George Sidney, of more immediate fame as costar with Chalie Murray in a long list of screen comedies.

For the first time in its history, the stock company presided over by Stephen E. Cochran will import a character star to assume a role which none of the regular members of the company is equipped to play. Robert C. Fischer, a distinguished Jewish actor, will appear in the Sidney role, with the entire roster of National Players in support. Freddy Sherman, popular juvenile, returns to the Players in this offering.

River Rides Renewed.

Friday night of this week will mark the official opening of the Potomac River excursion season. On that evening the Wilson Line steamer City of Washington will pull away from its pier at the Seventh street wharf for the first moonlight trip of the summer of 1934.

According to advance word, all will be merry on the dance deck, where Lou Berman and his boys will be playing all the latest tunes. Those who do not care to dance will find interesting diversion in watching the rays from the large searchlight pick out points of historical interest along both banks of the river.

Moonlight trips will be run every night during the summer, including Sunday, until Labor Day.

Ed Sullivan, New York columnist, who soon will make a New York stage appearance on his own account, was a week-end, back-stage caller on Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, headlining the vaudeville bill at Loew's Fox—just to say "hello," he explains, and to have a few more laughs growing out of the Sullivan-Lyon-Primo Carnera broadcast in New York the other night.

"——and Coffee at Daylight"

In the private projection room of the Fox Film Exchange today at 12 noon, which is practically the crack o' dawn in this gentlemanly profession, the local dramatic desks will be accorded a preview screening of Bing Crosby, Carole Lombard, Ethel Merman and Leon Errol in "We're Not Dressing."

Unfortunately, just at that hour, I'm afraid I will be!

Gayety

"THE POWDER PUFF REVIEW." Hirst-Lake production, starring George Broadhurst and Ann Corio, with Minnie Mae Moore, Jackie LeMar, Anna Smith, Darlin' Lucky, Evelyn Brooks, Eddie Innis, Harry Bentley, Fred Bishop, John Barry and Joe Forte. Staged by Frank Bryant. Reviewed Sunday matinee by W. A. Whitney.

It is about a year, now, since La Belle Corio last graced the local stage, and yesterday's appearance of the brunette beauty at the Gayety more than repaid for the length of time between visits, for burlesque has no Aphrodite more beauteous than Ann.

The all-too-short two numbers were visions of beauty, grace and charm; her songs coyly rendered and her dances—well, there IS only one Ann Corio!

George Broadhurst, costarring with the Corio, heads the menfolks, who are just funny enough to maintain a smooth-running performance. In his delineation of the cabaret inebriate, Broadhurst hits the high point of comedy and in his burlesque condensation of "White Cargo," where he is assisted by Anna Smith as the alluring Tondelayo, Joe Forte and Harry Bentley, he virtually epitomizes burlesque.

Harry Bentley and John Barry team up in an acceptable long-and-short combination. Forte plays the straight, and Fred Bishop furnishes the tenor warbling.

On the distaff side, Ann Smith and Jackie LeMar offer good specialty routines. Minnie Mae Moore is heard in many songs, and does her best work as part of the gypsy scene, in which she is assisted by the chorus. Evelyn Brooks reveals herself in the second part of the show, and Darlin' Lucky is seen in several numbers as the premiere ballerina.

Back From the British Studios

Altitude Mark Aim of Largest Free Balloon

New Craft Will Attempt to Ascend 15 Miles in Stratosphere.

The world's largest free balloon, seeking a new altitude record of 15 miles, wil soar into the stratosphere's blue heights this summer almost from the shadow of the great National memorial carved on Mount Rushmore, S. Dak.

The take-off point for the flight, arranged by the Army Air Corps and the National Geogroghic Society, was announced yesterday as a sheltered pocket in the Black Hills, 11½ miles southwest of Rapid City, S. Dak., and 7 miles from Mount Rushmore. Piloting the balloon will be Maj. William E. Kepner and Capt. Albert W. Stevens, of the Army Air Corps.

The flight will take place between June 15 and July 15, depending on weather conditions. The take-off site was chosen upon recommendation of the advisory committee of scientists for the flight. It is a grassy meadow 600 feet square and almost completely inclosed by hills and cliffs which will protect the balloon from destructive winds while it is being inflated.

Largest Ever Built.

The gas bag, largest free balloon ever constructed, will have a capacity the 3,000,000 cubic feet. In open country a breeze of only 5 miles an hour might endanger the take-off, but in the Black Hills pocket it is believed the balloon can be inflated to its full height of 300 feet without risk.

A Western take-off point was selected to insure the balloon returning to earth in open country after drifting Eastward with prevailing winds.

The Weather Bureau said dust storms, which might occur in the region unless the drought there is broken, would be unlikely to cloud the air more than one or two days at a time.

The exact date of the take-off will not be settled until probably 24 hours beforehand, the National Geographic Society said, as good weather is essential. Launching the huge bag is expected to be the most difficult problem ever faced with a free balloon. It will be three and one-half times larger than any other free balloon ever constructed, and will require nine hours to inflate.

Extensive Observations.

When inflated for the take-off the balloon will be only partially filled with hydrogen gas, which will give it the general shape of an exclamation mark, higher than a 27-story office building. Later, when it reaches the stratosphere, the increasing atmospheric pressure will expand the gas and fill out the balloon to spherical shape.

The most extensive scientific observations ever conducted in the stratosphere will be carried out by the crew in the metal gondola. They will study weather conditions at all levels, make photographs of the earth from various heights, measure cosmic rays, collect air samples at great heights, study solar radiation, electricity of the air and effects of altitude on radio transmission. A ton of scientific instruments will be carried.

If successful ni reaching their goal of 15 miles, the balloonists will exceed by about 3 miles the previous record height for manned balloons.

7 Anticrime Bills Receive House Backing

Senate Adoption of Report Will Send Measures to White House.

Seven Administration anticrime bills neared enactment yesterday when the House approved a conference report on the measures.

Senate adoption of the report will send the bills to the White House.

The major bills in the group include one making it a Federal crime to kill or assault Federal officers, another tightening the antikidnaping act, and a third making it unlawful for witnesses called in court actions to flee across State lines.

Meantime, a $3,00,000 war chest to provide men and guns for a Nation-wide battle against crime was under scrutiny by Budget Director Douglas.

300 To Be Armed.

The fighting funds have been asked by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings to arm a corps of 300 new Federal agents. It was believed the deficiency appropriation bill would contain a request for substantially this amount.

If the money is voted, Cummings will equip his men with powerful armor-plated cars, radio scout cars and an arsenal of the latest machine guns, automatic rifles, gas bombs and other weapons.

Cummings, having pointed out that the criminals under arms number more men than contained in the United States Army, is anxious for the extra money. New duties will devolve on the justice operatives through broader Federal laws and an expanded force is necessary for effective enforcement.

If John Dillinger is not captured by the time Congress votes the money, the men and arms will come in handy. Failure of the Federal agents to capture the gunman in Wisconsin has been attributed to lack of an armored car.

Force to Be Expanded.

Should Congress vote the funds, Cummings plans to expand the present Bureau of Investigation force from 419 men to about 700. He will buy 20 armored cars and 200 fast automobiles equipped with two-way short-wave radio.

At present most of the automobiles used by the Federal men are old cars seized from bootleggers in prohibition operations. At the height of the recent Dillinger hunt, the Justice Department was forced to dismantle an exhibit of machine guns captured from gangsters to arm its men.

To train the new men and also to advise State and local police forces regarding latest developments in crime detection, the Justice Department plans to establish a National institute of criminology. Criminal research would be centralized there. The present department school for training Federal agents would be expanded to form the nucleus of the new institution.

Luckies are All-Ways kind to your throat

WHEREVER the finest tobaccos grow—in our own Southland, in Turkey, in Greece—all over the world, we gather the very Cream of the tobacco Crops for Lucky Strike. And that means only the clean center leaves. The center leaves are the mildest leaves—they taste better and farmers are paid higher prices for them. These clean center leaves are the only ones used in making Luckies. Then "It's toasted"—for throat protection. And every Lucky is fully packed with these choice tobaccos—made round and firm, free from loose ends—that's why Luckies "keep in condition"—why you'll find that Luckies do not dry out—an important point to every smoker. Naturally, Luckies are always in all-ways kind to your throat.

The Cost Of Regulation.

Public regulation of private business is constantly expanding, and as it grows the cost of administering regulatory laws grows also. To insure protection against excessive or wasteful dissipation of funds by boards and commissions, the amounts spent should be carefully scrutinized and audited by outside agencies. Safeguards of this sort are conspicuously absent from the Senate bill establishing an independent commission to regulate the stock exchanges.

The cost of regulation here would be assessed against the exchanges instead of being appropriated out of public funds. Objection to this procedure could be discounted if regulation were limited to activities directly affecting the assessed groups. In this case, however, the stock exchanges would be called upon to defray the expenses of a regulatory system that extends far beyond the confines of the exchanges and provides for extensive control over industrial corporations whose stocks are listed on the exchanges.

As Senator Steiwer has pointed out, this provision means not only assessment of a private interest to provide regulation for the public good, but also assessments on one private interest to provide regulation of other groups with which that interest is not identified. The injustice of such a proceeding in principle is patent. Its oppressiveness in practice will largely depend on the attitude assumed by the regulatory agency.

Under the Senate bill, the customary safeguards against irresponsible administrative spending have been omitted. The commission would be empowered to disburse the sums collected from the stock exchanges without submitting its accounts to the scrutiny of either the Budget Bureau or the Comptroller's Office. Furthermore, the bill places no restrictions on the number of the commission's employes or the amounts paid in salaries, nor does it set an upper limit to the total assessments which may be levied upon the exchanges. Since employes of the commission would be exempted from civil service tests of eligibility, the dangers of a cavalier dissipation of other people's money are apparent.

Notwithstanding the warning from Senatorial critics of these provisions of the stock exchange bill, amendments designed to regulate the spending activities of the commission itself were rejected.

"It is a reckless grant of power," as Senator Borah said, to free an independent agency from supervision of the amounts paid as compensation to its employes." I know that it will lead to results which those who are responsible will deeply regret hereafter."

The Bear Immortal.

For thousands of children throughout the English-speaking world, for many more thousands who were children a few years ago, there comes sad news from London. Winnie the Pooh is dead.

In real life Winnie was a Canadian brown bear. She had been the mascot of that famous Canadian regiment the "Princess Pats." For the past decade and more, she lived in the Zoo of the British capital and, until stricken by paralysis in 1932 at the age of 18, was the tame darling of every "young visiter."

But to legions who had never seen her in the flesh, Winnie was vicariously even better known as the original of that "Winnie-the-Pooh" made famous by A. A. Milne's book of that name. What if therein the animal was a Teddy Bear? It was a Teddy Bear alive as only a child's Teddy Bear can be—and it was one of a glorious, though diminutive, animal-company. Already the members of that company have taken their places with the White Rabbit and the Dormouse among literary immortals.

This, indeed, should console the mourners. If there lies dead in London the Winnie of real life, the far more real Winnie of the juvenile classic lives on to "pooh" and make merry forever with the equally immortal Kanga and Eeyore, Piglet and Heffalump.

Inoculation For Dogs.

City authorities at Hackensack, N. J., have set a good example for other communities. Having found that several dogs were suffering from rabies, they ordered a complete quarantine and compulsory inoculation of all the dogs in the community.

Immediately, of course, there were protests. Dog owners, like the owners of any property, resent being told what they may or may not do with their possessions. But dogs, which have a natural instinct to roam, are a concern of many beside their owners. Although scares over rabies are often exaggerated, the menace nevertheless exists. There is, however, a simple and effective method of preventing rabies which causes the pet about five minutes of minor discomfort and which costs very little.

As far as we know there is no hint of a single case of rabies in Washington. There certainly is at present no need for quarantine here. But the pet owner, who has at heart the best interests of his dog and his neighbor's dog, not to mention himself and his neighbor, will do well, at the approach of warm weather, to guard against hydrophobia by the easy method of inoculation. The sense of security will more than repay the cost and the slight inconvenience involved.

Insuring Real Estate.

Now that President Roosevelt's housing program has been outlined to Congress the reason for repeated delay in its announcement is apparent. Instead of being a simple plan to stimulate building, it is a highly complicated and extensive program of real estate financing. In addition to promoting home construction, modernization and repairs, the President asks Congress to provide mortgage insurance, to create a system of Federal mortgage associations and to insure share and certificate holders in building and loan associations.

The program would be administered by a home credit insurance corporation with capital stock, amounting to $200,000,000, to be supplied by the Treasury. A voluminous bill introduced by Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate Banking Committee, would give this agency power to insure "approved" financial institutions against losses resulting from credits extended to home owners. As in the case of the farm and home mortgage relief plans, the Government would not become a direct lender, but would guarantee private credit agencies against loss up to a certain percentage.

A second phase of the program is long-term mortgage financing. The President favors "mutual mortgage insurance under Government direction to enable private agencies to make first mortgage loans on newly constructed houses up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property and to make new mortgages on existing homes up to 60 per cent of the appraised value of the property." In regions where interest rates are high, or funds are lacking, mortgage associations would be set up, under supervision of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, to lend money upon and deal in real estate.

"Insurance for share and certificate holders in building and loan associations, similar to the insurance provided for bank depositors," says the President's message, "is the fourth phase of the program." He considers this step necessary "to arrest any further drain on these institutions and to put them in a position to resume normal, useful functions."

Considered as a whole, these sweeping measures are comparable to the financial labyrinth built up under the Farm Credit Administration to finance agriculture. It appears that the Administration intends virtually to underwrite the real estate business. The Government has already assumed extensive contingent liabilities in refinancing farm and home mortgages and guaranteeing bank deposits. Pressing emergencies in each of these fields induced Congress to adopt measures of questionable soundness. Now the Administration contemplates use of the same methods, not to avert a crisis, but to stimulate the construction industry.

No one aware of the extent of unemployment in the building trades would minimize the importance of reviving this industry. Yet some of the means by which the Administration attempts to bring about this result are fundamentally unsound. The whole program puts expediency ahead of reliable business principles. Before the Treasury is thus involved in the real estate business Congress should at least make certain that unwise legislative impediments to the flow of capital into industries of this kind have been removed.

Artists In Uniform.

Economically and socially the Russian experiment may have done worlds of good, but artistically it seems to have been a failure. As John Reed, sensitive and sensible reporter of the revolution, once said, "This class struggle raises hell with your poetry."

If we are to believe the evidence presented by Max Eastman in his new book, "Artists in Uniform," the attempt to regiment factory hands and farmers may have done much toward the material rehabilitation of the country, but the Russian program of regimentation of artists has been disastrous.

Of course Mr. Eastman is a confirmed Trotskyite and hates Stalin. Perhaps his exciting book, the main thesis of which is the necessary separation of art from propaganda, may itself seem to savor more of the latter than of detached criticism. But essentially it makes out an excellent case against literary regimentation. It shows the soul of Russian artists withering under the stiff uniforms of a Cause.

American writers have not yet all gone over to the ranks of the propagandists. But many members of the comfortable middle class, suffering twinges of conscience and desiring to be in the thick of things, have listened to the arguments demanding a proletarian literature. The results, in most cases, have been sorry affairs. Strange as it may seem, the attempt of our writers to become proletarian over night has produced a group of literary snobs, who spout the dialectic of Karl Marx as the only way to salve their uneasy minds.

Tetriakov, the revolutionist, foresaw a day when literature would be made in the workshop. "We can't wait forever," he said, "while the professional writer tosses in his bed and gives birth to something known and useful to himself alone. We assume that book production can be planned in advance like the production of textiles and steel." The result of this theory was Russia's greatest tragedy; suicide followed suicide among the poets, and there was no literature to compensate the deaths.

Artists in any uniform are sorry figures and the attempt to regiment poets or painters in any cause is bound to be disastrous. Those critics who would regiment American writers would do well to read this book and see the effects the process has had in Russia.

An Unstopped War.

Publication of the report of the League of Nations' commission to the Chaco has coincided with a bitter intensification of the long war of attrition between Bolivia and Paraguay in that area.

Last week-end Paraguayan planes bombed the Bolivian positions for hours in reply to Bolivian threats of dropping high explosives on Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay. At the same time the Bolivian government announced that if Paraguay uses poison gas "such reprisals as may be deemed suitable" will be undertaken. In short, the protracted hostilities in South America can no longer be slightingly described as bush-whacking. What is sometimes referred to as "civilized warfare" is in full blast between these two countries of similar culture, race and language.

To terminate what the league commission calls this "inhuman and criminal" struggle it is recommended that the Great Powers declare an embargo on the shipment of all munitions to the belligerents. Such an embargo, undoubtedly, would do much to mitigate the growing horror of the present war. Both countries have throughout obtained the great bulk of their military equipment from abroad. Yet the suggestion, though merciful and sound, also throws into relief the deeper problems presented by the Chaco hostilities. In the state of frenzy to which Bolivians and Paraguayans have worked themselves, fighting might well continue if cold steel had to be substituted for bombs and chemicals. And, beyond that, it may well be asked whether the Great Powers can properly enforce on these small belligerents a form of pressure which they would bitterly resent if applied by others to themselves.

Though admirably drafted and unquestionably impartial, the chief impression conveyed by this league document is the weakness of present international machinery for the preservation of peace. It is dubious whether this machinery can stop a particularly senseless war between two minor countries. It is certain that the method recommended there would be unworkable for general application.

League organization, once feared by some as setting up a dominating super-state, is seen in the test to be much more pathetic for its weakness than dangerous for its strength. In fact the chief advance brought by the war in the Chaco is that it has furthered a cooperative approach by the peace systems of the league and of the United States, which individually have proved helpless to cope with even this relatively minor example of international anarchy.

Foreign Bond Defaults.

The Institute of International Finance has issued a report analyzing the status of foreign bond issues. It estimates that approximately $3,000,000,000 of the $8,200,000,000 of foreign dollar bonds now outstanding are in default in respect to interest payments. As some of these bonds were originally sold abroad and large amounts have been repurchased at bargain prices, the amounts still held by Americans are placed at from $5,500,000,000 to $6,000,000,000, with the amount in default close to $2,000,000,000.

This impressive total gives an exaggerated impression of the extent of the losses suffered by American investors in foreign securities. It will be a long time before it will be possible to estimate with an approach to accuracy the cost of our ventures into the foreign investment field. Difficulties in transferring payments abroad have made it impossible for many solvent debtors to transfer amounts due. Germany, for example, heads the list of countries in default on dollar bonds, with the sums involved totaling about $876,000,000. Transfers have not been entirely suspended on these bond issues, however, and many debtors are paying in full in nontransferable funds. Moreover, in over 50 per cent of all the cases listed, some provision is being made for partial payment.

Given a revival of world trade, stabilization of currencies and removal of the exchange restrictions and controls that have prevented solvent companies and individuals from meeting their obligations abroad, the American investor will find that he has not suffered as severe losses as the default showing would indicate. With full allowance however, for favorable contingencies, the record is undoubtedly a distressing one. It testifies to the rashness with which the American investing public surrendered its capital without giving thought to the complications that would arise when lending ceased and repayments had to be made out of the resources of debtor countries instead of with the aid of new borrowed funds.

Mile Posts

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

REGULAR AEROPLANE passenger service was started between San Francisco and Oakland, Calif., a distance of 6.7 miles. Mayor James Rolph, jr., was the first passenger carried.

WILLIAM MARCONI announced that recent wireless telephone experiments resulted in attaining an apparatus which was capable of telephoning a distance of 100 miles. Prior to this test they had spoken successfully over a distance of 33 miles.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, acting upon sensational charges made by the Senate District Committee's investigation into Washington's alleged real estate combine, began its own investigation into the financing operations of the F. H. Smithy Co. and others mentioned in the report.

SURROGATE JAMES A. FOLEY was elected successor to the late Charles F. Murphy as leader of Tammany Hall. Only two of the 70 members of Tammany's executive committee voted against him.

SENATOR SMITH (Democrat) South Carolina, introduced a bill providing for the creation of agricultural associations with the power to lend money on farm products, limit production and market commodities, the measure being designed as a compromise upon which the whole strength of the farm bloc could be centered.

Birth Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What has come over the self-advertised "most progressive" paper in Washington? What has happened to the "modern" readers who criticized me severely for deriding the "forward-looking" Margaret Sanger? Where is Mr. Quinn, and Mr. Wilson, and "Birth Control," with The Post champions of the drug and chemical companies who would make bigger and better profits from the degrading perversions of human faculties?

The Washington Post and its "moderns" overlooked a great chance to blast away at the "conservatives in morality" when it did not editorialize the April 30 dispatch from New Castle, Del. May I recall the dispatch's contents?

A certain Henry E. Snavely, superintendent of schools, was ousted by the board of education because he wished to teach birth control as well as sex hygiene in the schools. According to the article, Snavely contended people "must face facts for theories of a bygone age, for the day is past when purity in the older sense can be maintained." He also said that "the automobile and the new freedom granted youth have made external control of conduct virtually impossible."

Holding our comment, we pass to the board's criticism. Newman T. Booth, its president, criticized Snavely's attitude and on the grounds that sex hygiene should be taught on the foundation of "individual decency and purity of life." Splendid. But, when Mr. Snavely added that sex instruction was necessary because "several girl students were expectant mothers and the moral situation had to be improved" he certainly let the cat out of the bag!

Now, here is a situation that is rather difficult for the "moderns" to face. After all, if one's daughter is going to live the life of the "new freedom," she should get the necessary information from her parents. And if she doesn't want the information, it shouldn't be forced on her at school. She has some rights!

Another angle. As long as "purity in the older sense" can no longer be maintained, I am surprised that the board of education should be aroused against Mr. Snavely. What an injustice to a man who is all for progress, all for modernity, all for Sangerism! Will these old fogies be allowed to impede the march of progress by pretending that their daughters can ride in automobiles and still remain pure? Will they be permitted to oust educators who do the children a great service by destroying their ideals and giving them a "realistic" attitude toward life? Come, come, Mr. Editor, where is the old fighting spirit? Let's issue a clarion call to Mr. Quinn, and Mr. Wilson, and "Birth Control" and put those Delaware upstarts in their places!

Washington Traffic Hazards.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Bruner's article in The Post of May 9 has interested me very much.

I made the observation during a visit to Washington last October-November that Washington traffic was the most unsatisfactory, disgraceful and dangerous (especially from the pedestrian's point of view) of any of the large cities of the country. Since I left here last November I have visited New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Orleans, St. Louis, Houston, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Wichita, Mexico City, and I am frank to say that from such opportunities as I have had of observing in each of the foregoing cities, traffic conditions in Washington are still far more deplorable and unsatisfactory, not to say "dangerous," than in any of the cities mentioned. It has seemed to me that the pedestrians would be justified in forming some sort of a protective society, to force some kind of modification and other changes in the traffic regulations tending toward their own (the pedestrians') greater safety.

Of course, one must realize that conditions in Washington are peculiarly difficult—with the huge number of Government employes who crowd the streets at opening and closing hours; the huge number of these same employes who drive machines; the large number of tourists—with and without machines—who visit the Nation's Capital; the many "circles" around which traffic from avenues and streets must pass, &c. But these are perhaps explanations only.

Perhaps statistics, based upon number of inhabitants, drivers, &c., compared with other large cities would not bear out my observations. But I do know that whether in a taxi or walking I feel more safe on the streets of any other large city in the country than in Washington.

A Silver Suggestion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am very much interested in silver legislation by this Congress, but from reading the papers it seems difficult for the leaders in silver legislation, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Morgenthau, to agree on a silver bill. I would like to propose a measure which is perfectly sound in principle and which I believe would give us a world dollar, as follows:

That the Treasurer be authorized and instructed to buy 50,000,000 or more ounces of silver each month until the total value of the silver in the United States Treasury equals the total value of gold in the Treasury according to market prices of gold and silver.

That by buying or selling gold or silver the total value of each be maintained at or near the same amount.

That when specie is demanded for currency, the holder of the currency be paid 50 cents worth of gold and 50 cents worth of silver. In other words, that every dollar of our currency be considered as backed by 50 cents worth of silver and 50 cents worth of gold.

That no fixed value per ounce be placed upon either gold or silver, letting the parity between the metals be determined by the law of supply and demand.

Suppressed?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The friends and champions of repeal take the cake. Felix Bruner, in The Post of May 9, writes that the amazing increase in auto fatalities can not be laid to repeal because liquor didn't come back to the District until March.

The first well-known self-deception was that as much booze was drunk during prohibition as before—yet, it didn't return until March. The second was that, once made legal, the increase in quantity and quality (hear, hear) would decrease the total consumed, and the third, that a drunk filled with lawful liquor could be more easily "controlled" than his bootleg brother.

Now we behold the apostles of personal liberty kidding themselves that an "alleged" (reporters don't ever dare to omit that word) drunk is generally the victim of some bigoted persecutor and ignore the fact that in more than half the accidents due to drink the condition of the driver—or the pedestrian—is carefully suppressed.

Hoi Polloi and Art.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a perfect specimen of Philistinism pushed to its ultimate I submit the statement of Mr. Roy North, Deputy Third Assistant Postmaster General, quoted in The Washington Post of May 7: "What is art, compared with sentiment?"

Let it go that we must always suffer such opinions from hoi polloi. Let it go that poor Whistler must twist and squirm in his grave. The really terrifying thing is that today the masses, of which Mr. North is obviously symbolical, are in power.

There was a time, even in the United States, when such people submitted to the rule of intelligent minorities. But that time is passed. Today, with the arrogance of the people they have overthrown, they are imposing upon the world their opinions and their standards.

May I suggest that all those who are nauseated by Mr. North and his kind read a single short volume entitled "The Revolt of the Masses," written by the distinguished Spanish philosopher, Ortega y Gasset? In it the real problem is clearly stated for the first time, I think, and an eminently sane solution to it offered.

Federal Annual Leave Cuts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Cutting in half the Federal employes annual leave was both a mistake and an injustice. It is not alleged, nor has it been proved, that this measure saves anything for the Government. I am informed that not one employe was released because of the saving in time and that not one additional employe would have to be hired if a full restoration of leave were made. Since the curtailment saves nothing, its continuance represents only ignorance or pettiness.

The great majority of Government employes are away from their actual homes, where they have relatives and other interests, and almost all of them are at least potential voters. The leave curtailment has made it impossible for many of them to return home once a year and very inconvenient for any of them to do so. These circumstances alone make the continuance of the present law a very serious handicap.

Government employes hope that before Congress adjourns it will relent and remove this uneconomic and unjust law from the books.

AN OLD EMPLOYE.

Editor's Plight.

Joseph Paul Gobbels, the minister of enlightenment and propaganda in Adolf Hitler's government, recently asked the German newspapers to put a little more life into their columns. He said the press had become dull and monotonous, and suggested that not only might the monotony be relieved by occasional criticism of the Nazi regime, but also that such criticism would probably prove useful to the government. The critical comment, he added, would obviously have to be "constructive," which goes to show that our own Messrs. Johnson, Richberg, Ickes et al. are not alone in their enlightened progressivism.

But so successfully had the Nazis cowed the German press that only one journal dared to take advantage of the minister's graciousness. This was the Grunepost, a popular newspaper with a wide circulation among the farmers. Its editor took Herr Gobbels at his word. He began by publishing an editorial suggesting that Herr Gobbels could greatly improve his usefulness if he would eliminate some of the miles of red tape in which his department had bound itself.

No second editorial was published. The Grunepost was promptly suspended for three months, which really meant that it was being put out of business. And its editor was just as promptly hauled off to a concentration camp, doubtless for being insufficiently "constructive."

The Post Impressionist

"England Expects—"

Postoffice, Tuesday.

ANYHOW, Great Britain is safe. After "the changes and chances" of the recent past, you wouldn't recognize most European countries if you walked right into them on Unter den Linden or at the Spasskiye Vorta. During the last few weeks, fears have been uttered, within hearing of the American State Department, that the British Isles were already, though as yet covertly, going the same way.

We are happy to assure our readers that these fears are unfounded. We have it from the Column's own Special Commissioner, lately arrived at the Anglo-Saxon capital.

"What a place—what a place!" she writes. "I am mad about London." And she is distinctly not the kind of person to be mad about London were London mad.

If London is sane, London is unchanged. Now, London's nerves have always been atune with all England's. Therefore, the British nation is unaltered.

For what, as Renan asked, is a nation? He reached a conclusion correctly complicated—for a scholar. Yet everybody knows that a nation is a state of mind. France is culture and the arts. Germany was kultur and the sciences. England is good sportsmanship, good service and no damned sentimental nonsense, sir.

Well, has England's sporting spirit lessened even a little?

In our times, when you rose betimes at an English country house, you inevitably found your host halfway through the buffet-breakfast and dressed for hounds, or grouse, or fishes. Regardless of the weather, he would greet you:

"Lovely morning—let's go out and kill something."

So also now our Special Commissioner writes us that Parliament the other day postponed debates upon such trivial questions as unemployment and armament, for the passage of a Sports Act, especially intended to regulate gunning after the antediluvian Monster of Loch Ness.

Good service?

There was the era when a Labor Government ruled, and there was that story of the young man down from London to visit his Tory father lately defeated for the Commons. The y. m., at the house of one of his father's neighbors, inquired:

"Who's your rather well-mannered under-butler that just served the cocktails?"

The hostess gave the name.

"Ah, yes, of course," said the y. m. "He's the johnny who beat my governor in the bye-election, isn't he?"

Or, if you consider that dubious, take this:

During the 1914 autumn our bedroom overhung the North Sea, close by Scarborough. We had a more English maid than any anywhere off the American screen: A straight-fronted personage named, honestly, Binns. Every morning at 8:10 she bore tea to our couch. She bore it at 8:10 one fateful morning as on every other. Had our orders been for 8:30, she would not have brought it until then—and we, who could sleep through any exterior noise, would have missed the show.

"Good morning, sir."

That, according to ritual, woke us. "Good morning, Binns. Any news?"

"Well, sir, they do seem to be bombarding Scarborough."

We asked a foolish early-morning question: "Who are bombarding Scarborough?"

Said Binns: "I expect it would be the Germans, wouldn't it, sir?"

And she passed, unhurried, from the room.

Now, under a date of the last days in April, thus writes our Special Commissioner from London:

"Last week an epileptic drove his car into a crowd of people in front of Buckingham Palace. He killed one person and hurt two more. Also he knocked down the bearskin-hatted sentry whose duty it was to pace back and forth before the palace gate. That sentry replaced his bearskin and, heedless of the dead and dying, resumed his even march."

But is there a deeper danger, a change not of the English habit, but in the English heart? Shifting from sentiment to sentimentality, much of Europe has run Left toward Bolshevism, Right toward Fascism — mistaking, the philosophers say, false mass-charity for true collective benevolence. And we have all heard rumors of a Communist camaraderie increasing in London, of a pseudo-Mussolinism growing under Sir Oswald Mosley's tender care.

Now these fears also our Special Commissioner allays. Nobody speaks more surely for the English middle class than does that novelist and dramatist Somerset Maugham. The other evening, at dinner, he sat next to a lady who confesses to having been "in one of those disgusting moods of loyalty defending rather lovable mediocrities" and, presumably, defending the new political sentimentalism. The Commissioner reports that Maugham retorted:

"Much as I like sitting next to you, I shall deny myself that pleasure in future lest I again get splashed with the milk of human kindness!"

So, as fundamentally now as when Nelson mentioned it, "England expects every man to do his duty." And so, now as then, England is not being disappointed.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

OUR Mr. Thurston in his "Politics and People" column has written of the National implications in Pennsylvania's primary today, but I think there is one important implication that he has entirely overlooked. Among other things, the primary will show in some degree whether people are really competent to govern themselves. With our various "ists" and "isms" in the political thought just now there is considerable talk of Fascism, you know. In my humble opinion, should Mr. G. Pinchot be selected as the Republican candidate for Senate the argument for Fascism or a dictatorship would be considerably advanced, at least in Pennsylvania.

BARGERON.

The Pennsylvania voters have given us many a laugh in our day. They have done some mighty funny things. But the funniest yet may be the selection of Mr. Pinchot on the ground that he is a supporter of Mr. Roosevelt and that such action would, therefore, be helping the President. If the voters do this, they will cause our sides literally to ache. And he, being able to appreciate a good joke, I am sure that no one will laugh heartier than Mr. Roosevelt himself.

• • • •

I don't know, of course, but I feel confident in saying that if there is one thing in this world that Mr. Roosevelt can do without it is the support or friendship of Mr. G. Pinchot. He might not like the interpretation which would in some quarters be put upon Mr. G. Pinchot's defeat, the interpretation that it was indirectly a vote against him, but I am inclined to believe that he would be willing to stand this temporary discomfort.

Mr. Roosevelt has expressed admiration and friendship for many people. He has said, in fact, that he needed the assistance of many of them. But if ever in his long career he has expressed any of these attitudes as regards Mr. G. Pinchot it has not come within my ken.

• • • •

We have, instead, something to the direct contrary to be guided by. When he was at Warm Springs in 1932 or early 1933, just before he took office, Mr. Roosevelt was discussing plans for his inaugural. There were two prominent negatives that he laid down. One was that the cadets and midshipmen from West Point and Annapolis could not participate because of the expense involved and the other was that there should be no riding up the avenue on a white horse by Mr. G. Pinchot. He didn't mention the gentleman by name or even intimate that it was Mr. G. Pinchot to whom he was referring. But he so worded his ban that we knew that the Pennsylvania Governor was the one he had in mind.

Four years previously the Pennsylvania Governor had ridden up the avenue in such prominence that there was a question as to whether the parade was not for him.

• • • •

It is a fact that Mr. G. Pinchot knows as well as anyone Mr. Roosevelt's lack of dependence upon him, and yet he campaigns in Mr. Roosevelt's name in such a way that anyone who is really dependent upon him is in one dickens of a fix. It is just about as politically poverty stricken as a man can be.

It appears, though, that Senator George Norris is in that fix. He needs Pinchot. He wants him to be not only selected in the primary but to be sent to the Senate in November. The Senator has been up in Pennsylvania telling the voters this. It is most unfortunate, in my opinion, for the Progressive cause. It is, indeed, hard up.

The truth is that the Progressives in their ambition to build up their group are for anything that will carry their label. Mr. G. Pinchot says he is a Progressive, therefore, the Progressives want him to come to the Senate. They are like a lodge that is not careful about the members it chooses so long as they will learn the password and pay their dues.

I suppose if they were asked to explain in just what they consider Mr. G. Pinchot progressive, they would reply that he is progressive in his views. They overlook the fact that his main views are to stay in office; that what he really is, is a sham.

Two Men Arrested In Highway Crash

Westminster, Md., May 14 (Spl.).—Three men were jailed here following an accident yesterday when a gasoline truck, driven by Lawrence R. Yingling, Westminster, collided with an automobile driven by William P. Miller, Woodbine, near here.

State Officer B. C. Mason charged the truck driver with driving under the influence of liquor and reckless driving, while Miller was charged with operating a car without a driver's license. Charles J. Yingling, a passenger in the truck, was charged with drunken and disorderly conduct.

Vernon Hill, Sykesville, riding in the automobile, was thrown through the windshield and suffered severe lacerations. Earl Welsh, Woodbine, and William Karnauff, Sykesville, also riding with Miller, escaped with only minor injuries.

Washington Duty Hits D.A.R. Affair

Richmond, May 14 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt today informed the De Grasse Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, that neither she nor the President will be able to attend ceremonies at Yorktown, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Roosevelt explained, in a message received here, that she and the President must receive a group of Belgians at the White House on the day of the Yorktown affair.

She was to have been guest of honor at the unveiling of a D. A. R. marker on the grave of Mrs. Phoebe Roosevelt, first president of the chapter, and a distant relative of the President and his wife.

Bausell Faces Second Trial

Judge in Murder Case Refuses Venue Change.

Wytheville, Va., May 14 (AP). Trial of Bernace Bausell on a charge of the murder of T. Eugene Cornett near Rural Retreat last January 13 was started this morning, after Bausell and his father, Henry F. Bausell, Lebanon newspaper publisher facing a similar charge, had been denied a change of venue.

Selection of a jury from a special venire of 50 was started and the first four examined were given a place in the panel.

Three weeks ago the Bausells were acquitted on a charge of killing Virginia Cornett Bausell, estranged wife of the younger defendant who fell in the same gun battle at the Cornett home, in which her father, T. Eugene Cornett, was slain.

The defendants were brought here this morning from Roanoke, where they have been held in custody since the previous trial. Before proceedings got under way this morning the court room was cleared, and as spectators were readmitted they were searched for arms. It was explained this precaution was taken in line with allegations in the defense petition for a change of venue. The defense noted an exception to the court's decision denying the change.

Spring Court Term Opens in Frederick

Bar Association Passes Resolutions on Death of E. S. McBride.

Frederick, Md., May 14 (Spl.).—The spring term of the Circuit Court opened this morning with Chief Judge Hammond Urner on the bench.

Illness prevented Judge Arthur D. Willard from being present. The opening session was occupied in marking cases for trial and adopting resolutions by the Bar Association on the death of Edgar S. McBride, its former president.

The resolutions, prepared by H. Dorsey Etchison, Milton G. Irner, jr., Edward S. Delaplaine, Leo Weinberg and H. Kieffer Delauter, reviewing the career of Mr. McBride as a citizen, lawyer, banker and churchman, were followed by a tribute from Judge Urner. Prof. Thomas Joseph Norris, member of the faculty of Mount St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Colleges, near Emmitsburg, and James Shannahan, student at the former college, were given the bath of citizenship.

Crops in Virginia Unhurt by Drought

Richmond, May 14 (AP).—Henry M. Taylor, Federal-State agricultural statistician, said today that rainfall deficiency has not impaired agricultural prospects in Virginia, although cold weather late in April damaged peaches and apples and delayed planting ten days.

The cold weather, he said, delayed the growth of fall-sown grains and pastures, "but the frequent rains supplied an abundance of moisture so crops will make rapid improvement with warm weather."

Frosts and freezes were said to have caused some damage to apples during the last week in April, but the loss was mostly limited to poorly located orchards.

The National Gallery

SOL BLOOM, Representative from New York. George Washington's alter ego. At heart a showman and promoter, an activity that had its germ on the midway plaisance of the Chicago Fair, 1893, when he did a thriving business as proprietor of a "peep show." Subsequent forays in theatrical ventures, the publishing of song writer's effluvia and a side trip into newspaperdom led him to the serious study of the "Father of His Country." Poking with true reverence amidst the hallowed bones of George Washington, he conceived a historic thirst he was to quench as associate director of the George Washington Bicentennial celebration. This was his chance. He made good. The Nation became Washington conscious as thousands received little statues of the soldier-statesman "with the courtesy of Sol Bloom." Bluff, direct, good-natured, many of the Capital's first halls have fed him soup and enjoyed his squat, unabashed rotundity. Sol is a soldier, thirty-second degree Mason, Shriner, Elk, Moose, Red Man and a member of the International Order of B'nai B'rith. Pekin, Ill.—64 years ago—first cradled the future member of "many clubs and institutions."

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

If He Trades a Blind Horse, He Should Get a Cripple for It

By Robert Quillen

Bill Jones was sometimes called a crank because he believed in the sanctity of verbal contracts, but there was nothing peculiar about him except the fact that he kept his word and expected others to do as much.

Having obtained bids from several concerns, he gave the job to a man who made great promises.

"I shall give you the best material and the best workmanship," said the man, "and finish the job in 30 days. And I'll treat you fair in every way."

"The word 'fair'," Bill answered, "means different things to different men. But I'll accept your definition, and you can depend on me to be equally fair."

Having landed the order, the man became a new personality—as many men do.

The eagerness, humility, exaggerated courtesy and large generosity of the salesman gave way to the cold and calculating hardness of a practical man bent on making a profit.

Bill kept out of the way and in time the work was done, though it required 60 days instead of 30.

When the man asked for his money, Bill made various excuses to evade payment. "Don't worry," he would say; "you'll get what's coming to you." But the man grew tired of waiting and brought suit.

When the case was called for trial, Bill appeared in court with a sack full of money.

"Your Honor," said he, "I agreed to treat this man fairly and to accept his definition of the word 'fair.' He agreed to do my work in 30 days and took 60. I agreed to 'pay cash,' which means payment within 30 days, and I have taken double the time agreed on, as he did. Here is his money."

The man seized the bag and emptied its contents on a table. Then he rent the air with a howl of rage.

"Half of these are Chinese dollars," he cried, "and they're worth less than 30 cents. And the rest of the money is counterfeit."

"That makes it right," said Bill. "You gave me poor workmanship and shoddy material. Be reasonable. You gave me a bad job and I am giving you the same kind of money."

Richmond Death Inquest Planned

Suitor Believed Slayer of Divorcee, Self.

Richmond, May 14 (AP).—Harold M. Ratcliffe, Henrico County Commonwealth's attorney, said today that he probably would order an inquest into the deaths of Miss Eloise Tate, 21, Richmond divorcee, and Richmond Comoli, who were found dead this morning at a tourist camp here.

Ratcliffe, who serves also as coroner, said he believed Comoli had killed the girl and then himself.

Several friends of the slain woman said the tragedy resulted from a lovers' quarrel. They said Comoli was jealous of attentions the woman was receiving from other men.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Learning a Foreign Language.

Many years ago Mr. Upton Sinclair wrote a magazine article on learning to read foreign languages, which seems to me more sensible and practical than most of his political and social ideas. At any rate, I am grateful to him for that article, and I have passed the suggestion it contained to many individuals.

He called attention to the undoubted fact that the teaching of Greek and Litin and French and German in our schools and colleges, however valuable it may be in discipline, is often unproductive; that is to say, a student may learn his lessons well, get high marks, and yet be unable to read at sight a single page in the language he has studied so diligently. This is more often than otherwise actually true.

The reason is, the student does not acquire a vocabulary, the all-essential thing; for it is impossible to read a foreign language unless you know what the words mean. Mr. Sinclair stated a very common experience, when he remarked that after several years of study of Latin, a page of "Caesar," for example, was full of words whose aspect was familiar, and of whose meaning he was ignorant. He had looked up these words over and over again in a dictionary, in preparation for the morrow's lesson; they stayed with him about 24 hours, and then were forgotten.

He therefore made the practical and valuable suggestion that if you want to learn to read French, you should familiarize yourself with the mere skeleton of grammatical requirements, which you can get in the first few pages of any First Book in French. Then take a novel or a play, get a blank book, and start to read. Every time you come to a word you don't know, write the French and its English equivalent in the blank book. When you have finished your self-allotted task, learn the meaning of every one of those French words, so that by glancing at the French words with their English equivalents covered up, you know instantly their meaning. The next day, before going on with your reading, rehearse that vocabulary you learned yesterday; making absolutely sure you know it. Every day, before beginning to read, go back over your entire written list from the beginning. In this manner, you obtain the one essential thing—you have a vocabulary.

The necessary vocabulary in any foreign language is not very large. A great many years ago, I tried this system. I took a long novel, looked up every word I didn't know, wrote it down, and learned it firmly. In about three weeks, my ability to read had increased remarkably. And when I had finished this long novel, I took up a new novel, and read it at sight.

I would suggest to all boys and girls at school, and to all persons who now have leisure time on their hands, that in the summer vacation, or in their leisure, they learn a foreign language.

For those who wish to learn French, let me recommend the novel "L'Abbe Constantin," by Halevy. This seems as if it must have been written for the benefit of foreigners; it is so easy and so full of words whose meaning is apparent. Yet it was written by a member of the French Academy, with only French readers in mind.

Danville, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—Dr. John Hawkins was arrested here today charged with maintaining a nuisance by keeping a herd of cows in the residential section. Thirty neighbors petitioned the health department to do something about it and H. E. Phillipe, dairy inspector, swore out the warrant.

Dr. Hawkins said he intends to fight the charge in police court tomorrow.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

IT IS by no means remarkable that Presidents like detective stories. When one's chief concerns are dependent on the alarmingly vague imponderables of popular judgment and the opinion of the press, not to speak of Congress, it must be what I shall mildly call a pleasure to move for a while into a world where the detective always gets his man. Absolute certainty must surely be a relief in the White House.

And yet a devotion to the gentle cult is not always a mark of our highest office. According to the late Irwin H. (Ike) Hoover, chief usher at the White House under 30 years of Republican Presidents and 12 years of Democrats, in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, there has been a not unexpected personal difference here. "Wilson was the greatest reader of them, Hoover next, Coolidge read them occasionally . . . (Theodore) Roosevelt, much the greatest reader of all, never read detective or mystery stories." The rest of today's column is for kindred spirits of the War President.

F. L. Gregory is a newcomer to the ranks of THEO. HALL, sleep-preventers. His first effort, "The Cipher of Death" (Harper, $2), ranks in power with a chronic case of advanced insomnia. It starts with a corpse in a morgue, warms up with an explosion in a moving picture laboratory, really begins to get going with a whole series of dagger murders. To top off, each of these last is accompanied by a very odd-looking suicide. The general flavor is Long Island, plus a strong dose of Persian lore—the murderees are members of a recently returned expedition.

For detective we have a little Frenchman, M. Bouvard, who goes in for algebraic equations and archeology. But the learning does not smother the vigorous creeps with which Mr. Gregory fills his story.

The book is a so-called "Sealed Mystery," which means that if you can forebear breaking the paper seal which holds the last pages you can trade the book back for your money. My bet is that Harper won't need to cough up a cent.

Mrs. Marie Belloc Lowndes wrote her first mystery story at the age of 45. Yet it has been 21 years since "The Lodger," which Edmund Pearson called "the best book about murder written by any living author," burst upon a delighted world.

Mrs. Lowndes was rather less delighted. She much prefers to do historical studies. And she once said, "although books dealing with crime are now always expected of me, I am not, and never have been, more interested in crime than should be any person of average intelligence." The trouble, it seems to me, is that her crime books always excite the reader to more than normal interest.

The great-great-granddaughter of Joseph Priestley, the granddaughter of the woman who translated "Uncle Tom's Cabin" into French, the daughter of Bessie Parkes, early suffragette, and the sister of Hilaire Belloc (all of these being Mrs. Lowndes) has written one more murder tale in her characteristic manner — "Another Man's Wife" (Longmans, $2). Murder tale is not quite the term, though there is a murder in it. For she has always been more interested in the "Why?" than the "Who?"

When she tells of Delia Seaton, daughter of wealth, wife of England's great cricketer, beloved of a dashing automobile racer, it is for the sake of looking into Delia's character when the disaster and murder occur. That she makes this sort of problem as tense and enthralling as the more usual hair-raising plot is to Mrs. Lownde's peculiar credit.

"Portrait of a Murderer" (Reynal & Hitchcock, $2), by Anne Meredith, comes with a deal of fanfare. But I balk. I do not think the book was so much written as snipped piecemeal from the sappier magazines and then thrown together. It is supposed to be something entirely different in the way of mystery stories—a keen analysis of mind and character, I dare say—and it turns out to be as ordinary as a dish of potatoes.

Adrian Gray, 70, was killed by one of his six grown-up children. Why it wasn't mutual and total I don't see.

Miss Hildegarde Withers, that canny spinster of "The Puzzle of the Pepper Tree" and "The Penguin Pool Murder," is with us again in Stuart Palmer's "The Puzzle of the Silver Persian" (Crime Club, $2). I've always liked her, especially since she has taken on the features of Edna May Oliver in the movies. Now, on shipboard, the indomitable Miss Withers gets herself into a mighty pretty kettle of fish, and ends up by matching wits with a Scotland Yard inspector.

Mr. Palmer puts so much life and humor into his characters that you could skim off all the mystery and it would still remain a very readable novel.

Many Attend White House Garden Fete

Mrs. Roosevelt Hostess at Reception in Blue Room.

Rain Transfers Function Indoors, But Fails to Mar Day.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

A thunder shower failed to mar the enjoyment of a reception at the White House yesterday afternoon, although the function, planned as a garden party, was transferred indoors because of the weather. Almost 1,700 guests arrived to greet the First Lady.

Mrs. Roosevelt received her guests in the blue room, which made a charming background for the spring frock of soft light blue printed in white which Mrs. Roosevelt wore. The frock was fashioned on straight lines with a short jacket of the same material and was trimmed with a large white flower of mousseline de soie. Guests were entertained also in the green room and red room, which were decorated with vases of late spring flowers. A buffet of drinks, sandwiches and cakes was served in the state dining room. Many guests strolled on the south portico to enjoy the misty view down the rolling lawns.

The guests were those who had called recently at the White House and included members of the Cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court and other courts of the District of Columbia, and many other Capital residents.

Reception Guests.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, wore a gown of printed chiffon in white, black and yellow, with a large black hat. Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, was in a gown of dark blue trimmed with pale pink, and a hat to match. And Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, was in brown. Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, petite wife of the Secretary of the Navy, wore a costume of two shades of blue with a small dark blue hat, and Mrs. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, was in a spring print. Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, also wore a gown of bright printed crepe with a black hat.

Mrs. Harry Baxter, daughter of the Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, was glimpsed conversing with Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and looked charming in a gown of pale aqua crepe with a large brown hat. Others who were exceptionally smart in appearance were Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert, in a gown of delicate black lace and chiffon with a small hat of black trimmed with a nosegay of spring flowers; Mrs. George Bowie Chipman, in smart navy blue suit trimmed with white; Mrs. Sidney Tallaferro in a frock of multicolored striped net over navy blue with a large navy blue hat; Mrs. Francis Whitten, in her customary black, with an enormous cart-wheel hat of shiny black straw trimmed with large white and yellow flowers; Mrs. John McClure in a gown of pale peach mousseline de soie embroidered with brown dots and a brief brown taffeta jacket topped by a large brown hat; Miss Alice Fleming, in a printed frock of red and white, and Miss Mary Dwight, in a frock and hat of rose beige.

Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at luncheon yesterday for the committee that is planning a dance to be given to aid the Unemployed Girls' Restroom Fund in New York. The guests included Mrs. John Hay Whitney, Mrs. H. Nelson Slater, Mrs. Philip Benkard, Miss Elsa Maxwell, Miss Fanny Hurst, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Miss Lorena Hickok, Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheider, and Miss Marguerite LeHand.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be entertained Friday at the last of the luncheons given for her by the ladies of the Cabinet, and that afternoon will attend the garden party to be given in the Cathedral Close by the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman.

Quake Theories Need Revision, Says Professor

Cites New Discoveries to Seismological Meet As Proof.

New York, May 14 (AP).—Scientific theories about the origin and solidity of the interior of the earth will have to be revised in the light of new discoveries about earthquakes, according to Father V. C. Stechschulte, of Xavier University, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Addressing a meeting of the Eastern section of the Seismological Society of America at Fordham University, Father Stechschulte said it had been learned recently quakes sometimes take place "tremendous distances" beneath the surface of the earth—sometimes as deep as 300 miles.

"Geologists in the past have thought such deep earthquakes impossible," he said. "They must now revise some of their theories in the light of these new findings."

The priest said as many as 50 of these deep quakes had been counted during a year, but their effects were rarely felt on the surface.

"We have always known the earth is solid at least one-half the distance to its center," he said, "but the fact earthquakes are possible so deep down indicates this solidity has a tremendous strength, heretofore unsuspected."

Three other papers presented at the meeting revealed the earth is constantly subject to "fits of nervousness" resulting from heavy storms passing over the surface instead of quakes. The papers were by Dr. L. Don Leet, director of the seismological observatory at Harvard University; Donald C. Bradford, of St. Louis University, and Father F. W. Sohon, director of the seismological observatory at Georgetown University.

Because storms of unusual severity are constantly subjecting various parts of the earth's surface to different pressures, the surface vibrates almost all the time in these "nervous fits," it was explained.

"The Shanghai Gesture" Star Thinks Films Were Good for the Stage—Their Excellence Forced It to Jack Up Its Own Quality.

By Helen Fetter Cook.

"THE DAY OF THE STAR is dead. It died with Belasco," said Florence Reed, the American actress who made "The Shanghai Gesture" famous, as she settled into a comfortable pose in her dressing room after a performance of "Thoroughbred" last Thursday night. She is guest star with the stock company of Ford's Theater in Baltimore, said to be the theater with the largest stage in the South.

"The Packard 40s."

"Belasco, the grand old realist, was the one producer who never let down road audiences, he always sent out his real New York company intact. All the other producers, barring none, put out one star with what we called the 'Packard 40s,' several companies made up of people of 20-30-40 caliber. The Packard agency handled these companies and tried to make people in the provinces believe they were all 'original New York companies.'

"Now, they can not bluff the public in this way. The people in the 'key cities', as we call them in the profession, are thinking, reading, and knowing a great deal more than they used to. Also, some of the movies are so good people will not go to a play unless they know it is worth while and the entire cast—not just one lone star—is worth seeing.

"Incidentally," added Miss Reed, shaking her head with the becoming white wig, she wears in this part, "the stage really should thank the movies for a big boost. When they came along with rival entertainment the public was quick to value the poorer dramatic performances correctly. It has been a wholesome, if trying thing for the theater."

Miss Reed, who is always definitely for or against something, paused to puff on her cigarette in its jade holder, while she wrapped her purple brocaded dressing-gown closer about her neck.

"Do you think this competition means the end of road shows?" she was asked.

"The road will never die!" she responded, eyes snapping with vehemence. Audiences 'on the road' are so gorgeously enthusiastic when they do get something good. They're prime inspiration to anyone in the theater. There will be audiences on the road as long as there are good plays, plays people really enjoy seeing.

THE DAY OF THE star is dead, but "the road will never die," says Florence Reed.

"It Is Tremendous."

"As for stars! Look at the successes on Broadway right now. In practically all of them not a single member of the company was known anywhere before appearing in the casts of those successes."

Miss Reed is extremely enthusiastic over George Arliss' latest picture, "The House of Rothschild," playing now in Washington.

"I think it is tremendous," she said in her emphatic way. "It is a real bash in the solar plexus!"

In a second she had hung Mr. Arliss neatly on a mental peg beside the subject of road shows and was launched into a story about the huge pitcher-shaped trophy cup used on the set.

"Would you believe it," she whispered impressively, "that cup is inscribed to a British lord and lady—a token of appreciation on their twenty-first wedding anniversary—from their tenantry. And the date was 1865! Isn't that romantic?"

This week Miss Reed is doing the riotous role Laura Hope Crews created in the comedy, "Her Master's Voice." Incidentally, she had her neck nearly broken in a recent taxi ride in Washington when the driver stopped suddenly and she was pitched through a mercifully open window to the front seat beside him.

"And he expected his fare just the same!" laughed Miss Reed.

If you'd keep a vision lovely,
If you'd shield a tender love,
If you'd keep a dream unbroken
Touch it with a verbal glove
Of whispers. But, when ears grow keener
Jealous hearts are hovering
With hopes to injure; then, try using Silence as a covering.

Rout the Chiseler, Be a Today ... g of Prices, Urges Mrs. Mary Rum...y in Radio Broadcast

Consumer's Division Head Tells How Profiteers Are Tracked.

Twice weekly The Washington Post makes it possible for women the country over to become acquainted with commanding feminine figures in the National Government.

In its "First Ladies of the Capital" interview series, cooperating with the National Broadcasting Co., The Post presents its radio reporter in an interesting tete-a-tete with leading Washington women on subjects of National importance.

By Margaret Santry,
The Radio Reporter.

MRS. MARY HARRIMAN RUMSEY, dynamic socialite, welfare organizer and head of the Consumers' Division of the National Emergency Council of the NRA, marshaled an army of women against the price-raising profiteer of the family budget yesterday.

She challenged women from coast to coast to put to rout the "chiseler" who has used the NRA and the AAA as an excuse to raise prices out of proportion to the demands of the NRA code in raising wages, in her debut in The Washington Post's "First Ladies of the Capital" series of interviews over WRC and a National Broadcasting Co. network at 11:45 a. m.

The energetic daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, railroad magnate, who deserted the paths of leisure as a young girl to align herself with public welfare forces, proved a forceful speaker in the interests of the consumer whose cause she is now defending in the Consumers' Division of the NRA. She urged every woman to avail herself of the opportunity the Government is now providing through the Consumers' Division to be a "watchdog of prices" instead of "hang dog," in utilizing the newly organized 200 county councils to bring the profiteer to task.

Interest Dates Back.

Mrs. Rumsey has been interested in the down-trodden consumer for years before the advent of the New Deal. She has headed emergency councils and organized the Consumers' League several years ago. She declined to discuss the Junior League which she founded 30 years ago and some branches of which she scored recently for social "snobbery."

In explaining how she is utilizing her past experience to present account in the NRA she said:

"For some years before and after the war I was active in civic work. Now, through my new duties in the National Emergency Council organization I am fighting some of the same causes in the economic field. In those days we organized community councils to see the people got their money's worth in community improvements for the taxes they paid. Now, our consumer's division is organized to see the housewife gets her money's worth in the things she buys."

Miss Santry: "What kind of an organization have you set up to protect the consumer, or the housewife, from these profiteers?"

Mrs. Rumsey: "As a start we are organizing 200 local consumers' councils throughout the country. These councils are to serve as coordinating agencies to the NRA and the AAA in the handling of consumer's problems. They are to serve as a clearnig house for complaints and economic information—and to help the consumer get reasonable complaints adjusted."

Miss Santry: "In other words, if a housewife suspects she is paying too much for, say, milk, bread, shoes or stockings she can appeal to the councils to see if she is being charged prices out of proportion to what they should be. How does the council function to help her?"

Mrs. Rumsey: "First, she submits her complaints to the local council. This council is composed of a housewife of moderate means, a manual worker, a practical or 'dirt farmer,' a representative of a woman's organization interested in consumer's problems, and a representative from a local producers' or a home demonstration agent and a county agent of the Department of Agriculture.

"In this way every type of consumer is represented on the local council. The council has report forms for making complaints. As the complaints come in it makes a study to find who is responsble for the price raising. It may not be the local shopkeeper's fault if a price is too high. He might have been overcharged by a wholesaler, the wholesaler by the manufacturer, the manufacturer by the producer who sells the raw material. In other words, overcharging for a pair of shoes might be traced back to the tanner who sells the hide for the shoes."

Miss Santry: "Its a long way from a steer on a Western range to a pair of shoes in a local store. Isn't it a pretty difficult job to trace the offender? How do you get after him when you catch him?"

Mrs. Rumsey: "It is difficult, but we are undertaking to do just that. After the county council has studied the complaint, it trys to correct the trouble locally by interviews with the retailer or shopkeeper, or local code authorities where they exist.

Sent Here.

"If this is not successful the case is routed direct to the Fair Price Section of the Consumer Division in Washington. The case is also sent to State directors to be taken up with regional code authorities. Ten days is all the State director allows for adjustment of a case before sending it on to the fair price section, the ultimate agency to assure action by the Federal Government."

Miss Santry: "And what can a local council do to punish a local violator?"

Mrs. Rumsey: "The local councils have no power to punish. Their's is a fact-finding job. But I do think, Miss Santry, you will agree no merchant can stand up under the well-established fact he is overcharging his patrons."

Miss Santry: "Then notoriety is a local weapon. That should do the trick, no business can afford that long."

In a forceful plea to every housewife to avail herself of the service the Government is offering for protection from unfair prices, Mrs. Rumsey said:

"For the first time in the history of the United States the Government has stepped in to help organize local groups to guard their own interests and to establish an economic fair price agency to be of service to the consumer. If every consumer does not cooperate this great opportunity to watch and check prices will be lost. Remember this is an economic problem, not an emotional, political or propaganda movement. Everyone must stick to cold hard facts that will be of use in solving the great problem of distribution. The farmer who raises the steer and the woman who wears the shoe have a joint problem to solve. Every housewife can help solve it by being a watchdog of prices, and reporting any instance of profiteering she encounters."

MRS. MARY RUMSEY, head of the Consumers Division of the NRA, yesterday made a radio entreaty to women throughout America to give her organization a hand in tracing profiteers and price raisers. She spoke on a Post program.

Sparks Flying Still in 2-Year Mission Debate

A Baptist Board Member Staunchly Defends Criticized Missionaries.

SPARKS are still flying from the fire Pearl Buck started in foreign mission camps two years ago.

"Foreign missionaries are doing a constructive, necessary work and critics who disparage them have not studied the situation carefully," Miss Elsie P. Kappen, of the Northern Baptist Board of Missionary Cooperation, declared yesterday. Miss Kappen is at the Dodge Hotel for a few days, while lecturing at local Baptist churches on the cooperative mission movement.

The conflagration was started when the laymen's commission, after a study of foreign mission fields, recommended missionaries cure the sick bodies of intended converts before starting on their souls. The resignation of Pearl Buck, prominent author and missionary, from the Presbyterian missionary board added fuel to the fire. Miss Buck gave as her season she could not believe the teachings of the missionaries added to the health or happiness of the natives.

Since that time criticisms of foreign missionaries have been many and bitter. Adversaries of the movement have maintained missionaries were narrow-minded fanatics who would not be tolerated in their own church communities; they were ill-prepared; they refused to make allowances for the traditions and customs of the people they attempted to teach; their interest was not always unselfish. Moreover, they said, the natives were happier as they were. Why bother them?

Miss Kappen has an answer to each of these charges.

"If the missionaries did not do good work they would not receive the medals for distinction which many foreign countries give them," she said.

"We believe in foreign missions because we believe we can not carry out the teachings of Christ without carrying his message to others. As for our sending out missionaries who are not prepared, it is not true. We have strict requirements in personality, education and character."

Miss Kappen admitted the attitude of missionaries in the past was somewhat superior and dictatorial.

"Missionaries used to think theirs was the only way and people who did not believe with them were just stupid," she said. "Now we have a different method of approach."

Chance Held Responsible For Destiny of Orphans

ACCIDENT DIRECTS THE DESTINY of most orphans, Miss Mary S. Labaree told members of the Washington Council of Social Agencies yesterday.

"Only fate decides whether they will find a good home or a bad one, whether they will be placed in the institution that gives them a chance to develop their personalities," she said in her address. "You must save these children to save society."

Miss Labaree, chief of the family and child division of the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare, told of the work done in raising the standards of institutions for homeless children in her State.

"We offer these institutions leadership and aid with their problems," she said. "We try to make visiting and inspecting as painless and helpful as possible."

Miss Labaree explained when she first began her work she met with much opposition from the heads of private institutions who didn't want the Government meddling in their affairs.

"Today, I am glad to say," she added, "it has become respectable to be a public welfare official. The early antagonism was caused by people's belief that government meant police power. Today citizens realize government is only crystalized citizenship, with a personal interest in social problems."

The 265 private institutions now caring for neglected children in Pennsylvania are under the supervision of the State Welfare Department, Miss Labaree explained, and as a result it is possible to make some comprehensive analysis of the needs of the children and of the best way of helping them.

While the tendency at present is to place orphans in foster homes, rather than institutions, Miss Labaree believes each community should have both homes and institutions for homeless children.

"YOU MUST SAVE homeless children to save society," Miss Mary Labaree, chief of the family and child welfare division of the Pennsylvania department of public welfare, told social workers yesterday.

Legal Status of D. C. Women Lower Than in Many States

WOMEN in the District of Columbia are lagging behind women of many States in legal status, according to a booklet prepared by Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews and distributed by the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Entitled "Legal Status of Women in the District of Columbia," this pamphlet gives concisely every law pertaining to women in the District.

In releasing the booklet, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District Federation, said:

"The various federations of women's clubs comprising the General Federation are making an inquiry into the legal status of women. This inquiry was initiated by Mrs. E. Blair Luckie, chairman of legislation of the General Federation.

"In view of the fact laws for the District of Columbia are made by Congress, one would suppose our laws relating to women would favorably compare with those of most States. But such is not the case.

"Take, for instance, the inheritance laws. When a son or daughter dies leaving no will, the father usually inherits to the exclusion of the mother. The District of Columbia is about the only place where such an antiquated and harsh rule still prevails. Other male ancestors likewise are given preference over female ancestors."

Other discriminatory laws revealed by the pamphlet include those concerned with services in the home. The labor service of the wife is legally the property of her husband. Consequently, when a husband and wife attain prosperity, her service does not entitle her to share as a partner in the gains, nor is she entitiled to any part of the family income besides that necessary to her support.

The law dealing with illegitimate parenthood places the burden on the mother.

Club Federation Presents Mrs. Marguerite Wilcox With Second Prize; Miss Mary Strong Gets Third With Verse on Secretary Perkins.

WOMAN'S achievements in the progress of the world, and the recognition of woman's ability, as exemplified in the appointment of Miss Frances Perkins to a Cabinet position, were eulogized in poems awarded the second and third prizes in the recent contest sponsored by the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Marguerite Wilcox, 826 L street northeast, received the second prize for her poem, which follows:

Woman of the Ages.

She heard the padding fest of hungry beasts
And barred with stones the portal of her cave.
She drew her frightened children to her knee,
Teaching them to be prudent, to be brave.

A spark of fire upon a shelving rock
She nursed and tended while her mate roamed free
Till nightfall drove him to her warmth and light,
And so she spun the ties of family.

To still her children's strife on storm-bound days
She told them tales of birds and trees and stars.
Their dawning thoughts went out to meet her thoughts
Like struggling hands that reach through prison bars.

At seasons' change the tribe moved north or south.
She stayed her broods within a fertile glen,
Built there a shelter and beguiled her mate
To leave the nomad horde of restless men.

She planted seeds that grew to grain, and flowers,
Upon her wall she hung a dappled hide,
So, gropingly, she struggled toward a home
Where beauty, peace and comfort might abide.

She longed for feathers, furs and gleaming gems,
Men hunted, delved and dived, her whim to please;
She craved strange fruits, bright silks, from far-off lands,
And commerce grew upon the seven seas.

A lure before the eyes of valiant men,
A lash upon the heels of sluggard fools,
By green Nile waters or Northern seas
Her charm or wisdom made them all her tools.

When tyranny and greed oppressed the world,
In towers of prayer she wove a banner white,
She placed it in the hands of Chivalry

Wresting from hide-bound parliaments her rights,
She braved derision and indignity,
Storming the courts with pleading and with prayer,

Priestess of Progress Civilization's guide,
Lead on, drive on, in every land and clime!
The ancient harpies, War and Want and Crime.

Writing on "First Woman in the Cabinet," Miss Mary Strong, 924 M street, won the third prize with this poem:

With tempered judgment and prescursal dower,
She was the fittest choice for Labor's head
To guide us at the Nation's crucial hour.
With fortunes crashing and with business prone
While lobless millions sought relief in vain,
It was her dream to make this task her own

And now the mighty wheels of progress turn,
The axe and hammer echo through the glen.
Forgotten forges palpitate and burn,
The air vibrates to hum of busy men.
And Labor with the crisis ably met
Hails the first woman in the Cabinet.

Used frequently and used well, they will combat freckles, irregular tanning and warm weather complexion sheen.

Powder is the first consideration. It should be chameleon, and change color week by week. As it won't do this by itself, the wearer should see that after each coating of tan her powder is deepened a bit.

IDA LUPINO, movie actress, demonstrates a few pointers on how to apply face powder properly.

One way to do this is to keep a standing order at a store for a new shade upon call. Another way is to buy a box of deep sun tan powder and blend this with the usual shade as the need arises.

Freckles will pop up unless the skin is given protection against sun and wind. One way to stave them off is by using liquid powder, the kind that's waterproof. Week-end beach combers might keep this in mind and lacquer themselves with a good coating before they brave the sunbeams. Over this they should apply a goodly amount of powder. It will come off in the water, but it is good protection until it does. Once out of the water, another dusting and the bedraggled water nymph is both refreshed and assured neither wind nor sun will freckle her.

Powder is good for disguising, too, disguising the places around neck and shoulders that failed to tan evenly. A smooth application over a powder base will hide these light spots and give a harmonious skin effect.

After the powder, the powder puff. It can do as much damage as it does good. Unless it's washed frequently and kept free of dirt and oil, it will bestow manifold blackheads and do a fine job of clogging the pores.

There is no economy in buying a powder puff that sells for little but will not wash. Cotton puffs that may be discarded after using are always satisfactory. They are both economical and convenient.

Fishing Taught In High School

Old Fight Over Educational "Frills" Stirred Up With This Innovation.

Albion, Nebr., May 14 (Spl.).—The teaching of hunting and fishing courses in the high school here has stirred up the old discussion of whether or not educational "frills" should be given in addition to the three R's.

The courses were introduced by Blise C. J. Robinson, principal, as an experiment in educational background for use of leisure time under the new social order. First tried out in the adult educational classes, the courses proved so popular it was decided to extend them to high school pupils.

Old-timers in this prairie region are watching the experiment with tolerant though skeptical interest. Education leaders from other parts of the country also are interested in the innovation.

The subjects taught include use of the shotgun, the rifle, pistols, revolvers and automatics, wing shooting, ammunition, bait casting, fly casting, fish and their habits, camping and outing, and game laws.

Early British.

SIR RONALD LINDSAY has gone up to New York to open an exposition of British publications of the ninth and tenth centuries at the Metropolitan Museum of Art today. These works were produced in the days of the Crusades and William the Conquerer.

• • • •

Speaking of the Conqueror recalls the story of a young swain of our youth whose family traced its ancestry directly to the famous Norman warrior.

In high school one day, when asked his nationality, the young gentleman proudly replied he was French.

• • • •

A few days later in history class, the fact came out that the comely ankles of Arletta, daughter of the tanner Falaise, when dangling in a brook caught the eye of Robert the Devil, Duke of Normandy, as he was passing on a Crusade to the Holy Land. The call of the Holy Grail must have been stronger than the call of the altar for without benefit of clergy there was born a conqueror.

Since this fact came to light, the young swain has been entirely British.

An Actor of Parts.

Twelve-year-old Hugo L. Black, Jr., the eldest son of Senator and Mrs. Black, of Alabama, told his mother several weeks ago he was going to be in the spring play at his school, Horace Mann in Westley Heights.

• • • •

"Fine, son," said his mother who was busy with his small sister, Martha Josephine.

"But time went on," said Mrs. Black, telling the story over the tea cups the other afternoon, "and Hugo didn't ask me anything about a costume nor did I hear him studying any 'lines.' Finally I asked him about it.

"'Son,' I said, 'just what kind of a part do you play in this school play?'

"'Why, mother,' he answered, 'I'm the hind legs of the horse in the last act.'"

Owing to a prearranged National Boadcasting Co. program scheduled for Friday, the next interview in the "First Ladies of the Capital" series will be Monday, May 21. Hear Mme. Paul May, wife of the Belgian Ambassador, make her first American broadcast from Station WRC at 11 a. m.

Modern Magic! Metals Shined In a Moment

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A MODERN philosopher's stone will make common elements glistening. It is a polishing cloth which transforms tarnished silver ware, makes it bright and shining.

It tackles aluminum, nickle, gold, brass, copper, and bronze so energetically they lose their blight before one's eyes and take on a gleaming radiance. Storybook sorcery never turned out anything to polish automobiles, shine mirrors, windows, glass and china, like this one small cloth.

There's mystery to it, too. There are no acids, alkalies, nor abrasives in its make-up. It will not scratch, nor leave a deposit of paste. It is noncombustible, and prevents corrosion. And yet it's all it's cracked up to be. And it costs only ten cents!

Pygmy Lamp.

Whoever concocted the lamp in a local gift department worked from a queer recipe. One round frosted glass ball. Three small metal elephants. Several colors of enamel. A small light bulb.

He placed the elephants in a circle, one leading the other with the bulb in the center. Over this, and apparently supported by the elephants, the glass ball. And then the enamel coating.

Frees the Form.

If a nudist and a non-nudist were to compromise on a brassiere design they'd be likely to turn out models like those featured in an F street shop. They are called the "half ways," and that's exactly what they are. Imagine the frame of a brassiere not yet filled in. See two small bits of sturdy silk that support and uplift, straps, and a back band. And there they are.

Women who wear brassieres to give them that boyish "figger" will have no use for these form freeing contrivances.

42 Gage, 3 Thread.

Where to buy really good hose for a low price is a question in many shoppers' minds. If "42 gage, three thread hose" means anything to them they will realize that buying this sort of stocking for 69 cents is buying a very good thing. A downtown store keeps a regular stock of these and swears to their wearing quality.

Women who are looking for a party pair may purchase "48 gage, three thread" hose for as little as $1.00. These are sheerer than spider webs but remarkably sturdy.

• • • •

Feminine Touch.

If anyone wants a sweet feminine touch, she can buy it right here in town. Let her ask for the "old fashion bouquets." They're made of artificial flowers, but it takes scrutiny to tell they're not real.

• • • •

Turtles and Tooth Paste.

Shoppers who would like a tube of tooth paste and a turtle, too, can have both if they take advantage of the unusual offer at a downtown store.

There's a big sign up, telling all about it. One buys two tubes of a well-known tooth paste (do you read the car cards?) and then cashes in on the cartons for a small racing turtle.

The manufacturer of the tooth paste is anxious to introduce his new "double quick" quality to the public and this is the way he chooses.

While the offer lasts, two tubes sell for 33 cents.

• • • •

Mechanical Bartender.

The shaking and stirring of cocktails is considerably simplified by the advent of a small electric drink mixer. It blends the ingredients so perfectly a unanimous decision votes it a place in the hall of notable bartenders.

When a party is in full blast and the drinks are freely downed, here's a little gadget that will serve the host like a right-hand man. It is reasonably priced at $1.49.

To Match Your Suit.

For a boucle suit, why not a boucle bag? If the yea's have it, stop by an F street store and see the variety there. Some are almost a foot square—these are the favorites for traveling. Others are a small handy size; these are seen frequently at afternoon get-togethers.

The buyer of the department makes a sensible suggestion. Wear your suit down and match your bag at the counter.

• • • •

Nightmare Cactus.

Echinocereuses, Dasycanthuses, Caryphanthases, &c., are worth a trip to town to see. They sound like a scientist's nightmare, and they look like a nightmare of sorts. But they are strange cacti from the land of sand and sun.

The Best Salad Is The Wash With Other

Shouldn't Repeat Vegetables Served Before in the Same Dinner.

By Ann Barrett.

PROBABLY everybody has a favorite salad. (Vice President Garner's is asparagus with vinaigrette dressing; Jessica Dragonette's, raw cucumbers, lettuce and other greens with French dressing; Paul Whiteman's, salmon and cooked vegetables with mayonnaise.) But according to the latest menu-planning slant, you choose your salad (and dressing) not only because you like it, but because you like the way it fits into the rest of the menu.

So perhaps it's worth while to consider the three types of salad, according to their place in a meal.

Secondary Salads.

First, there's the secondary salad that's served with or after the meat course or at the beginning of the meal as a sort of appetizer. Fashion says this salad should not be too large or too hearty; and certainly not sweet, for it has only a secondary place in the meal, and should stimulate rather than dull the appetite. Some maintain that only French dressing or some variation is suitable for this salad. Others serve mayonnaise. Fruits and leafy green vegetables are fine for this type of salad. Also raw vegetables such as cucumber, tomato, green pepper, raw carrot. And any cooked vegetables except those served with the meat in the same meal (Repetition of flavors is fatal to a good meal.)

A salad enthusiast could write a book on this one type of salad. Out of hundreds of possible examples of secondary salads, I am choosing a beet salad with horseradish French dressing, because new beets and new horseradish taste so good in the spring. Make this salad up individually as follows: Put two crisp leaves of romaine or lettuce on each plate. Allow two tender young cooked beets for each salad, slice these and overlap them on the romaine or lettuce. Then sprinkle the beet with a mixture of 1 hard-cooked egg-white (chopped fine); 1 hard-cooked egg-yolk (put through sieve); and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Mix 2 tablespoons horseradish with ½ cup French dressing, and pass separately.

A second type of salad is the main-dish salad. This salad—as the name implies — makes the biggest part of the meal. It is hefty and satisfying. Usually contains meat, fowl, fish, or eggs; cooked vegetables, raw vegetables and garnishes. Sometimes it contains a starchy ingredient such as potato or macaroni. It is usually dressed with both French dressing and mayonnaise. And it may be served for luncheon, dinner, late supper, or picnics.

First mix 2 cups diced cooked chicken (or lamb, veal or ham) with 1 cup cooked peas, 1 cup cooked snap beans (cut in 1-inch lengths), ½ cup diced cooked carrots, 1 tablespoon grated onion and 1 cup French dressing. Chill at least 1 hour, drain off excess dressing (if any) and add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Edge a chop plate or platter with crisp lettuce, and turn salad into center. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon capers, and garnish with 4 hard-cooked eggs (quartered), 4 slices tomato, 4 large, stuffed olives, 4 pickles. Pass chutney-mayonnaise (4 tablespoons chopped chutney or any chopped sweet pickle mixed with 1 cup mayonnaise).

The Chic Bring Their Cottons To Town for Sweltering Days

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, May 14.—For comfort choose cotton. And that's exactly why so many fashion-knowing women who live in towns and cities are copying their country cousins and choosing crisp-as-toast cotton dresses for warm days. It's cool. It's fresh. And in dark colors or all-over patterns it keeps looking neat even in city grime.

So no longer need you look wistfully at the gay ginghams and say, "But I can't wear that in the city." Because you can. And those cheery checked and plaid seersuckers and printed or plain piques, too. And crisp dotted Swisses. (We've had the dress in the illustration sketched in dotted Swiss.)

New Dimities.

Dimity has blossomed out in new patterns, tailored and neat, in colors deep enough to wear in town. So has printed lawn. Voiles have gone into dark monotone prints, checks and plaids.

Cotton net has added to its dance floor success and become a street favorite. And it's amazing how smartly prim it can be in black or navy blue, cut in a tailored way and neatly pintucked.

Eyelet and embroidered batiste, also in dark colors, are due for a good season in town, too.

The cotton dress with its own jacket is the big winner for city wear. The jacket, plus the darker colors, immediately gives the dress the slight touch of formality a town costume needs.

Short and Swagger Jackets.

The jackets are smartly short and boxy, or swagger, or fitted to the waistline and extending down to the hips. And the dress whose jacket is a pique swagger can lend that jacket to other dresses.

Even to other cotton town dresses. For there are plenty of these dresses without jackets, made in neat tailored one or two piece styles.

Whether they have jackets or not, they're practically sure to have crisp trimmings. Revers, collars-and-cuffs or jabots of linen, pique, organdie, mousseline, net or ribbon. For all these help put pep into a warm day.

Cotton costumes of the types described may be found in Washington in all the better class women's shops and department stores.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Pain Around the Heart.

One of the most frequent complaints is of pain around the heart. As a rule, physicians advise their patients to disregard such pains. They are largely due, in the first place, to introspection.

Many of these pains are the result of neuralgia in the chest wall or muscular rheumatism in the chest muscles. Such cases are advised to apply a mustard plaster, to rub on some hot liniment, or to wear some flannel on the chest. For pains due to neuralgia and rheumatism of the muscles some such treatment as the above is all that is required.

There is no question as to seriousness of pain, oppression, and sense of impending doom resulting from true angina pectoris. It is dread of this kind of pain that causes most of the anxiety about all other kinds of chest pains.

When the blood sugar is too low or there is too much of these organic acids there may be pain in the heart region, or there may be difficulty in breathing, or there may be palpitation of the heart.

An examination with an electrocardiograph will show which cases are due to too true angina and which are due to too little blood sugar. Or, a careful examination with a stethoscope should show it. Or maybe a simpler test will suffice. That test consists in eating some sugar or chocolate or cereal and noting the effects on the pain.

Parents Urged To Use Leisure For Children

Psychologist Says Personal Attention Is Extremely Necessary.

NEW YORK, May 14 (Spl.).—Parents should use their new leisure time for better understanding their children, believes Dr. James W. Howard, consulting psychologist of Montclair, N. J., schools.

"Now there is leisure time, fathers have lost their best alibi for not giving more personal attention to their children," said Dr. Howard, discussing his recent booklet for parents that he was commissioned to write by the Leisure Time League.

Some of the matters Dr. Howard suggests parents study are their child's physical equipment and what effect it is having on his attitude and view of life; how courageous he is in facing the future; how he is training to overcome his physical handicaps and to adjust himself to his environment.

"The successful adult must face the unknown and still have enough courage to keep on trying to solve the problems of life. So the child must be taught as early in life as possible to face bravely the problems which life presents to him, to be a social human being and be ready to throw himself out to others when the occasion demands."

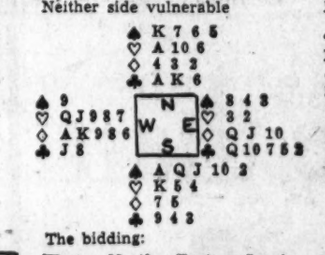
Culbertson on Bridge

READING OPPONENTS' DISTRIBUTION.

It is unusual in the play of a hand at Contract Bridge to be able to determine the distribution of one opponent and hence the distribution of all the suits as early as the sixth trick.

The hand below gave to the South player, through the fact that he was able to learn the distribution of the hand early in the play, a certainty of making his contract.

West, Dealer
Neither side vulnerable



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1♡(1)	Dbl.	Pass	2♠(2)
3◇(3)	4♠(4)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Of course, West's hand is a bare minimum as regards honor-trick strength.
2—The correct response to the Takeout Double.
3—In view of the fact that he holds two five-card suits, West of course is justified in rebidding despite the fact that he has no additional honor strength.
4—In view of South's strength response to the Takeout Double, the immediate bid for game is fully justified.

West opened the King of diamonds and followed with the Ace. The third round of diamonds was ruffed by the Declarer, who then took three rounds of trumps, finding on the second lead that West had held a singleton. When West failed to follow on the second trump lead South was practically assured that his hand had consisted of five hearts, five diamonds, two clubs and one spade originally.

When West on the second and third rounds of trumps discarded the seven and eight of hearts, the Declarer could see that, despite the fact that he held an apparent loser in clubs, he could fulfill his contract. He therefore led the Ace and King of clubs and followed with the Ace and King of hearts, throwing West in the lead with the last round of hearts. Inasmuch as West had nothing left in his hand but diamonds he was forced to give South a ruff in one hand and a discard in the other, and thus the Declarer avoided the loss of a club trick and fulfilled his contract of four spades.

I WAS A SPY!

By MARTHE McKENNA

"NOW nobody can come and interrupt us," my host informed me slyly. He fumbled for his pocket to replace the key, but to my inexpressible relief I saw it drop onto the floor. He did not notice this, however, as a new idea had entered his head and was occupying his mind. He drew himself up with a magnificent gesture, and wallowed across to the table with solemn mien.

Seized by Officer.

"I drink to beauty," he announced triumphantly, trying to pour two glasses of brandy into one wineglass, and raising it on high where most of the liquid upset down his sleeve. He came round slowly to the back of my chair. His hand slipped round my neck, while his lips touched my hair, sending a cold wave through me. His eager face was bent so close over mine that I could see the little hairs on his cheeks above the shaven line. I jumped up and poured myself a drink.

"I think you are altogether too impatient," I told him lightly. "Perhaps you have forgotten, but you were telling me all about yourself when you interrupted your story to behave in this silly way. I was interested, so why don't you tell me some more——?"

"He thumped down with sprawled legs and a foolish grin on the seat I had just vacated, and sat opposite. "Well, well, meine liebe Fraulein, I am sorry, but you are worth being impatient about, you see."—Then he began about himself again.

"Fraulein, I want a reward for saving you from the clutches of that baboon Schweitzer. Kiss me"— and he blundered toward me. Like a flash I was at the door, had seized the key, and was through, locking it on the outside. When he banged on the door, I said: "Sorry, Herr Lieutenant, you will have to go on being patient. Don't drop the key on the floor next time you dine with one of your lady friends."

"Open that door," he roared like an angry child.

"Now, if you aren't good, Herr Lieutenant," I admonished, "I shall leave you locked in your room and give the key to the sentry, telling him how bad you've been. And that would be a terribly undignified position for a duty officer of the day to find himself in. Now—will you let me go quietly and be good if I let you out?" There was a pause, then a sulky voice muttered:

I decided to call at the chemist's shop immediately, where I could code a message about the Zeppelin raid on London and the bombing of Poperinghe, for there was no time to be lost. The street was utterly deserted, and I had just rapped hard on the door when a figure appeared out from the shadow of the houses and halted before me. It was a gendarme.

"May I see your pass, sister," he drawled. "I see this gives you permission to go to and from the hospital at any time during curfew hours. There is no mention that you may visit private houses that I can see here."

My head swam. Then I retorted, "It's really quite simple, corporal. My father suffers from the earache very badly—he is an old man, you know, and tonight a painful attack has come on. I came to the chemist to buy some glycerine." He handed me back my pass. "That will be all right, sister," he said. "Good night," and continued on his way.

I found an excuse to speak with Alphonse as soon as I arrive at the hospital the next morning and instructed him to get in touch with Stephan over the aeroplane report. That same afternoon Stephan brought the copy he had made round to the back entrance of the cafe and left it with my mother. It was too large to hand over the counter at the chemist's with any degree of safety, so I had to invent another method of transmission. The report covered three pages of foolscap, and I cut them into thin strips which I numbered so that they could be easily reassembled in the proper order. These I sewed into the hem of an old skirt, and when Canteen Ma called the following morning with vegetables, my mother ostensibly presented her with an old skirt for herself.

On the night scheduled for the bombing of Poperinghe, the British made a counter raid on Rumbeke Aerodrome, with the idea, I suppose, of killing the German effort before it was born. But the British arrived a trifle too late. They met the German raiders already on their way and passing over Roulers. A furious combat opened above us. The German gunners on the ground could not fire for fear of hitting their own people, and orders were given that the searchlights should cease to play into the sky, for their beams obviously helped friend as much as foe. A British plane descended in flames and trailing smoke. Then another British plane and a German plane spun flaming to the ground simultaneously—a collision. The German was my friend of the aerodrome, and he was dead when they found him. In the darkness the Germans succeeded in giving the slip to the British and continued on their way toward Poperinghe. The town was ready, and guided by the searchlights, the defensive barrage immediately crashed into life. One German plane fell, and after dropping a few bombs which did no serious damage, the others vanished. This was what I heard from Canteen Ma, who had it from over the frontier.

At last the evening of the 1st October, the appointed time for the Zeppelin raid, arrived. For days I had wondered whether perhaps it had been a mere canard, a soldier rumor. But at 5 o'clock in the evening of October 1, I heard the drone of Zeppelin engines. It was almost dark, with low clouds, but there was no mistaking that sinister sound. Whether there were one or two, I did not know, but plainly my information had been correct. Maybe the famous Mathy was in that machine going to rendezvous on the helpless noncombatants. I did not know whether I should ever hear the result of that grim night's work, but as I stared up into the darkening sky I prayed that for Mathy and his companions it would be a failure.

It is a matter of history how the L-31 was shot down.

Cooperatives Help Grayson Farm Income

Whitetop, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—Mountains are not real barriers to cooperative marketing, Grayson County farmers have proved.

Most of the lambs raised in Grayson County are produced in mountain valleys, 15 to 25 miles from the railroad. Because of the mountain barriers dividing up the territory, it is impossible to organize a county-wide organization, it being difficult for the farmers from different valleys to get together at one point.

It is still more difficult to move the lambs from the different valleys to the railroad shipping point because very few farmers have trucks. So under the leadership of County Agent D. T. Painter, community lamb pools were started in the spring of 1931. Six of these pools operated that spring, and 14 pools handled lambs and wool during the spring of 1933. The 14 pools functioning in the spring of 1933 handled 23 carloads. The volume of lambs to be sold cooperatively this spring will depend upon how the lamb crop turns out.

Reluctant to Ship.

The majority of Grayson County farmers are accustomed to selling their live stock to local buyers and receiving immediate cash payment. They have been reluctant to ship to a commission agency on a Northern market, and wait for their returns, even though the Northern markets were paying a premium of 1 cent a pound.

Farmers in some of the communities, however, were willing to pool their lambs for local sale for immediate cash payment. The lambs entered in these community pools were graded by a V. P. I. livestock specialist and netted the farmers an average premium of 1 cent per pound over the average local market price. In 1932 the farmers had developed more confidence in cooperation.

Five carloads were shipped north to obtain the higher prices offered. During the 1932 lamb season the community pools returned their members an average premium of one-half cent per pound over local market prices on lambs.

Members Sign Agreement.

So that the sales committee of the community pools may know how many lambs they will have to sell, members have signed a simple marketing agreement pledging to sell the lambs and wool they produce through their community pool. The member agrees to dock and trim all the lambs he grows and to pay a penalty of $25 if he sells any lambs or wool outside the pool as long as the agreement is in effect.

A number of the community lamb pools have arranged joint sales at which all the lambs of the same grade from the different community pools were put into a larger pool for joint sale.

The community pools undertook the cooperative selling of wool in the spring of 1932, when they handled the sale of 70,000 pounds. The pool that years returned the members from 3½ to 4 cents per pound above the local market.

Festival Plans At St. Marys In Full Swing

Maryland's First Capital Expects Thousands at Celebration.

Big Tercentenary Fete Will Be Presented on June 15-16.

Leonardtown, Md., May 14 (Spl.). Maryland's first capital, St. Marys City, near here, aroused from its slumber of more than 200 years, is now a beehive of activity as the time draws near for the huge tercentenary celebrations of June 15 and 16.

Rehearsals for the memorial pageant, "St. Maries, the Mother of Maryland," written and directed by Mrs. Kathleen Read Coontz, are in full swing. Mrs. Coontz arrived here today from Washington to spend another week in coordinating the cast which numbers more than 1,200 Marylanders.

Two recent additions to pageant characters are: Miss Augusta Lee, to portray the role of Mary Brent, and Miss Phyllis Graves, to represent a colonial beauty. The latter posed last year for Allyn Williams' noted picture representing Southern Maryland maidenhood which won fame in Washington, New York, London and Paris salons.

In St. Marys County schools, numbers of children are busy designing and making ancient Indian ceremonial costumes which they will wear in the spectacle. Soldier parts in the drama will be played by members of the Leonardtown and St. Marys American Legion Post, No. 54.

Seats for 10,000.

On the bluff where the tercentenary memorial Statehouse of 1676 stands, workmen are building the great horseshoe grandstand which will seat 10,000 spectators. A mounded stage has been constructed. Before it an orchestra pit will be located containing a broadcasting outfit, accommodations for the speaking cast, and director's booth.

Interiors of the memorial Statehouse are nearing completion, and part of the grounds fronting the river have been planted to cedars, holly, red oak and poplar trees by a Washington florist.

At St. Marys Seminary nearby, Miss Adele France, principal, and staff already are dispensing hospitality to scores of visitors thronging the grounds. The rectory and parish house of Trinity Episcopal Church, built of the bricks of the original State house, also are open for inspection.

Twelve hundred National Guardsmen under Gen. Milton Reckord will camp during the celebration week to handle crowds and present military drills at the ceremonies. Medical aid will be provided by the Southern Maryland Medical Society, which will have a tent on the park gorunds.

In a special visit to the county last week, R. Bennett Darnall, chairman of the executive committee of the Tercentenary Commission, suggested tentative plans for a beauty contest to be held between the five Southern Maryland counties during the celebration, a prize to be given for the prettiest girl in each county.

Plans for Housing.

Harry M. Jones, chairman of the housing committee for the celebration week, reports that requests for accommodations filed with members of the sub-committees appointed for each of the nine districts of St. Marys County, will be sorted and assigned this week. Blanks are available, filled out with the number of rooms open in each district. Places on the water front are much in demand and prices range from $1 to $5 per night. As an assurance of good faith, all rooms engaged through the housing committee must have an advance deposit. This will be collected by the committee and turned over to the owner of the rooms.

Scenes in the coming tercentenary pageant expected to attract special attention are the benediction by Father Andrew White, the Jesuit priest who accompanied the colonists and served as their first chronicler; English fete dances and church processionals before the Governor; the famous tableau depicting Mistress Margaret Brent's, Maryland's first feminist and executrix, defiance of the Assembly for the right to vote; the review of the Royal Governors and the scene, "Happiness and Peace," portraying th emarriage of Gov. Charles Calvert and the widow Sewall. This scene has a Baltimore setting, and was worked out by the Baltimore division, who was appointed for the work by Mayor Howard Jackson.

Richmond, May 14 (AP).—Gov. Perry plans to attend the Maryland Tercentenary celebration at St. Marys City, Md., on June 16.

Va. Liquor Scale Aimed At Bootlegger

Straight Whisky Priced at $1.10 a Pint, Gin, 50 Cents.

Richmond, May 14 (Spl.).—As a further step in its campaign against bootlegging, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has decided to offer straight whisky as well as blended liquors at $1 per fifth and 65 cents a pint, it was learned today as the board rushed ahead with the equipment and stocking of the Richmond stores. Gin will be sold as low as 50 cents per pint.

The stores will not open tomorrow as was hoped, but the board expects all five to be operating later in the week. Te necessity for making the stores safe against hijackers has been among the reasons for delay.

High Quality Promised.

The straight whisky brands not only will be sold at the bottom price—which is about 50 cents less than any straight whisky now can be bought in other States—but there will be bourbons and straight liquors at $1.10 and $1.25 per fifth and 75 cents per pint.

This straight whisky liquor, which is an original distillate instead of a blend of old and new whiskies, or a compound of alcohol, old whisky and flavoring, resembles the bootleg product now on the market, although it is much more carefully refined and aged, it was stated. It was announced today that the board is arranging for delivery of large orders of wine to individuals desiring to stock cellars from ABC stores. The board has ruled that while the law limits whisky purchases to a gallon at a time, the restriction does not apply to wine purchases.

Norfolk Bootleggers in Panic.

Norfolk, Va., May 14 (AP).—Norfolk bootleggers are in a panic with business falling off and profits dwindling to almost nothing. State control liquor stores open this week and advanced prices show some whiskies can be had for as little as $1 a quart and gin at 50 cents a pint.

Bootleggers have been getting from $1 to $1.50 a pint for gin. Bootleg whisky today was offered at a dollar a quart, which represents more than a 50 per cent cut since the State stores announced it would be sold there at that price.

It was announced today that three of the most popular bootleggers had quit business and two others had formed a merger.

League Delays Hungary's Plea In Border Fight

Council Meets in Deep Despair at Failure of Disarmament.

Geneva, May 14 (AP).—Hungary's fervent appeal to the League of Nations to settle difficulties with Jugoslavia, which it fears will "put Europe on fire," was sidetracked momentarily as the league council swung into its seventy-ninth session here today.

Adjustment of disturbances on the Hungary-Jugoslavia border, which arose as an eleventh-hour problem, must await action on problems of the Chaco and the Saar, the council decided.

A sense of futility was the dominating note at the resumption of council sessions. The atmosphere of discouragement is due largely to failure of disarmament discussions.

Swiss newspapers today gave prominence to an interview with Mussolini in which he is quoted as saying that it will be unnecessary to reform the league if disarmament fails, that the only need will be to make a formal recognition of the death of the league.

The presumption was that the council will back up the report of the league commission on the Chaco, and perhaps may express vigorous disapproval of sale of arms to the South American belligerents.

Letters to the league from "German front" organizations in the Saar repudiated insinuations that Germany is planning to seize the Saar by armed force.

May Relief Cost for Va. Is $446,850

New Federal Program to Be Instituted in Each County.

Total Cost of CWA Jobs in State $11,491,652, Report Shows.

Richmond, May 14 (Spl.).—Approved work relief projects for practically every city and county in Virginia are being returned to the localities today by the works division of the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration, according to J. M. Ribble, State engineer of the division.

The only counties and cities not to receive approver projects are those communities which have not applied for them, Mr. Ribble said. He estimated that 90 per cent of the localities will receive approved projects. Work will begin on them by the end of the week.

Meanwhile Miss Margaret Woll, head of the social service department, announced the allocation of $446,850 to the cities and counties of Virginia for all types of relief for May. Of this sum, the counties will get $257,050, and the cities, $189,800.

The relief directors of the various localities will set aside a definite portion of their localities share of the relief funds for work relief, the amount to be left to the judgement of relief directors.

Meanwhile, it was learned today that Virginia's big CWA program cost Uncle Sam $11,491,652 and provided a peak employment of 78,181 men and women.

These figures were contained in a final and comprehensive report on the CWA in Virginia, which was submitted today to Harry L. Hopkins, at Washington by William A. Smith, former State CWA administrator and now VERA administrator.

Of the total, $9,402,652, or 81.8 per cent was paid in salaries and wages and $2,089,000, or 18.2 per cent was paid for materials.

Distribution of the amount spent for materials shows that $484,648, or 23.20 per cent went for painting and paint materials. This was the highest amount spent for any kind of materials.

Monkey Business vs. Love

Baltimore, May 14 (Spl.).—Monkey business in a cage of chimpanzees at the Johns Hopkins Medical School has sent Evo Pan, simian mate of the head of the cage, Propinquus Dayton Pan, to seek the solace of soothing tobacco.

She puffs sadly on a cigarette as she meditates on the unfaithfulness of men and monkeys—and of P. Dayton Pan in particular.

For a triangle exists in the monkey house. As in so many human cases, the ageing wife has been discarded for a younger and handsomer mate. Evo is the ageing wife, Pandora is the younger and prettier flapper.

All three monkeys are kept at the university by Dr. Adolph H. Schultz, world-famed anthropologist, for study. In recent years P. Dayton Pan has gained a measure of fame in Baltimore, first by his marriage to Evo and later by taking up with Pandora.

The flapper monkey came to the university after Dayton and Evo were married. She was put in a cage next to the Pan homestead, and it was soon evident to Dr. Schultz and his assistants that Dayton was making eyes at the newcomer.

Evo didn't like that a bit, but she could do nothing about it. Dayton neglected her shamefully as he made love to Pandora through the bars. Finally, Dr. Schultz decided to make the triangle complete by putting Pandora in the cage with Evo and Dayton.

And from then on Dayton has been living with both his mates, defying both the bigamy laws and Evo's fury. He has little to do with her; all his attentions are showered upon the charming Pandora.

To forget her sorrow, Evo has taken not to drink, but to tobacco. Whenever some one gives her a lighted cigarette, she retires to her corner of the cage and finds surcease in puffing the fragrant weed.

Banks Buying Stock May End In Maryland

Baltimore, May 14 (Spl.).—Maryland banks under the supervision of the State banking commissioner would be prohibited from investing funds in stocks, under the provisions of a recommendation made today by Bank Commissioner John J. Ghingher in his annual report to the Governor.

Mr. Ghingher did not comment on the reason for the recommendation, made in connection with nine other suggestions, but it was assumed he backed the move in order to prevent speculation by banks.

He made one exception to the general rule barring stock investments—that the banks could invest in the stocks of the Federal Reserve Bank and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or in other stocks "when it is necessary to protect a previous investment, and then only with the permission of the bank commissioner."

He also suggested a change in the uniform small loan law of the State, which would give the bank commissioner power to investigate the character, responsibility and general fitness of applicants for permits to conduct small loan businesses.

In connection with the stock investment recommendation, Mr. Ghingher pointed out that Maryland banks are not specifically controlled in the matter of investing depositors' funds. The practice, however, has been to purchase bonds and mortgages rather than stocks, as a matter of safety.

Children, Bearing Confederate Flags, to Honor "Battle Day"

New Market, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—School children, carrying flowers and tiny Confederate flags, will parade through the streets of this valley town tomorrow to St. Matthew's Lutheran Cemetery in honor of 50 Union and Confederate soldiers buried there beneath white battle markers. Following a brief prayer, they will place their flowers on the grass-covered mounds, and another New Market "Battle Day" will belong to history.

Eighty miles up the valley, at Virginia Military Institute, the "West Point of the South," at Lexington, a cadet battalion formation will be held before the statue of a woman, representing "Virginia Mourning Her Dead." As the names of nine boys are called by sergeants in their respective companies, a cadet, designated in advance, will step two paces to the front, salute, and answer, "died on the field of honor."

For 70 years, these simple ceremonies have been held each battle day in the history of the Shenandoah Valley. They recall the days of 1864 when youngsters of 14 and 16 mustered for war.

Col. John S. Wise, who was then at V. M. I., has told of that summons. "Midnight. Drums reverberating through the barracks where 200 Lexington cadets lay sleeping. The adjutant reading orders by candle-light. Breckinridge in need of help, and the order to march!"

By daybreak, 230 boys in uniform were on their way to Staunton. Reaching Harrisonburg, on May 13, the following night saw them camped south of New Market within sight of the long line of enemy fires. In a torrential rain, on Sunday morning, May 15, they took position in the third line of battle on Shirley's Hill, just south of this town. At 11 a. m., on the northern outskirts of New Market, amid the tombstones of the Lutheran churchyard, a six-gun Federal battery opened fire upon the Confederates. Charging through the ankle-deep mud of a wheat field, the V. M. I. cadets had their baptism of fire. Turning the tide of battle, they saved that first Battle Day for the Confederacy.

Dreams of Fire, Breaks His Ankles In 2-Story Leap

Norfolk, Va., May 14 (Spl.).—A nightmare put James Haley in the hospital last night. Haley jumped from the second story of his home, landing feet first on a brick walk, and fractured both ankles.

Patrolman R. L. Jones, who took Haley to St. Vincent's Hospital, and Detective W. T. Walker, who investigated, asked Haley what had led up to the jump.

"I was asleep," he said, "and I got to dreaming. First I dreamed about a train and then I dreamed the house was on fire."

The theoretical flames, he said, drove him to jump from the window before he was fully awake.

Radio Waves and Ripples

THAT this department has been sauntering into the composing room for nearly five months under a sort of Damon and Pythias guise has been variously hinted at. Last week while the first string member of the team was interviewing doors in N. B. C's Radio City, his alter ego, collaborator and obedient understudy got entwined in a maze of visiting radio stars.

Consequently this Castor and Pollux . . . we almost said Pyramus and Thisbe . . tie-up was revealed. Castor, and he is more than a good golf player, forced our hand, tacked a "Memo" at the head of the column. The "Memo" admits he's fully cognizant of the honor paid . . . he has acknowledged no end of comments and hereby announces that his end of the column will continue to ramble in search of news and ideas . . . even if the forays lead to such a productive locale as a broadcasting studio.

But, our mutual informers have chuckled at our bi-symmetrical attempts long enough. Each one knows that Castor likes intricate technical phrases and hurdy-gurdies . . . and that Pollux (and he listens to a radio once in a while) likes flying trapezes, symphony terms and sizzling steaks. They know that Castor will "pan" what Pollux will go into ecstasies over. Now Pollux secretly admires the suave dexterity of phrase that our imperturbable Castor so casually attains And then once in a while Pollux (speaking) waves a story in the air and your columnist number one likes it.

STRANGELY this happens often. Maybe the spectacle of two radio editors strolling around together might draw obvious comments . . . but believe it as you like . . . they don't throw typewriters at each other.

"Say, what's all this about, George . . . it's all right, but I wish you would explain about Pyramus and Thisbe. They're not a radio team, you know."

You know that poor Pyramus got his chin caught in the plaster when he and Thisbe got left without a roadster. They had to murmur to each other through a crack in the wallpaper. But this doesn't explain why this column seems to thrive under two maestros . . . or how or what. Which is mostly behind the scene stuff and a carefully shadowed secret.

Pollux has promised not to wax so enthusiastic again over Breakfast Clubs and Sun Dials. You know that when the cat's away the mice will play. Those Radio City doors almost trapped Castor. And Pollux can't resist doors either . . . stage doors. And that is that.

A WHOLE new world of revealment lies ahead for Bob Trout, WJSV's corn cob pipe artist. Bob's pleasant hesitancy as an announcer is well-known.

Destiny has dealt Bob an unexpected audition. Weathering a bad cold he was told by the doctor that he must have his ears "blown out" . . . just as a precautionary measure . . . and after the "blow," C. B. S's intrepid announcer found that he could really "hear" for the first time in his life.

"I can hear," says Bob.

"Everyone's voice sounds different. New sounds make me jump . . . rattling newspapers . . . rattling columnists . . . it's altogether amusing as well as instructive, you know."

HARRY RICHMAN

in this one looks like they just chucked something at him . . . or maybe it's mike fever. Harry, who fathered one of "the" original night clubs in New York, has returned to the mike for the rest of the year to headline a series with Jack Denny's orchestra over an N. B. C. network Wednesdays at 9:30 p. m.

We know a man to whom racing is food and drink. The Derby and Preakness are to him events, historic, unforgettable. He got to the Derby this year, as usual, but a heavy cold kept him away from Pimlico Saturday. But it couldn't keep him away from the Preakness.

He has a radio. And he found Clem McCarthy there talking Preakness for N. B. C. To Clem McCarthy a horse race is a horse race. That's the way it is with the man we know. He likes to know who's ahead. And no maybes. And he wants to know often.

Clem told him everything, which was plenty, in exactly 1:58.1. And when Clem called 'em—High Quest, Cavalcade, Discovery, Agrarian—that's the way they were posted.

REAL ESTATE ADVERTISING LINAGE

Mr. Advertiser! This Barometer Has a Story for You!

It tells the man who has goods and services to sell an interesting story. It points out for him . . unmistakably, with certainty, without argument or compromise . . the newspaper that will produce results for him.

For Real Estate Advertising must produce results . . and quickly. If it does, a newspaper's Real Estate Linage increases. If it doesn't . .

*And in the first four months of 1934, The Washington Post carried more Real Estate Advertising than any other Washington newspaper . . with an increase of 100.4 per cent over the first four months of 1933.

*And in the month of April, The Washington Post carried more Real Estate Advertising than all other Washington newspapers combined . . with an increase of 109 per cent over April, 1933.

And the thousands of persons who have been and are being guided through the columns of The Washington Post in the largest and most important family budget expenditure . . the selection and purchase of a home . . are also in the market for food for the pantry shelves of that home, rugs for its floors, furniture for its rooms, a car for its garage and the many other items that make the home complete.

These potential purchasers can be reached, influenced and sold . . more effectively, more economically . . in the columns of this community's fastest-growing newspaper—THE WASHINGTON POST.

* In the first four months of 1934 The Washington Post carried 106,427 lines of Real Estate Advertising. All other Washington daily or Sunday newspapers combined, 117,205 lines.

All figures from Media Records.

The Kimball has made this record because it has always been the world's best piano value. You can trust the makers of Kimball pianos because for 76 years the reputation of the company has never been questioned—nothing but fine quality, excellent value and dependable service could have made the Kimball the most widely and among the world's famous pianos. THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Sounds Like Success — By Harry J. Tuthill

WELL HERMAN, I'VE READ PLENTY OF DETECTIVE STUFF BUT THIS IS THE FIRST TIME I EVER HEARD OF ANYONE BEING OFFERED A BIG BONUS TO FORGET THEY SOLVED A CASE.
WE OWED IT TO OUR PUBLIC—WHICH WE'LL HAVE LATER ON—TO REFUSE THAT MAJOR AMBUSH OFFER.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 5-15
HIS STORY THAT MRS. DARDANELLA ELECTED HIM HER FIANCE WITH ONLY ONE VOTE WAS SAD, BUT WE'RE RUNNING A DETECTIVE AGENCY NOT AN ADVICE-ON-ESCAPING-LOVE BUREAU.
A DETECTIVE CAN'T LET SENTIMENT INTERFERE WITH HIS PROFESSIONAL IDEAS.
JOE'S CAFE
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N.Y.
WE'RE NOT BEING COLD-BLOODED. THOSE OLD GARDEN-OF-LOVE COWBOYS WHO WEAR A CARNATION AND CHEW GUM WHILE THEY TALK CAN'T EXPECT TO STAY SINGLE FOREVER.
THE AVERAGE MAN DOESN'T ASK FOR SYMPATHY UNTIL AFTER HE'S MARRIED, GEORGE.
WELL HERE WE ARE AT HEADQUARTERS, READY TO ANNOUNCE THAT THE STRANGE CASE OF THE MISSING MEMORY HAS BEEN SOLVED.
MAJOR AMBUSH IS GETTING OFF EASY. WHAT A STORY OUR FIRST SUCCESS WOULD MAKE IF WE ADDED SOME OF THOSE TRIANGLE DETAILS IN TALKING TO THE PRESS, EH?

DIXIE DUGAN — Things Begin to Hum — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

'LO MR. JEPPWORTH!—WHY—YOU LOOK AS SOLEMN AS A SICK OWL!—WHAT'SA MATTER?
SOMETHING YOU MIGHT EXPLAIN MISS NIPPER
THIS LETTER FROM DIXIE—I FOUND IT HIDDEN BEHIND THIS MIRROR—IT SEEMS THAT YOU WERE SITTING HERE THE OTHER DAY WHEN WILKINS PUT IT ON THE TABLE, AND AS LETTERS DON'T PLAY HIDE AND SEEK BY THEMSELVES—
HA!—HA!—IT'S ALL SO SILLY!—I STUCK IT THERE AS A JOKE—AN' THEN FORGOT ALL ABOUT IT
HM——THEN PERHAPS THIS WAS ANOTHER JOKE—
—YOU TOLD ME NOT TO TRY TO SEE DIXIE BECAUSE SHE WAS IN A TERRIBLY FURIOUS STATE AND THEN THAT SHE HAD GONE OUT OF TOWN—AND YET THIS VERY SWEET LETTER IN WHICH SHE INVITED ME TO CALL AT HER HOME WAS WRITTEN AT THAT VERY SAME TIME

THE GUMPS — Hearts and Flowers

TEN MILLION DOLLARS AND IT LOOKS LIKE ALMOST A SURE THING—OF COURSE THE DAUGHTER GETS THE MONEY, BUT THE MOTHER'LL BE THE ONE TO MANAGE IT—AND SHE'S SINGLE TOO—THAT WOULDN'T BE SUCH A BAD PARTNERSHIP FOR AN OLD BACHELOR LIKE ME AT ALL—
OH MAMA—THE ATTORNEY'S AT THE DOOR WAITING TO SEE YOU—AND YOU SHOULD SEE THE SURPRISE HE HAS FOR YOU—
OH HOW BEAUTIFUL—HOW EXQUISITE—THIS IS A PLEASURE—.
AND WHAT A PLEASURE TO ME TO BRING GLAD TIDINGS AND CONGRATULATIONS TO THE LOVELY YOUNG LADY AND HER EQUALLY LOVELY MOTHER—I AM AT YOUR SERVICE—MRS. DE STROSS—MY LONELY OLD BACHELOR HOURS ARE YOURS TO CALL UPON

HE'S COMING HERE TO GET A JOB! NOW THAT HIS BLACKSHEEP BROTHER, SPALDONI, IS DEAD, HE CAN MAKE GOOD IN AMERICA WITHOUT ANY EMBARRASSMENT!
IF THAT OLD LADY THINKS FOR A MINUTE SHE CAN GET THAT TEA SIPPING CLOWN OF HERS A JOB ON MY FORCE SHE'S..SHE'S BUG-HOUSE!
CHEER UP, CHIEF—HE MAY BE JUST WHAT THIS DEPARTMENT NEEDS. THEY SAY WE DON'T LAUGH ENOUGH AROUND HERE THE WAY IT IS.

WINNIE WINKLE, the Breadwinner — Parent Versus Transparent

WELL, WE'RE NO NEARER TO FINDING OUT WHAT WINNIE WORKS AT, THAN WE WAS A WEEK AGO!
WHAT'S THE IDEA OF YOUR FATHER FOLLOWING US? DOESN'T HE TRUST ME?
IT ISN'T THAT! HE'S FOLLOWING US TO TRY AND FIND OUT WHAT I'M WORKING AT! LET'S HAVE SOME FUN WITH HIM!
WELL, MR. DETECTIVE, DID YOU FIND OUT ANYTHING?
NO, DARNIT! I FOLLOWED 'EM FOR ONE BLOCK AND AROUND A CORNER AND THEY WAS GONE!! VANISHED!! I TELL YE MAW, IT WAS UNCANNY!

Walt Mason, Himself

The Faker.

My old friend Julian lies asleep where aspens quake and willows weep, and no one mourns above his bed, but people say, "He's better dead. We have more confidence and hope since Julian took a dose of dope; we all feel safer in our coops since Julian wisely looped the loops." Here was a man of genius great, and had he chosen methods straight, he might have reached the shining heights, most honored of commercial knights. He might have been with laurels decked, he might have won the world's respect, and been elected county clerk, in recognition of his work. He might have won the world's applause, and been as great as Insull was, but somewhere in his make-up lay the germs that lead a man astray. He'd rather work a crooked game than earn the honest voter's fame. For years I saw him soaring high, of all rich men the favored guy; and I remarked to my Aunt Jane, "Some day his neck will know a pain, for men who have no moral streak will blow up in a year or week." My old friend Julian found at last the impact of a shady past, and tired of life with all its thumps, he took a dose and bumped the bumps.

Lakeside Country Club, Richmond, May 14.—Forced into a play-off, Mel Shorey, Washington public links professional, and Wee Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Richmond pro, outscored Al Houghton, Washington's premier linksman, to win the last two of the three qualifying places in the National open golf trials here today.

Darrell Napier, Cruickshank's assistant at the Country Club of Virginia, had already won his place in the open tournament with a card of 70, 73, one over par, when Cruickshank, Shorey and Houghton, tied with scores of 148, set out for the play-off late in the afternoon—a play-off that was packed with drama and thrills from the moment Houghton fired his shot from the first tee.

On the first play-off, Houghton was to the right of the green in 2, and chipped dead for his par 4. Shorey, deep in the cavernous trap near the green, blasted out magnificently to within 2 feet of the pin for his par, and, to top a hole of spectacular recoveries, the cool-headed Cruickshank, himself in heavy grass in the bunker, almost holed out.

Drives Land on Greens.

On the 220-yeard second hole, Houghton and Shorey were on the green comfortably with their drives. Cruickshank, to the left in the rough, chipped 15 feet past the pin, and with a down-hill putt facing him, stroked the ball smoothly into the cup for his par.

And then it was that the jinx pursued Houghton in the sectional trials at Manor last year and chased him to the second green here today. The Kenwood pro blithely muffed a three-footer that knocked him out of the picture. Shorey, two feet away, putted carefully for his three to qualify with Cruickshank.

Shorey scored a 72 in the morning, and stood on the seventeenth hole in the afternoon needing par in for 146. He knocked his second shot into the creek and wound up with a 6. On the long home hole Shorey missed his second shot, but arched his approach safely to the green, and was down in two putts for his par 5, and 76 that gave him the tie.

Napier Is Pace Setter.

Houghton had two indifferent rounds. He was three shots back of Napier, the pace setter, as he began the final 18, and got off to a bad start, being three over on the first three holes. Birdies on the sixth and seventh gave him a 37 for the first nine. A fluffed third shot cost Houghton a birdie on the fourteenth, while on the seventeenth Houghton was in the rough on his drive, virtually stymied by a tree on his second, over the green with his third, and his approach rang the cup and danced out. Houghton, sizing up a 12-footer that meant a birdie and a sure qualifying place, putted meticulously, the ball dropping into the cup, and came out.

The rest of the pros did not fare very well. Al Treder, silent Manor pro, had a great 71 in the morning that was featured by a hot 33 on the incoming side, but folded up in the afternoon for an 82. George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, had 151; Little Fred McLeod, 1908 open champion, attempting to qualify for the umpteenth time, 155; Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree, 155, and Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase, 157.

The National Open proper is scheduled for June 7, 8 and 9 at Merion. Washington's two amateur entrants, Maury and Dermot Nee, did not show up.

Red Sox Release Joe Judge, Trimming Roster to 23 Limit

BOSTON, May 14 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox today got down to the 23-player limit by giving Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, his unconditional release.

Judge, who will be 40 in two weeks, started his major league career with the Red Sox in 1914. He was released on option early that season to the Lewiston Club in the old New England League and, after spending the 1915 season with the Buffalo International Club, was sold to Washington, where he remained until 1932. He was a free agent when Brooklyn signed him in 1933, but he was speedily waived out of the National League and back into the hands of the Red Sox.

Judge, who has an all-time batting average of .297 for his 19 seasons in the majors, played only a few games at first base for the Red Sox this season, but frequently served as a pinch-hitter.

McColl's Arm Well; To Join Nats Again

Veteran Phones Griffith; Club Faces Struggle to Trim Roster.

By Frank H. Young.

ALEC McCOLL, the veteran who has spent more than the average baseball life of a pitcher in the minor leagues, is coming back to the Nats and probably will rejoin them in Cleveland Thursday. McColl, who was most valuable to the Nats last year, but who had an arm operation last winter which kept him from making the grade at the Biloxi spring training camp this year, now advises President Clark Griffith of the Nats that he is ready.

After leaving the Biloxi camp for Chattanooga, where he put himself under the care of the Lookouts' trainer, his salary wing began gaining in strength. But Alec wanted to be sure that it would stand the gaff before coming back to the Nats, so he gave it several competitive tests with the Southern Association team, the last being Sunday. Yesterday he telephoned the Nat owner that he thought his arm was O. K., and so he has been ordered to rejoin the team.

Complicates Matters.

With McColl coming, Griffith's plans for cutting down the Nats' roster to 23 players, necessary under American League rules by midnight tonight, have become quite complicated. The Nat owner already had decided to ship Pitcher Mark Filley to Albany and to transfer Infielder Johnny Kerr to a coaching role. Catcher Moe Berg reported yesterday that he could fill in in a pinch and so Elmer (Yoohoo) Klumpp also will go to Albany.

These changes still leave the Nats with 24 players, including McColl, and in order to make room for the latter, Ed Linke, young right-handed pitcher, probably will have to be returned, temporarily at least, to Chattanooga. The Nat owner is undecided as to Linke's going, however, and will not make up his mind on this until the last minute.

Mickey Cochrane and his Detroit Tigers will be the Nats' guests here this afternoon in the final game in Griffith Stadium of the current home stay, with the two teams battling for the odd game in the series. Schoolboy Rowe, the precocious rookie, will do the flinging for the Jungle Cats with the veteran, Walter Stewart, getting the nod from Manager Joe Cronin.

Cecil Travis was anxious to play third yesterday, but Cronin is determined to take no chances toward retarding his recovery from the blow in the head he received more than a week ago. Ossie Bluege drew the assignment yesterday and probably will be doing business at his old stand again this afternoon.

Stoefen Added To U. S. Davis Cup Team

Joins Vets, Shields, Lott and Van Ryn, for Play Against Canadians.

NEW YORK, May 14 (AP).—Frank Xavier Shields, George Martin Lott, jr., and John Van Ryn, all veterans of the international tennis wars, and big Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, making his debut as a Cup player, today were named by the United States as the team to meet Canada in the first round of North American Zone Davis Cup competition.

The matches will be played on the grass courts of the Wilmington, Del., Country Club, May 24, 25 and 26. The winner will meet Mexico, only other team in the zone, at Baltimore May 30, 31 and June 2 for the right to play in the interzone final at Wimbledon.

Grant Not Mentioned.

Sidney B. Wood, jr., of New York, and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., other members of the squad asked to report for training under the direction of Capt. R. Norris Williams at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, were not considered for the first round of play. Wood has had no tournament competition this spring and Allison is nursing a spraned ankle, injured in practice at Washington.

The official announcement from the U. S. L. T. A., made no mention of Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, dimunitive Atlantan, No. 7 in the National ranking, who has whipped Shields, Stoefen and Lott in recent tournaments and thereby projected his candidacy for the international team. Holcombe Ward, chairman of the Davis Cup comimttee, asserted no changes in the personnel of the squad were contemplated. Several weeks ago Ward requested Stoefen to "take things easy" for the balance of the spring season.

Paired With Lott.

Shields and Stoefen are expected to handle the singles assignment.

Lott has played in several previous Davis Cup campaigns, both in singles and doubles. Van Ryan has been a member of the doubles team the last five years and Shields played singles on the teams of 1931 and 1932.

Stoefen's international experience has been confined to Wimbledon but he was a semifinalist there and in the Nationals last year. He has since won the National Indoor singles titles and, with Lott, the indoor doubles crown.

Corbett Rides to 3 Victories at Downs

Hope Eternal Wins Purse, Flouting Mud and Rain.

Louisville, Ky., May 14 (AP).—The spectacular riding of Jockey Charlie Corbett and the fine mud-running exhibition of R. A. Firestone's Hope Eternal saved what promised a drab afternoon of racing from complete lack of interest today at Churchill Downs.

Corbett, accepting but three mounts in the first five races, was successful in all. He began his successes in the second race astride Ellen Fisher, 5-to-1 shot, and completed the second half of the daily double by piloting Pana Franks to victory in the third. He made it a triple on Heiress, another eagle bird, in the fifth.

Boston Bows, But Grove Impresses

Chicago Wins 8 to 2, but Is Stopped for Three Innings.

Box Star, Tossing First Real Battle of '34, Stems Onslaught.

BOSTON, May 14 (AP).—Lefty Robert Moses Grove brought relief in large quantities today to Boston and the Red Sox—too late to save a ball game with Chicago, but soon enough to revive the prayer of the faithful for a genuine American League pennant contender.

Grove, bought for $100,000 from Philadelphia by Tom Yawkey and almost immediately taken down with a sore arm, pitched effective relief ball against the White Sox for 6 2-3 innings today although Boston lost 8 to 2 against George Earnshaw's four-hit tossing.

Walks Muddy Ruel.

The lanky Lefty, hammered out by the Browns in his first relief effort several days ago, replaced Henry Johnson with the bases full, one out, and Chicago leading 5 to 0 in the third inning. He walked Muddy Ruel, forcing in a run, and a forceout play scored another before Uhalt grounded out, ending the inning.

For the next three innings the White Sox went out in order and only one fly ball was hit out of the infield. Chicago scored again in the seventh when Al Simmons, Grove's old teammate, doubled with two out and scored when Lefty, covering first, dropped Morgan's throw for the third putout on Luke Appling's grounder. Grove got the Sox in order again in the ninth.

Werber in Home Run.

Bill Werber's home run drive over the left-field wall in the sixth, and his run in the eighth, when he walked and came all the way home on an error by Bob Boken on Roy Johnson's grounder, were the only scores off Earnshaw. It was the first game in which Earnshaw and Grove, once Connie Mack's aces, ever opposed each other.

Singles by Dykes, Earnshaw, Uhalt, Haas and Bob Boken's double, coupled with Werber's two errors, gave the White Sox five runs in the second and paved the way for Grove's appearance in the third.

Mrs. L. J. Powers was in fourth place with a total of 94—14—80.

The final round of the tournament will be played today after which the prizes will be presented.

Well Built Wins Easily In Top Event at Aurora

Aurora, Ill., May 14 (AP).—Well Built, recently purchased by E. B. Carpenter from the B. B. Stable, had little difficulty in winning the top event at Aurora today, defeating the Harned Brothers' Sambo Brown by a length and a half at 1 1-16 miles.

A. Trayford's Dispatcher set the early pace, with Well Built close up. Dispatcher tired on the back stretch and Well Built, a 4-year-old daughter of American Flag, took command and went on to win handily. Sambo Brown beat out Dispatcher for the place.

The winner went to the post favorite and paid $4.50 for each $2 straight ticket. The time was 1:45 4-5.

Virginia Boys to Vie In Golf Meet May 26

The 36-hole invitation golf tournament for Virginia school boys, held annually at Woodberry Forest School, will be played this year on May 26.

The tournament is divided into a senior division for older boys and a junior division for those under 16. Every school in the State is invited to enter a two-player team and an extra contestant—two seniors and a junior. A school may send only a single contestant, who may be either a senior or a junior. Last year there were 39 contestants representing 17 schools.

The tournament has three distinct features. The player with the low score for the 36 holes becomes the Virginia interscholastic golf champion for 1934 and is awarded a gold medal. The winning school will be the one whose team has for the day's play the low gross aggregate score. The winner of the junior division is awarded the Virginia junior golf title.

On the afternoon of May 25 there will be held a driving contest for distance and direction. This contest was won last year by A. C. Tobias, of Woodberry. Favored by weather conditions his ball covered a total distance of 314 yards.

All contestants will be guests of Woodberry Forest School during the tournament.

Klein's Double Lifts Cubs to League Top

Warneke Scores Decisive 3-2 Run in Tenth Against Giants.

CHICAGO, May 14 (AP).—Chuck Klein's sizzling double down the left field line in the tenth inning scored Lon Warneke today with the run that gave the Cubs a 3-to-2 victory over the champion Giants and lifted Chicago to the top of the National League again.

It was Warneke's fifth victory in six starts and the second straight the Cubs have scored over the Giants.

With the Cub ace and young Hal Schumacher locked in a tight pitcher's battle, Bill Terry broke a 1-1 tie in the ninth with a home run in the center field bleachers only to have Dolph Camilli, Cubs rookie first baseman, knot the count again at 2-2 with a homer in the Chicago half.

Travis Jackson opened the Giants' half of the tenth with a double, but was left stranded as Warneke got the next three in order. Bill Terry dropped a perfect throw from Blondy Ryan, who replaced the light-hitting Johnny Vergez at third for the Giants, putting Warneke on base to start the Cub half of the tenth. Hack sacrificed, Galan walked, and Klein hit the first ball pitched to him for a double.

Each pitcher allowed seven hits. It was the Giants' eighth loss in 12 games to date in the West.

Crowder No Puzzle to Detroit

Cochrane, Doljack Are Batting Heroes of Short Game.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

The Nats' one-game winning streak passed away yesterday as the result of an overdose of Vic Sorrell, a powerful sedative that stilled the beat of the Washington batting attack. The anemic-hitting Nats made a basehit in the first inning and another in the second, and then lapsed into a batting coma that endured until the seventh inning when rain put a merciful end to the proceedings with the score standing 5-0, in favor of the Tigers.

The inquest reveals two other parties to the decease of the Nats' winning streak besides Sorrell, the pitcher who admits to holding Washington to those two hits. Blunt instruments swung against the pitching of Al Crowder by persons identified as Mickey Cochrane and Frank Doljack settled the fate of the Nats.

Negligence in Camp.

There was contributory negligence, too, in the camp of the Nats with Buddy Myer the culprit. Myer kicked in with two errors in that big second inning behind Crowder who was in a mood to ask the Nats' second baseman whether he was playing with him or against him. Anyway, those four runs that the Tigers scored in the second were as unearned as Pu Yi's Manchurian throne.

Crowder was faring tolerably well in his second start of the year until Myer dropkicked Gehringer's grounder into right field to put the inning's lead-off man on base. With one out, big Hank Greenberg knocked a single into center field and then Mickey (Himself) Cochrane smacked a double over Johnny Stone's head in right center to score Gehringer.

Schulte threw the ball back to the infield and Greenberg stopped at third base, but when Myer couldn't find the handle on the ball for throwing purposes, Greenberg got up some steam again and rushed home with the second run of the inning.

Doljack Scores Two.

A while later, Doljack smacked a single past Ossie Bluege into left field and the third and fourth Detroit runs of the inning scampered home. At this juncture Manager Cronin was of the opinion that Crowder was being hit hard and withdrew him in favor of Rookie Ray Prim.

Prim got the side out in the second and survived the fourth by dint of the failure of a Detroit double steal when Ossie Bluege ran down Greenberg at the plate, but he ran into a mild squall in the fourth inning when the Tigers scored once more.

Owen started this uprising with a single to right and with two out Goose Goslin, the guy they traded because he has slipped, gave the lie to his ill-wishers by clanking a triple high off the scoreboard to bring Owen home.

Sorrell Casts Spell.

All of this time the Nats were secure in the spell of the right-handed Sorrell, who gained the distinction of handing Washington its first shutout of the season.

Buddy Myer had doubled with one out in the first inning with no consequence, and Ossie Bluege tripled with two out in the second to no good, and after that a 3-and-1 count on a Washington hitter constituted a Washington rally. They got one other man on base against Sorrell, Myer, who walked in the third, and the count was 1 and 1 on Fred Schulte with one out in the seventh when Hizzoner Bill McGowan decided that it was raining.

Cheka Wins In Closest Finish

Workman Rides Exhibit Home, 7-1; Long-Shots First, Second in 3rd.

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, May 14 (AP).—With the closing of the Maryland spring racing season Saturday, the local ranks were considerably bolstered as another week of the sport began here today. While quality was lacking in the various events, it was a well-filled program, containing more entries than any previous card at the meeting. A number of star jockeys appeared on the scene to increase interest in the sport, including Sonny Workman, Earl Porter, Joe Jacobs, the sensational Canadian apprentice Eddie Litzenberger and others.

There was no feature on the card, but the first event, a 5-furlong dash for the 2-year-old platers, resulted in a hair-raising finish. G. D. Widener's Cheka, with Hunter up, gave favorite players a flying start, the son of Galetian just lasting to win by the smallest of margins from G. C. Winfrey's Miss Firefly. The result was in doubt until the official numbers were displayed. W. H. Gatlagher's Prosecutor, with the Preakness winner Bobby Jones in his saddle, was a good third, a length back. The time was 1:00 4-5.

Miss Firefly Marely Misses.

The field of ten broke well and Cheka lost no time in opening up a day light advantage over Prosecutor. This pair dominated most of the running, while Miss Firefly was nicely rated in third place. Cheka held a length lead entering the final furlong, but Miss Firefly, after overtaking Prosecutor, set sail for the favorite and came within an inch or so of victory, Prosecutor was an easy third.

Sonny Workman broke into the winning column in the second race. The husky Washington saddle artist took the 7 to 1 shot exhibit into a safe lead and the combination easily earned the purse by a length and a half. Back Fence beat the unlucky favorite, Steward, by four lengths for the place. The latter broke far back and made up a lot of ground under the handicap.

15-1 Shots Fnish One, Two.

Bahadur and Khamain, a couple of 15 to 1 chances, ran one two to nail the talent in the third event. Curlette, 2 to 1 choice, was third. Friar Monk, with Porter up, was played for a good thing but the gelding never could reach contention. Khamain showed the way to Bahadur most of the trip, but the latter wore him down in the final drive, winning by a length and a half. Curlette was beaten a similar margin for the place.

Long shots continued on a rampage with the running of the fourth race, another 6-furlong dash, Leroline, at 15 to 1, with Joe Rosen up, scored by a length, while the 12 to 1 Hazard Walda, saved the place by two lengths from Union. Step Away, backed down to 7 to 10, broke sluggishly and never was a factor. Walda set the pace with Leroline hot on the trail. Rosen urged the latter to the front in a hard drive through the last furlong. A light rain began falling prior to this event.

Carry Over Wins Fifth.

The veteran rider, Charlie Kurtsinger, upon whom Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons recently took first call, put up a splendid ride to get the Wheatley colt, Carry Over, home by a half length in the fifth contest. Jack Low was 8 lengths before Red Jug for secondary honors. Carry Over, 6 to 5 choice, followed Jack Low's race to the last sixteenth, where the son of St. Germans imposed his will upon the pacemaker. Red Jug raced well up to the stretch, then flattened out.

Xandra, 5 to 1, headed Bannach Lath out of the last purse, with Miss Snow third.

Dear Al: Jamaica Race Track, May 14.

This is virgin territory as far as Bennings, Inc., is concerned, but we are here with a satchel full of confidence and a small wad of expense money. Until Charles Town opens we shall operate from this angle. I have left Clocker Mike to take care of Hagerstown. I always contend that he was a half-mile track hound. He has been begging for a chance to do his stuff and he is now on the spot. I am glad to report that Duke Bellizzi, one of Mrs. Dodge Sloane's jockeys who was seriously injured here Saturday, is making a game fight for his life. While not out of danger, physicians now say he has better than an even chance to return to the saddle. Here's my opening shots.

BILL.

First race—Collector Al appears to be a standout in the opener. A speedy juvenile, this one may hop out in front and lead the pack to the wire. Be There was a disappointment in Maryland. Improvement here would find him close to the leader, however, Paper Moon for the show.

Second race—General A is likely to have Sonny Workman in the saddle and both horse and rider are in excellent shape now. The Heathen is a veteran with a lot of sprinting ability. Both he and Happy Scot figure to make a race of it.

Third race—Black Falcon might awake to get out ofth e maiden ranks in this sprint. He showed signs of improvement in Maryland. Johns Birthday and White Bird to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Rock Point appears to be the solid horse here. Likes the route and if the light-weighted Pending doesn't turn on too much speed we will have a winner. Royal Dunbar for the show. Gracias is better than rated and might be the sleeper.

Fifth race—Prospect Park, Davoc and Big Boots looks like the order in which these 3-year-olds will cover the mile and 70 yards route.

Sixth race—Pompoleon has a fighting chance to gain a purse in the finale. Prefers an off track but can travel on a fast course. Scout Master has shown a return to best form of late. Rodesia for the show.

D. C. Heads to Get Boxing Rules Today

Brown With Present Data of Ring Officials.

Representing the Boxing Commission as a whole, Chairman Ernest W. Brown will present the rules and regulations revised by the boxing solons for the control of legalized fighting here at 10 o'clock this morning. The data was whipped into final shape at a meeting of the Commissioners last night, and it is generally believed that the District heads will approve them with very few, if any, amendments.

Their duties in formulating rules and regulations discharged, the Boxing Commissioners will turn immediately to the task of wading through the large number of informal requests for permits and licenses that has piled up on them during the last week. Although no official action can be taken until printed forms are available, the commission intends to study the informal applications closely in order to be ready to start accepting or rejecting applications immediately upon receipt of the proper forms.

Portner Faces Term Over Untaxed Liquor

Baltimore, May 14 (Spl.).—Unless Jack Portner, most popular Baltimore pugilist, can raise $500 by tomorrow he faces a term in jail on charges of possessing untaxed liquor.

The ultimatum was delieverd in criminal court by Judge George A. Salter, who also assessed a fine of $1 on Mrs. Birdie Portney, the boxer's wife, on the same charge.

Partney and his wife operated a tavern on North Amity street, in which police said they found a quantity of untaxed liquor several weeks ago. The couple were convicted before Judge Solter last month, but he delayed sentence until today.

Hagerstown's Race Meet to Start Today

350 Horses at Track for 10-Day Session; Fields Limited to Eight.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 14. With approximately 350 horses here, everything is in readiness for the 10-day racing meet which will open at the Hagerstown Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon.

There will be seven races daily, with fields being limited to eight starters, as Racing Secretary Edward J. Brennan feels that it will be safer on this half-mile track.

The 10-day racing meet will take place of the two five-day meetings, formerly held in the spring and fall, in conection with the annual fair. Permission was granted by the State Racing Commission, when it was found that the fall meeting dates were unsatisfactory to the fair association, because there was no Saturday date provided.

Saturday Big Day.

Saturday is the largest day here and racing officials here felt that a meeting without a Saturday date would be a losing proposition. Charlestown consented to move back its opening date for its spring meet one week to permit Hagerstown to stage a 10-day meeting.

There will be no race meet in the fall, but instead harness races will be staged in connection with the annual agricultural fair. These harness races were discontinued when parimutuel running races were introduced here.

The opening day's feature race will be a five-eighths of a mile dash—the Harry E. Bester Memorial, in honor of the late president of the Fair Association and the father of General Manager Bester.

Hagerstown tonight was the mecca of hundreds of race followers, who have been arriving here for the last few days. The hotels were rapidly filling and all indications pointed to a successful meeting provided the weather is favorable.

Stocks Rally After Dipping To New Lows

New York, May 14 (AP).—Stocks rallied moderately in late trading today after the market had sold into new low ground since November.

The rally, however, failed to erase all the earlier losses and final prices were irregular.

Shorts Move to Cover.

Short sellers, impressed by evidences of support, moved to cover commitments and buying from that source gave momentum to the late turnaround.

In absence of important news from outside sources, it was assumed the turn had its inception in an oversold condition within the market itself.

While the brisk trading pace set Saturday was not maintained, the day's turnover on the stock exchange totaled 1,673,090 shares, or better than the recent average. The price average of 90 stocks showed a net gain of 0.2 of 1 per cent, closing at 75.0.

Phone Is Bright Spot.

American Telephone was one of the bright spots of the rally, closing with a net gain of 2 points and at the top price of the day as speculative interest in the stock was quickened by approach of the company's dividend meeting Wednesday.

Steel and other industrial shares bore the brunt of renewed selling. United States Steel common dropped below 40 on a break of more than 2 points and regained only part of the loss on the late recovery.

Leading industrial shares were singled out for selling on assumption that seasonal business recession would be visible in trade statistics over the next few weeks. In fact, the American Iron and Steel Institute's estimates of steel production, published after the close of the market, showed a slight decline following a sharp advance in recent weeks. The institute figured current output at 56.6 per cent of capacity compared with 56.9 per cent a week ago.

Automobile output was estimated to have fallen off about 10,000 units last week, a larger drop than had been expected, and the first of railroad traffic reports by individual carriers for last week made less favorable comparison with last year than had been the rule recently.

Leading rail shares sold at new 1934 lows with pivots of the industrial groups on the decline, but rallied toward the finish. Santa Fe, New York Central and Erie finished fractionally to more than a point net higher.

While Wall street expects Federal control of stock exchanges to work far-reaching changes in speculative practices, the Senate vote for control last Saturday had been expected and was minimized as an immediate market influence.

Coffee Futures Fall During Last Week

New York, May 14.—Coffee futures ended the week slightly lower after gains of 15 to 20 points early in the week. The reaction was due in part to losses in stocks and other commodities. Santos ended the week 2 to 6 lower and No. 7 contracts showed net losses of 3 to 5 points.

Trading was still very limited due to the continued apathy in the actual market where prices have remained nominally unchanged for several weeks. Although toward the end of the week an increased interest in spot coffees was reported; things are still exceedingly dull. The trade which bought freely during the first three months seems content to draw upon these supplies. The futures market in Rio ended the week 25 reis lower to 25 reis higher.

The trade has been digesting a cable received May 5 which gave the first official estimate of the Sao Paulo crop for 1934-35 as 10,520,000 bags, just about half the indicated production for the current crop, 20,310,000 bags. Private estimates published earlier gave the crop as from 7,000,000 to 9,000,000 bags and it is felt that this official estimate must include some coffees retained on plantations from the current crop.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Proposal of Our European Investigator for a Plan to Drive France Off Gold Must Be a Throwback to Earlier Policies.

By Ralph West Robey.

Discussions of the Government's special economic investigators abroad obviously can not be taken as necessarily reflecting the trend of thought of the Administration. Nevertheless one can not but be somewhat startled by the subject "explored" with Premier Mussolini by Mr. Richard Washburn Child, the Administration's economic investigator in Europe. According to an Associated Press dispatch, Mr. Child advanced the proposition "that Italy should join with the United States and England in a (currency) stabilization agreement." It is the thought, the report goes on to say, that such an accord "might force France to join whether she wanted to or not."

The reason for thus attempting to force the hand of France, it is stated, is that European prices are out of line with those of the United States and Great Britain. They can be smoothed out, it is held, only by an agreement whereby France and Italy will peg their currencies at a lower point. In other words, France, as a means of getting her price level in line with that of the United States and Great Britain, must suspend the gold standard and then peg the franc, through a stabilization agreement, at some lower point.

Was Believed We Wanted France to Go Off Gold.

Had such a proposal been made some months ago it would have been taken as an accurate reflection of the policy of the Administration. At that time, and in fact up to only a few weeks ago, it widely was believed that several of the more influential members of the Administration genuinely were desirous of having France go off gold. Various of our policies, as well as public statements by some of our officials, clearly indicated that such action would not be unwelcome.

More recently, however, it has been the general impression that the White House has lost most of its early faith in the ability to raise prices through currency manipulation. If this is true, one would assume it also had lost any desire it might have had to get a revaluation of the franc. Mr. Child's suggestion, therefore, either must be out of harmony with the present views of the Administration, or else the general understanding of these views is erroneous.

Is to Be Hoped Former Possibility Is True.

Of these two possibilities it is to be hoped that the former is true, that Mr. Child's proposal is a throwback to earlier Administration policies and is completely out of agreement with the opinions held at present. Certainly by this time we must know that nothing is to be gained in the way of raising prices by increasing the value of gold. This fact is about as clearly written in the history of both England and the United States of the last year or so as anything could be.

In the case of England, for example, the commodity price level has shown no relation whatever with the price of gold. The same has been true in this country. Such price rise as we have had took place while the statutory value of gold remained unchanged. During the period when we were writing up the value of gold, commodity values remained steady.

Price changes, in other words, result from forces far more basic than a bookkeeping entry about gold. The latter can be effective only insofar as it adds to the volume of purchasing power in the country through increased credit expansion. For us to enter an agreement with Italy and England designed to force a revaluation of the franc, accordingly, simply would add a further disturbing influence in world markets and thereby delay lasting recovery. Neither the United States nor any other country possibly could benefit from such action.

Foreign Markets.

London, May 14 (A.P.).—Affected by the Wall Street market prices on the stock exchange were irregular today with trading inactive. Transatlantic issues weakened on the passage of the stock exchange regulation bill by the Senate, while rubber and oil shares were freely offered. Home rails and gilt-edged securities were the steadiest sections. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Quotations on the bourse opened strong due to the government's victory at Clermont-Ferrand. Rentes gained half a franc. Citroen shares were heavy. The closing tone was dull.

Berlin—Owing to lack of orders, prices on the boerse continued to decline. The closing was weaker and unsettled.

Silk Market.

Prime Bonds Resist Sagging; Others Decline

Late Trading Turns Brisk as Transfers Total $15,068,000.

New York, May 14 (AP).—Secondary loans were again under pressure in today's bond market, but prime investment issues, as in previous sessions, generally held aloof from the downward procession.

Low prices for the day were seen in early transactions. There was a fairly brisk late rally, however, coincident with a moderate recovery in stocks, and some of the more active lines ended with advances.

The trading volume was not unduly large, transfers totaling $15,068,000, par value, the average for 60 domestic corporate bonds declined another three-tenths of a point to 85.

News of interest to the senior market was meager. The labor situation in various industries was not too cheerful and current steel production, as estimated by the American Iron and Steel Institute, was slightly lower. Followers of the carriers were studying crop damage reports carefully.

Among the rails that managed to emerge with gains were some issues of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Erie and Union Pacific. Losers of fractions to around 2 points included bonds of Alleghany Corporation, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Illinois Central, M-K-T, Nikel Plate, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Western Maryland.

A steady tone was shown by the more active loans of American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, Chile Copper, Inland Steel, International Telephone, New Jersey Power, Houston Oil and Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York. Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron 6s came back for a net gain of 2⅞ points and Postal Telegraph 5s recovered for an advance of 1½. McKesson 5½s, however, dropped 8½ points, and other losers of 1 to 2 included bonds of American Water Works, Certainteed, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Coal, North American, Paramount, Warner Bros. and Western Union. U. S. Rubber 5s sagged 3½ points.

The majority of U. S. Government securities eased under profit taking, with declines ranging from 1-32d to 9-32ds of a point. The heaviest trading here was in Treasury 3¼s, which lost 5-32ds; Treasury 4s held a small advance, as did Liberty First 4¼s.

Foreign obligations were quiet. Bonds of Argentina and Poland were off 1 to 2 points, and the Germans were slightly lower.

Curb's Prices Close Mixed; Heavier Sales

Fractional Changes Prevail Among Leaders; Dealing, 285,000 Shares.

New York, May 14 (A.P.).—The Curb market finished with irregular price changes today. Fractional variations predominated among the more prominent issues at the end, but some specialties closed down a point or more.

Narrow movements during the morning gave way to rather active selling around noon with losses of fractions to a point or more. The list steadied later and shortly before the close a brisk rally developed which canceled many of the larger declines.

American Gas & Electric reduced a point loss to a minor fraction, while Electric Bond & Share, narrow all day, closed up five-eighths of a point. Hiram Walker and Waco Aircraft likewise substituted small gains for earlier recessions. Gulf Oil regained 2 points after dipping 3. Fisk Rubber, Newmont, Dow Chemical and General Tire & Rubber were down 1 to around 2 points on nominal transfers.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

Foreign currencies were irregular in relation to the dollar yesterday. Gold currencies showed some improvement under the leadership of French francs, while sterling declined ½ cent. German marks dropped sharply, losing .07 of a cent, at 39.58 cents, in reflection of the deadlock at the Berlin debt transfer conference.

The pound closed at $5.10¾, after opening at $5.11. The dollar displayed a steady tone in London, opening at 5.11⅝ to the pound and closing at 5.11¼, a net gain of ½ cent.

The price of gold in London advanced 1½ pence, to 135 shillings, 11½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.76 at the dollar's opening price of 5.11⅝) French buyers purchased $1,237,527 of the metal.

French francs closed in New York with a gain of .00½ of a cent, ending the day at 6.61 cents after selling as high as 6.61½ cents. The dollar closed in Paris at the equivalent of 6.60¾ cents, compared with Saturday's final price of 6.61¼.

On the basis of the closing price for French francs, the dollar was valued at a premium of .35 of a cent, compared with a premium of .43 of a cent on Saturday and a premium of .46 of a cent a month ago.

Washington Business Angles

By J. R. Brackett.

(Associated Press.)

Trade associations, once considered the central part of NRA's codification work, are to play a much smaller role in the future, giving way to the authorities.

Trade associations are organizations of business men. Their purposes range from trade promotion work to virtual industrial amalgamations, as contrasted to code authorities which are public agencies, in large part, for code administration.

The trade association section of NRA has been given a secondary place after having been until recently a major division, and NRA expects to work principally through code authorities, although trade associations still will be employed for various purposes.

A definite and comprehensive policy on associations is not worked out, but officials have indicated the trend by defining them as organizations primarily concerned with affairs purely within an industry.

A code authority, on the other hand, has also to consider the public interest and it is under Government supervision, whereas, a trade association is not.

The ultimate future of the association, the historic form of business organization, is said by trade officials to depend largely on the willingness of an industry to contribute both to a code authority and an association.

Wheat Values Sink as Rains Halt Drought

Late Rallies Follow Supply Report; Corn and Oats Drop.

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—Drenching rains in winter wheat territory Southwest proved more powerful as a price-making factor today than did persistent drought over spring crop regions Northwest.

Bearish effects of the breaking of the drought Southwest were augmented by downturns of securities and by reports that the commodity exchange regulatory bill had been added to the list which the Administration leaders were insisting must be enacted before congressional adjournment.

Wheat Closes Nervous.

Wheat closed fidgety, ½ to 1 cent under Saturday's finish; corn, ⅞ to 1⅛ down; oats, ⅛ to ½ off, and provisions unchanged to a loss of 10 cents.

Helping late rallies of the wheat market was announcement that for the first time in a long while the United States wheat visible supply total had been reduced to below 80,000,000 bushels. The new total, 79,385,000 bushels, contrasted with 117,202,000 bushels the corresponding date last year.

Bulls all found encouragement at the last in assertions that urgent selling pressure in the market appeared to be over, and that a higher range was in prospect. Incidentally, the first actual report of damage by grasshoppers in the spring wheat area was received from the Red River Valley, N. Dak., including mention of one field of 60 acres completely destroyed.

Reports on Rain.

Rain reports from the Southwest, especially Kansas, showed 5 inches of moisture had been received at various points, the maximum at Dighton, Kans., but the majority of places not nearly that much.

Talk was current, however, that liberal amounts of moisture at this time might turn out to be sufficient to assure decided recovery of wheat prospects for the big producing winter crop States Southwest. Numerous instances were cited, when in former years rains after May 1 had provided good crops, particularly if favorable weather continued until harvest time.

Corn and oats displayed less rallying power than wheat did. Crop conditions both for corn and oats were reported as showing improvement.

Steel Operation Climbs to 62; Orders Drop

Pittsburgh District Steps Up Yield; Tin Plate Mills Slacken.

Cleveland, May 14.—With a smaller volume of specifications from automobile manufacturers and a sharp decline in tin plate output, steel consumption last week began to level off, though steel works operations still were buoyed by heavy tonnages on mill books for shipment before July 1 and advanced 2 points, to 62 per cent, states the magazine Steel.

The divergent trends were no more in evidence than in the Pittsburgh district, where steel makers in their efforts to get out material booked for this quarter increased their average rate 3 points, to 51 per cent, and sheet mill operations rose 5 points, to 60 per cent, while tin plate mills dropped from 80 per cent to 70.

Production of automobiles continues to taper off. Total output by the industry has fallen from a monthly rate of 400,000 cars in the last week of April to one of 315,000 in the past week. To a large extent, the present slowing in steel releases is attributed to the effects of recent strikes at autobody plants. Specifications for June shipment in many instances last week exceeded those for delivery this month.

Confidence Is Unshaken.

These developments have not shaken steel producers' confidence in a continuation of a strong operating position through the remainder of this quarter and June. Based on specifications already in hand, shipment by some of the leading steel interests in the first half of this year will equal their entire tonnage for 1933.

Threat of a strike in the steel industry is causing some uneasiness among producers and consumers, though apparently it has not driven in orders. Production and sales of agricultural implements have not been influenced adversely so far by the drouth in agricultural areas.

Railroad buying has passed its spring peak, with few additional orders for rails or equipment, although specifications from equipment builders continue heavy, and some of the leading track accessory manufacturers are booked to capacity for the remainder of this quarter. The Reading Railroad is expected in the market shortly for 10,000 tons of rails and a tonnage of accessories. Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern is inquiring for 150 steel hopper cars. The PWA is making a loan to the Baltimore & Ohio to build 820 box cars and two streamlined trains—one of a new alloy steel and the other of aluminum.

New Awards Drop.

A flurry of specifications for structural shapes is noted for projects recently awarded, but new awards for the week dropped to 16,985 tons, from 41,282 tons in the preceding week. Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. has taken bids on 5,000 tons for a strip mill at Struthers, Ohio.

Negotiations for a heavy tonnage of sheet bars, pipe, automobile and other steel products for Russia are delayed pending a legal interpretation by steel companies of the Johnson act. Russia has contemplated purchasing 20,000 tons of oil-country material in this country.

Three additional blast furnaces have been blown in since the first of the month, and pig iron shipments continue to expand. Renewed pressure of scrap supplies has caused further weakness, with the market at Pittsburgh off $2 a ton from the high point three weeks ago, and Steel's scrap composite down 12 cents last week to $11.58.

Rate at Youngstown.

In addition to the advance of 3 points in steel-works operations at Pittsburgh last week, the rate rose 6 points to 67 per cent at Youngstown; 6 to 100, Detroit; 2 to 64½, Chicago; ½-point to 45, eastern Pennsylvania. It was off 9 points to 80, New England; and 3 to 77, Cleveland, while unchanged at 79, Wheeling; 66 Buffalo; and 52, Birmingham.

With 2,935,631 gross tons of steel ingots produced in April, output for the four months this year reached 9,941,252 tons—within 107,642 tons of the total for the first four months of 1933 and 1932 combined. Daily average output in April was 117,425 tons, 13.3 per cent over March and highest since July last year.

Steel ingot production in Great Britain in April, Steel's correspondent cables, amounted to 716,800 tons; on a daily average basis, 10 per cent under March. Pig iron production was 496,300 tons; on a daily basis, 1.7 per cent higher than in March.

Rates Cut Aids Road.

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—W. P. Kenney, President of the Great Northern Railway, said the reduction in passenger rates has stimulated travel and that he expected the company's revenue for 1934 would show an increase for the first time in years.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, May 14.—WHEAT—Receipts, 667 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 5,802 bushels. Stock in elevators, 698,411 bushels. Opening prices were: No. 2 red winter, sarlicky, spot, domestic, 85½; May delivery, domestic, 85½. Receipts of wheat from nearby sections running light, and demand for No. 2 red winter, sarlicky indifferent on grades especially hard to move.

CORN—Receipts, 2,652 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 2,468 bushels. Stock in elevators, 11,925 bushels. Receipts of corn from the nearby sections have recently been running freer. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand.

Cob corn—Quoted at 3.00@3.25 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings ample for present needs. Demand limited. No. 2 yellow ear corn, arriving here by car quoted at 85@86 per bushel with transit billing.

OATS—Shipments from elevators, 4,510 bushels. Stock in elevators, 29,402 bushels. Supplies of oats show some increase here. Demand is fair in a jobbing way. Choice, heavy weight oats command a premium over the average run and lighter weights. No. 2 white oats, 49@54 per bushel, as to weight and location.

Note—On all sales of oats to the local trade, excepting those on track, there is an additional charge of 2½ per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. Supply ample. On good timothy and clover mixed prices range from 12.00@14.00 per ton. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy.

Tea for two is mighty fine,
But proves quite boresome.
When you take her out to dine,
It turns into a foursome.

IF your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor the same day. You will receive tickets to Loew's Fox (stage, Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon in person and other acts; screen, George Raft in "The Trumpet Blows"); or to Loew's Palace (second week of George Arliss in "The House of Rothchild"); or to Loew's Columbia (Johnny Weissmuller in "Tarzan and His Mate").

Employes in Research and Planning Division, NRA, were thrilled last night to hear a song played over a National radio hookup that was written by one of their coworkers. Jack Sullivan (*) wrote the words and music to the tuneful "That Eyes and Them Nose" that was a part of the Ozzie Nelson program. Young Sullivan worked his way through school by playing the piano.

A QUAINT bit of life's philosophy is contained in the following seasonal poem written by Isaac Palmer Stanfield, colored messenger in the Accounting Division of NRA, under Deputy Administrator Bradish J. Carroll, jr.

Sleet and snow a pelting,
When in spring you catch a cold,
Summer time you melting;
When you have the cash in view,
Plenty to befriend you,
When you're on the mountain top
Telescopes to spy you out,
When into a ditch you drop,
The whole world passes by you,
So it ain't a bit a use to fret,
Just take things as you find it.
The best world you ever been to yet
Just laugh and never mind it.

Ruling Asked on Charge For Chauffeur, Meals

Richmond, May 14 (AP).—A. B. Gathright, State comptroller, said today he would ask Attorney General A. P. Staples to say whether a member of the board of visitors of a State institution is entitled to pay for the use of a chauffeur and for the meals taken by a chauffeur while attending a meeting of the board.

He said that such an expense account had been filed with him and that although the amount charged was moderate, he deemed it best to have an official ruling.

A TRANSPACIFIC LINER MADE A RUN BETWEEN HAWAII AND CALIFORNIA NAVIGATING WITH A "SACRED CALABASH" OF THE ANCIENT SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS ...
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y. 5-15-34

Research indicates that the natives of the South Sea Islands were experienced deep sea navigators centuries before any European learned the secrets of guiding themselves by the stars. The instruments they used were far superior to those of Columbus' time, and even today the "sacred calabash" which was used long before the discovery of America, is accurate enough for long voyages on modern liners.

Not long ago a Pacific Ocean liner used one of the calabashes to navigate between Hawaii and California, substituting it for the modern instruments now ordinarily in use. The calabash proved to be highly accurate.

The calabash used in navigation has a series of holes uniformly spaced about the neck. It is filled with water up to the holes. To get a bearing, the navigator sights through the hole nearest his eye, over the rim of the container, to the pole star. By using suitable tables, similar to those used with modern instruments, the position of the ship can then be determined. The water in the calabash insures an accurate level, as it will pour out of the holes unless the instrument is held exactly level.

In ancient times the navigators were priests who worked out navigation tables, keeping them secret. Whenever a sailing party set out in their outrigger canoes for distant ports, a priest accompanied them as navigator.

Tomorrow—The youngest mother.
